Worthye necessite also brought them vnto this ende, for they had cleane forgoteen the thynges that happened vnto theym afore. But the thynge that was wantynge of theyr punyshemente, was requisite so to be fulfylled vpon them with tormentes, that thy people myght haue a maruelous passage thorowe, and that these myghte fynde a straunge death. Then was euerye creature

C The ende of the booke of wysedome.

C The boke of Jesus the sonne of Sirach, whiche is called in latyn, Ecclesiasticus.

The prologue of Jesus the sonne of Sirach vnto hys booke.

MAnye and great men haue declared wisdome vnto vs, out of the lawe, out of the prophetes, & out of other that folowed them. In the whiche thynges Israel is to be commended, by the reason of doctrine and wisdome. Therefore, they that haue it, and reade it, thoulde not onely thẽ selues be wyse there thorowe, but serue other also, with teaching & wrytynge. After that my graunde father Jesus hadde geuen diligent laboure to reade the lawe, the prophetes, and other bookes that were lefte vs of oure fathers, and hadde well exercysed hi selfe therin: he purposed also to wryte some thing of wisdome, and good maners, to the intent that they, which wer willinge to learne, and to be wise, myghte haue the more vnderstandynge, and to be the more apte to lead a good conuersacion. Wherfore, I exhort you to receaue it louingely, to reade it with diligence, and to take it in good worth, though our wordes be not so eloquẽt as the famous oratoures. For the thynge that is wryten in the Hebrue tonge, sounneth not so wel, when it is trãslated into another speache. Not only thys boke of mine, but also the lawe, the prophetes, and other bokes sounde farre otherwise then they do, whã they are spokẽ in their owne lãguage. Nowe in the .xxxviii. yeare, when I came into Egipte in the tyme of Ptolomy Euergetes, & continued there al my lyfe, I gate lyberrye to reade and write many good thinges. Wherfore, I thoughte it good, and necessary, to bestowe my diligence & trauayle to interprete thys booke. And considringe that I hadde tyme, I laboured and dyd my best to perfourme thys boke, and to bryng it vnto lyghte: That thye straungers also, whyche are disposed to learne, myghte applye them selues vnto good maners, and lyue accordynge to the lawe of the Lorde.

ALl wysedom cōmeth of * God the lord, and hath bene euer with him, and is before all tyme who hathe nūbred the sande of the sea, the droppes of the rayne, and the dates of eyme. Who hath measured the heigthe of heauen, the bredth of the earthe, and the depnesse of the sea? Who hath sought out the grouūde of god des wisdō, which hath bene before al thyn-ges? * Wisedome hath bene before al thyn-ges, & the vnderstandynge of prudence frō euerlastynge. (Gods word in the heigthe is the wel of wisedom, & the euerlastinge commaundementes are the entraunce of her.) Vnto whom hath the rote of wisedom bene declared? Or who hathe knowen her wyt?
Vnto whō hath the doctrine of wisdō bene discouered & shewed? & who hathe vnderstāde the manyfolde entraūce of her? There is one: euē the hiest, the maker of al thinges, the Almighey, the king of power, (of whom men ought to stāde greatly in awe) which sitteth vpon his trone, beynge a god of dominion: He hath created her thorowe the holy goost: he hath sene her, numbred her, & measured her: He hath powred her out vpō al his worckes, and vpō al flesh, accordyng to his gyfte: he geueth her richely vnto thē that loue him: The feare of the lord is worship and triumphe, gladnesse, and a ioyfull crowne: The feare of the Lorde maketh a mery hert, geueth gladnes, ioye, & lōg lyfe.
Who so feareth the lord, it shal go wel with him at the last, & in the day of his death he shal be blessed. The loue of God is honorable wysedom: loke vnto whō it appeareth, and they loue it, for they se what wonderous thinges it doth. * The feare of the Lord is the beginninge of wisedom, and was made with the faithfull in the mothers woumbe: it shal go with the chosen wemen, and shalbe knowen of the righteous & faithfull. The feare of the Lord is the right Gods seruice, that preserueth & sanctifieth the heart, & geueth mirth & gladnesse. Who so feareth the Lord shal be happy, & when he hath mete of comforte, he shal be blessed. To feare of god is the wysedō that maketh riche, & buildeth all good wyth her. She fylleth the whole house with her gyftes, & the garners wyth crowne of wisedome, and geueth plenteous

A Wyse iudge wyll ordre hys people with discrecyon: & where a man of vnderstandynge beareth rule, there goeth it wel. * As the iudge of the people is him selfe, euen so are his officers: and looke what maner of man the ruler of the citie is, suche are they that dwell therin also. * An vnwyse king destroyeth his people: but where they that be in auctorite are men of vnderstādyng: there the citie prospereth. The power of the earth is in the hande of God (and all iniquite of the people is to be abhorred) and when hys tyme is, he shal set a profitable ruler vpon it. In the hande of God is the power of man, and vpon the Scribes shall he laye his honour. * Remēbre no wrongge of thy neyghboure, & medle thou with no vnrighteous workes. Pryde is hatefull before God and manne, and all wickednesse of the heathen is to be abhorred. * Because of vnryghteous dealynge, wrong, blasphemies and diuerse deceate, a realme shall be translated from one people to another. There is nothynge worse then a couetous man. Why aste thou pryde, O thou earth and asshes? There is not a more wycked thyng, then to loue money. The sede of men that feareth GOD, shalbe broughte to honoure, but the sede which transgresseth the cōmaundementes of the Lord, shalbe shamed. He that is the ruler among brethren, is holden in honour amonge theym, and he regardeth suche as feare the Lord. The glorye of the riche, of the honourable, and of the poore is the feare of GOD. Wherfore not thou the iuste poore man, and magnifie not the ryche vngodlye. Be not proude to do thy worcke, and dispaire not in the tyme of aduersitie. * Better is he that laboureth, and hathe plenteousnesse of all thynges, then he that is gorgeous, and wanteth bred. My sonne, kepe thy soule in meknesse, & geue her herdue honour. Who shal iustifie him, that synneth against him selfe? Who wyll honoure hym, that dyshonoureth his owne soule? The poore is honoured for his faithfulnesse and truth, but the riche is had in reputacyon because of his goodes. He that ordereth hym selfe honestly in poueste, howe muche more shal he behaue hym selfe honestlye in ryches? And who so ordreth hym selfe vnhonestly in ryches, howe much more shal he behaue him selfe vnhonestly in poueste?

¶ The. xi. Chapeter.

THe wilfeds of hi that is brought low, shall lyfte vp his head and shal make him to sit amonge great men. Cōmēde not thou a man in his bewtye, neyther despise a mā in his beter apperance. Be not proud of thy rayment, * and exalte not thy selfe in the daye of thy honoure: for the wozckes of the Hiest only are wōderful: yea, glorious, secrete, and vnknowen are his wozkes. Many tyraunttes haue bene fayne to sit downe vpon the earthe, * and the vnlykely hath wozne the crowne. Many mighty mē haue bene brought lowe, & the honourable haue bene delyuered into other mennes handes.

* Cōdemne no man, before thou haue tried oute the matter, and when thon haste made inquisicion, then reforme ryghteously.

* Gene no sentence, before thon hast heard the cause, but sterte let men tel out their tales. Strynge not for a matter that toucheth not thy selfe, and stande not in the iudgement of sinners. My sonne, medle not with many matters: * and yf thou wilt be riche, thou shalt not get it: and though thou rennest thy waye afore, yet shalte thon not escape. * There is some man that laboureth and the more he weerieth him selfe, the lesse he hath. Againe, some mā is slouthful, hath nede of helpe: wanteth strength, and hathe greate pouerte, and Gods eye loketh vpon him to good, setteth him vp from hys lowe estate, * and lyfteth vp his head: so that many men marueil at him, and gene honoure vnto God. * Prosperite and aduersyte, life and death, pouerte and richelle, come all of the Lorde. Wisdom, nurture and knowledge of the lawe, are with God: loue and the wayes of good are with hym. Errour and darcknes are made for synners (& they that exalte them selues in euyll, waxe olde in euyll.) The gifte of God remayneth for the righteous, and his good will shal gene prosperite for euer. Some man is eyche by lurynge wyckednesse, and that is the porcio of hys rewarde, in that he sayeth * nowe haue I gotten rest, and nowe will I eate of the dyncke of my goodes my selfe alone. And yet he consyderth not, that the tyme draweth nye (and death approcheth) that he muste leaue all these thynges vnto other men, and dye hym selfe. Stande thou faste in thy couenant, & exercise thy selfe therin, and remayne in the wozcke vnto thy age. Continue not in the wozkes of sinners, but put thy trust in God, & bide in thyne estate: for it is but an easye thinge in the syght of God, to make a poore man eyche, and that sodenlye. The blessynge of God hasteth to the rewarde of the ryghteous, and maketh his frutes soone to flozysshe and prosper. Saye not: what helpeth it me? and what shall I haue the whyle? Agayne, say not: I haue ynough, howe can I wante? * When thon arte in welfare, forget not aduersite: and when it goeth not well with thee, haue a good hope, that it shall be better. For it is but a smale thynge vnto God, in the day of death, to rewarde euery man accordynge to hys wayes. The aduersite of an houre maketh one to forget al pleasure: and when a man dyeth, hys wozckes are dyscouered. Prayse no bodye before his death, for a mā shalbe knowen in his children. Bring not euery man into thine house, for the discreate full layeth wayte dyuersly. * Do good vnto the rightyous, & thou shalte finde great rewarde, thoughe not of hym, yet (no dout) the lord him selfe shal rewarde the. He standeth not in a good case that is alway occupied in euel & geueth no almes: for the hiest hateth the sinners, and hathe mercy vpon the that shew the workes of repentaunce. Geue thou vnto suche as feare God, & receaue not a sinner. As for the vngodly and sinners, he shall recompence vengeaunce vnto the & kepe them to the day of wrath. For so shalte thou receaue twise as much euell, in all the good that thou doest vnto hym: And why? the hiest hateth sinners, & shal rewarde vengeaunce to the vngodlye. In prosperite, a frende shal not be knowen, & in aduersite an enemy shal not be hid. For whe a man is in wealth, it greueth his enemyes: but in hevines & trouble a man shal know his frede. Trust nutte thyne enemy, for like as an yron rusteth, so doth his wickednes. And though he make much crouthynge & knelynge, yet kepe wel thy minde, & beware of him. Set him not by the, neither let him sit at thy ryght hande: lest he turne him, get into thy place, take thy rowme & seke thy seate, & so thou at the last remembre my wordes, & be pitched at my sayinges. * Bynde not two synnes together, for there shal not one be vnpunished. Who will haue pitye of the charmer, that is stinged of the serpet, or of all suche as come nye the beastes? Euen so is it with him, that keepeth company with a wycked man, and lappeth him selfe in hys sinnes. For a season wyl he byde wyth the, but yf thou stomble, he tarieth not. * An enemy is sweete in his lippes, he can make many wordes and speake many good thynges: yea, he can wepe with his eyes, but in his hert he ymagineth, how to throwe the into the pytte: and yf he may fynde opportunite: he wyl not be satisfied with blowre. Say not so, I sy to god. Say not thou: It is the Lordes faute that I am gone by, for thou shalte not do the thynge that God hateth. Saye not thou: he hath caused me to do wrong, for he hath no nede of the vngodlye. God hateth all abhomination of errour, and they that feare God wyll loue none suche. * God made mā from the begynnynge, and lefte him in the hande of his councell. vngodly children.

DEsire not thou in the multitud of vngodly children, & haue no pleasure in thē, if they feare not God. Truste not thou to their life, and regarde not their labours: for one son that feareth God, is better then a thousande vngodly. And better it is for a man to dye without children, thē to leue behinde him such children as are vngodly. For by one that hath vnderstādyng, maye a whole cytie be vpholde, but thongh the vngodly be many, yet shall it be wasted thorowe them. Many suche thynges hathe myne eye sene, and greater thynges then these haue I hearde wyth myne eares. * In the congregacion of the vngodly shal a fire burne, and amonge vnfaythful people shall the wrath be kyndled. • The olde giaūtes optayned no grace for their synnes, whiche wer destroied, trustig to their own strēgth. Nether spared he them, (among whō Loth which was a * straūger,) but smote them, and abhorred them because of the pryde of their wordes. He had no pytie vpon theim, but destroyed all the people, that were stoute in synne. * And for so muche as he ouer saw not the sixe hundreth thousand, that gathered them selues together in the hardenes of their herte: it were maruell yf one beynge hardenecked, shoulde be free.

* For mercy and wrathe is with him: he is Eccl.b. mighty to forgeue, and to powre out displeasure. Lyke as hys mercye is great, euen so is his punishement also, he iudgeth a man accordynge to his workes. The vngodlye shall not escape in hys spoyle, and the long pacience of him that cheweth mercie, shall not byde behinde. All mercye shal make place to euerye man, accordynge to the worthynesse of hys workes, and after the vnderstanding of his pilgremage. Say not thou: I wyll hyde my selfe from God, for who will thinke vpon me from aboue? I shall not be knowen in so great an heape of people, for what is my soule amonge so manye creatures? Beholde, the heauen, yea, the heauen of heauens, the depe, the earthe, and all that therin is, shall be moued at hys presence: the mountaynes, the hilles, and the foundacios of the earth shal shake for feare, when God listeth them. These thinges doeth no hert vnderstande, but he vnderstandeth euerye hearte, and who vnderstandeth hys wayes? No man seyth hys stormes, and the mooste parte of hys workes are secrete. Who wyll declare the workes of his righteousnes? Or who shalbe able to abyde theym? For the couenaunt is farre from some, and tryinge out of men is in the ende. He that is humble of herte, thynketh vpon suche thinges: but an vnwyse and erroneous man casteth hys minde vnto folish thynges. My sonne, herken thou vnto me, and learne vnderstan dinge, and marcke my wordes wyth thyne hearte. I wyll geue the a sure doctrine, and playnelye shall I instructe thee (marcke my wordes then in thyne hearte: for in ryghteousnelle of the spirite do I speake of the wonders that God hathe shewed amonge his workes from the beginning. And in the treuth do I shewe the knowledge of him.) God hathe set hys workes in good ordre from the begynnynge, and part of thē hath he sundered from the other. He hathe garnyshed his workes feome euerlastynge, & their begynninges, accordynge to their generacions. None of them hindered another, neyther was any of them disobedient vnto his wordes. After this, god loked vpon the earth, and filled it wyth his goodes. Wyth all maner of lyuinge beastes hath he couered the ground, and they all shalbe turned vnto earth agayne.

made all fleashe to stande in awe of him, so that he had the dominion of al beastes and soules. * He made oute of hym an helper lyke vnto hym selfe, and gaue them discretion and tonge, eyes, and eares, and a heart to vnderstande, and fylled them with instruction and vnderstandinge. He created for them also the knoweledge of the spirite, filled their heartes with vnderstading: and shewed them goodand euell. He set hys eye vpon their heartes, declarynge vnto them his greate and noble woorckes: That they shoulde prayse hys holy name together, reioyse of hys wonders, and be tellynge of hys noble actes. * Beside thys, he gaue them instruction, and the lawe of lyfe for an heritage. He made an euerlastige couenaūt with thē, and shewed them his righteousnes and iudgementes. They sawe hys glorye with their eyes, & their eares hearde the mateiye of hys voyce. And he sayde vnto thē: beware of al vnrighteous thinges. He gaue euerye man also a commaundemente concernynge hys neyghboure. Theyr wayes are euer before him, and are not hyd from hys eyes. * He hathe sette a ruler vpon euery people, * but Israel is the Lordes portion. All their woorckes are as the Sunne, in the sighte of God, and hys eyes are alway lokynge vpon their wayes. All their vnrighteousnesses are manifeste vnto him, and all their wickednesses are open in his sight. * The mercy that a man sheweth, is as it were a purse with him, & the grace that is geuen to a man pertaineth hym as the aple of an eye. * At the laste shal he awake, and rewarde euerye man vpon his heade, and shal throwe them together into the neyther moste partes of the earth. * But vnto them that wyll repente, he hathe geuen the waye of ryghtefulnes. As for suche as be weake, he comforteth them, suffereth them, and sendeth them the portion of the veritie. O tourne then vnto the Lorde, forsake thy synnes, make thy prayer before the Lorde, do the lesse offence, tourne agayne vnto the LORDE, forsake thine vnrighteousnes, be an hater enempe to abhominaciō, learne to knowe the righteousnes and iudgementes of God, stande in the portion that is set forth for thee, and in the prayer of the moste hye God. Goe in the portion of the holye worlde, with suche as be lyuynge and geue thankes vnto god. * Who will prayse the Lorde in the hell? Abyde not thou in the erroure of the vngodlye, but geue him thankes before deathe. As for the dead, thankefulnes perisheth from him as nothynge. Geue thou thankes in thy lyfe: yea, whyle thou arte liuynge, and whole, shalte thou geue thankes, and prayse God, and reioyse in his mercy. O howe greate is the louynge kyndenesse of the LORDE, and hys merckfull goodnesse vnto such as tourne vnto hym? For all thinges maye not be in man: And why the sonne of man is not immortall, and he hath pleasure in the damtie of wickednes. What is moze cleare then the Sunne? yet shall it fayle. Or what is moze wicked then the thynge that fleashe and bloude hath ymagined? And that same shalbe reproued. The lord seyth the power of the hie heauē, & all are but earth & ashes.

He that liueth for euermooze, * made al thinges together. God onelye is righteous, and remayneth a victorious king for euer. * Who shalbe able to expresse the woorkes of him? Who wil seke out the grounde of his noble actes? who shalbe clare the power of his greatnes? or who will take vpō him to tell out his mercye? as for the wonderous woorckes of the lorde, there may nothing be taken frō thē, nothig may be put vnto them, neyther may the ground of them be founde oute. But when a man hath done his best, he must begyn agayne: and when he thyncketh to be come to an ende, he muste goe agayne to his laboure. What is man? Whereto, is he woorthe? What good or euell can he doe? * If the numbre of a mans dayes be almost an hundreth yere, it is much. Like as the droppes of rayne are vnto the sea, and as a grauell stone is in comparison of the sande: * So are these fewe yeares to the dayes of euerlastyng. Therfore is the Lorde pacient with them, and powreth oute hys mercye vpon them. He sawe and perceaued the thoughtes and ymaginations of their hearte, that they were euel: Therfore heaped he vp hys merckful goodnes vnto them, and shewed them the way of righteousnes. The mercy that a man hathe, reacheth to his neighboure: but the mercye of God is vpon all fleash. He chastneth, he teacheth, and nourtoureth: yea, euen as a shepherde tourneth agayne his flocke, so doeth he all them that receaue chastenunge, nurtoure and doctrine. * Mercyful is he vnto them that stande in awe of his iudgementes. Thy sonne, whan thou doest good, make no grudgynge at it: and whatsoeuer thou geuest, speake no discomfortable woordes. Shall not the dewe coole the heate? Euen so is a woorde better then a gyfte. * Is not a frendelye woorde a good honest gyfte? But a gracious man geueth them both. * A foole shal caste a man in the teeth, and that roughly, and a gyft of the nigarde putteth oute the eyes. Set the ryghteousnes, before thou come to iudgement

A foole wil pepe in at the windowe into the houle, but he that is well noztured, wil stande wythoute. A folysshe man standeth herkening at the doze, but he that is wyse, wyl be ashamed. The lyppes of the vnwyse wylbe tellynge folysshe thynges, but the wordes of suche as haue vnderstandynge, shalbe weyed in the balaunce. The hert of fooles is in their mouthe, but the mouthe of the wyse is in their herte. ¶ The. xxii. Chapter.

A Slothful body is moulded of a stone of claye, and euery mā wil speake to his dispayse. A slouthfull bodye is made of the donge of oxen, and euery one that toucheth him must wache his handes againe. A misnurtured sonne is the dyshonour of the father. A folysshe daughter shal be litle regarded. A wise daughter is an heritage vnto her husbande: but she that cōmeth to dishonestye, bringeth her father in heuinesse. A daughter that is paste shame, dishonoureth both her father & her husbād: the vngodly shal regarde her, but thei both shal despyse her. The playing of muſike is not mete wher heuinesse is, euen so is the correccion & doctrine of wisedome euer vnpleasaunte vnto fooles. Who so teacheth a foole, is euē as one that glueth a potsherde together: as one that telleth a tale to hym that heareth hym not, & as one that rayseth a mā out of an heuy slepe. Who so telleth a foole of wysedome, is euē as a man, whiche speaketh to one that is a slepe. When he hath tolde his tale, he sayeth: what is the matter? When one dyeth, lamentacion is made for him, because the lyghte kayleth him: euen so let men mourne ouer a foole: for he wanteth vnderstandynge. Make but lytle wepyng because of the deade: for he is cōe to rest, but the lyfe of the foole is worse then the death. Seuen daies do mē mourne for him that is deade, but the lamentacis, ouer the vnwyse and vngodly shulde endure all the dayes of their lyfe. Talke not muche with a foole, and go not wyth hym that hath no vnderstandynge. Beware of hym, lest it turne the to trauayle, and thou shalte not be defyled with his synne. Departe from hym, and thou shalte finde reste, and shalt not be drawen backe into his folyshnes. What is heuyer then leade? And what shuld a foole be called els but leade? * Sande, salte, and a lumpe of yron is easyer to beare then an vnwise foolysh, and vngodly man. Lyke as the bande of wood bounde together in the foundacion of the house cannot be lowsed: euen so is it wyth the heart that is stablished in the thought of councell. The thoughte of the wyse shall nether feare, nor be offended at anye tyme. Lyke as a fayre plastered wall in a wynter house, and an hie buyldinge, may not abide the wynde and stozme: euen so is a fooles heart afrayed in hys imagination, he feareth at euery thyng, and cannot endure. (A wauerynge hearte in the imagination of a foole wil not stāde euer in awe, but he that abydeth in the cōmaundementes of GOD, wyll alwaye feare.) He that nippeth a mās eye, bringeth forth teares: and he that pzicketh the heart, bringeth forth the meaning and thoughte. Who so casteth a stone at the byrdes, frayeth them awaye: and he that blaspheməth hys frende, breaketh the frēdshyppe: thoughe thou drawest a sweard at thy frende, yet dispayze not, for thou maiest come agayne to thy frende. If he speake fowrely, feare not, for ye maye be agreed together agayne: excepte it be that thou blaspheme hym, dyspayne him, open his secretes and wounde hym reaptozously: for all such thynges shall dryue away a frēde. Be faythfull vnto thy neyghboure in hys pouertye, that thou mayest reioyse wyth hym also in his prosperyte. Abyde stedfast vnto hym in the tyme of hys trouble, that thou mayest be heyre wyth him in hys herytage. Lyke as the vapoure and smoke goeth out at the ouen before the fyre, euen so euell wordes, rebukes and threatenynges go before bloudeshedynge. Be not ashamed to defende thy frende: as for me, I wyll not hyde my face from him, though he should do me harme. Whosoeuer heareth it, shall beware of him. * Who shall set a watche before my mouthe and a sure seale vpon my lyppes, that I fal not with them, and that my tonge destroy me not?

¶ The. xxiii. Chapter.

O Lord, father & gouernour of my life, leaue me not in their imagination & councel. Oh let me not fal in fashesꝓuoke. Who wil kepe my thought with the scourge. & the doctrine of wisedom in myne hert? that he spare not mine ignoraũce, that I, sal not with them, lest mine ignoraunces increase, that mine offences be not manyfyn nũbre. & that my synnes exceade not: lest I fal before mine enemies, & so my aduersarie triophe. O Lorde: thou father and God of my lyfe, leaue me not in their ymaginatiõ.

O let me not haue a ꝓroude loke, but turne awaye all voluptuousnes fro me. Take fro me the lustes of the bodye, let not the wy-ues of vnclennes take holde vpon me, and geue me not ouer into an vnshamefast and obstinate myndе. Heare me (O ye chyldrẽ) I will geue you a doctryne, howe ye shal ordre youre mouthe: who so kepeth it, shall not perish thorowe his lippes, nor be hurt thorowe wicked wordes. As for the synner, he shall be taken in hys owne bandtye: he that is ꝓroude and cursed, shall fall therin.

* Let not thy mouthe be accustomed wyth swearynge, for in it there are many falles.
Let not the namynge of God be commynaliye in thy mouth: (and medle not wyth the names of sainctes, for thou shalte not be excused of theym) for lyke as a seruaunte whiche is oft punished, cannot be without some sore, euen so what so euer he be that swereth, and nameth God, shall not be cleane pourged frome synne. A man that vseth muche swearing, shalbe fylled with wyckednesse, and the plage shall neuer go frome his house. If he begyle hys brother, hys faute shall be vpon hym: yf he knowe-ledge not hys synne, he maketh a double offence, and yf he sweare in vayne, he shall not be founde rightwous, for his house shal be full of plages. * The wordes of the sweater bringeth death (God graunte that it be not founde in the house of Jacob.) But they that feare God, eschue all suche, and lye not wickedly in synne. * Vse not thy mouth to vnhonest and filthy talking, for in it is the worde of synne. Remembre thy father and thy mother when thou art set amonge great men: leste God forgette them in their syghte, and lest thou dotinge in thy custome, suffre rebuke, and wyshe not to haue bene borne, and so curse the daye of thy natyuytie. * The man that is accustomed wyth the wordes of blasphemye, wyll neuer be reformed all the dayes of his life. To sinne twise is to much, but the thirde bringeth wrath and destruction. An hote stomache can not be quenched (euen lyke a burnyng fire) tyll it haue swalowed vp some thynge: euen so an vnchaste man hath no rest in his flesche, til he haue kyn-led a fyre. All bread is swete to an whore-monger, he wyll not leaue of, tyll he haue hys purpose. A man that breaketh wed-locke, and regardeth not hys soule, but sayeth: * Tushe, who seyth me? I am compassed aboute with darcknes, the wal-les couer me, no bodye seyth me: whome nede I to feare? The Hyest wyll not remembre my synnes. He vnderstandeth not that hys eyes se all thynges, for all suche feare of men, but eueth awaye the feare of God frome hym: for he feareth only the eyes of men, and consydereth not that the eyes of the Lord are clearer then the Sunne, beholdynge all the wayes of men and the grounde of the depe, and lokynge euen to mennes hertes in secrete places. The Lorde God knewe all thynges or euer they were made, and after they be broughte to passe also, he loketh vpon theym all. * The same man shalbe openly punyshed in the stretes of the citie, and shall be chased abrode lyke a yonge horse foale: and when he thinketh least vpon it, he shall be taken. Thus shal he be put to shame of euery man, because he would not vnderstande the feare of the LORDE. And thus shal it go also with e-uery wife, that leaueth her husbande, and getteth eathyr traunce by a straunge maryage. * Fyrste, she hathe bene vnfaythfull vnto the lawe of the hyest. Secondely, she hath forsaken her owne husband.

Thyrdelye, she hathe played the whore in aduoutrye, and gotten her children by another man. She shalbe brought out of the cõgregaciõ, & her children shalbe loked vp-on. Her childrẽ shal not take rote: & as for frute, her braunches shal bring forth none.
A shameful reporte shal she leaue behynde her, and her dishonour shal not be put out.
And they that remayne, shall knowe, that there is nothynge better, then the feare of God: and that there is nothyng sweter then to take hede vnto the commaundemẽtes of the Lord. A great worshyppe is it to folow the Lorde, for longe lyfe shall be receaued of hym.

gaciõs of the hyest shal she opẽ her mouth, & triumphe in the beholding of his power: In the myddest of her people shall she be exalted, and wonderd at in the holye fulnesse. In the multitude of the chosen she shalbe commended, and among such as be blessed, she shalbe praysed, and shall saye: I am come oute of the mouth of the Hyest, fyrste borne before all creatures. I caused the lyght that fayleth not to aryse in the heaue, and couered all the earth as a cloud.
My dwellynge is aboue in the heyth, and my seate is in the pyller of the cloude. I my selfe alone haue gone rounde about the compasse of heauen, & pearsed the grounde of the depe: I haue walched in the floudes of the sea, and haue stande in all landes: my dominiō is in euery people, & in euery nacion, and with my power haue I troden downe the hertes of al, both hye and lowe. In all these thinges also I sought rest, and a dwellynge in some enheritaunce. So the creatour of al thinges gaue me commaundemente: and he that made me, appoynted me a tabernacle, and sayde vnto me: Let thy dwellynge be in Jacob, and thyne inheritaunce in Israell, & rote thy selfe among my chosen. * I was created from the begynnynge, and before the worlde, and shal not leaue of vnto the worlde to come.

Exo.31.a * In the holy habitacion haue I serued before him, and so was I stablished in Sion.

psa.132.a * In the holy cyte rested I in lyke maner: and in Jerusalem was my power. I toke rote in an honourable people, euē in the porcion of the Lorde, and in his heritage, and hepte me in the fulnesse of the sayntes. I am set vp an hye lyke a Ceder vpon Libanus, and as a Cypers, tre vpon the mounte Hermon. I am exalted like a palme tree in Cades, and as a rose plant in Jericho.

As a fayre Olyue tre in the felde, and am exalted lyke as a planteine tree by the water syde. I haue geuen a smell in the stretes, as the Cynamō and Balme, that hath so good a sauoure: yea, a swete odoure haue I geuen as it were Myrre of the beste. I haue made my dwelliges to smel as it were of Rosin, Galbanum, of Cloues, & incense, and as Libanus whē it is not hewē down, and mine odoure is as the pure Balme. Joh 14.a hope. * In me is al grace of life & trueth. In me is all hope of life & beawte. O come vnto me al ye that be desirous of me, & fyll youre selues with my frutes, for my spirit is swete then hony, & so is my inheritaūce more then the honye combe: the remembraunce of me endureth for euermore. They that eate me, shall haue the more honger, and they that drynke me, shal thirst the more. Who so herkeneth vnto me, shall not come to confusyon: and they that worcke in me, shall not offende. They that make me to be knowen, shal haue euerlasting life.

All these thynges are the boeke of lyfe, the couenaunt of the Most, and the knowledge of the trueth. * Moses commaunded the lawe in the preceptes of ryghteousnes for an heritage vnto the house of Jacob, & committed the promises vnto Israel.

Thys maketh nurture to breake forthe as the lyghte, and as the water Gyhon in the haruest. The fyrste hathe not knowen her perfectelye, no more shal the last seke out the grouū of her. For her thoughte is fuller then the sea, and her coūsel is profounder then the greate depe. I wisdome haue cast out floudes. I am as a great waterbroke out of the ryuer. I haue iudged in my hert to be happy, and the tenth will I tell forthe vnto men wyth my tonge. A man that whyle he liueth, hath full frende: and wel is him, whiche talketh of wysedome to an eare that heareth hym.

O howe great is he, that findeth wysedom and knowledge? yet is he not aboue hym, that feareth the Lorde.

The feare of God hathe set it selfe aboue al thynges. Blessed is the man, vnto whō it is graunted to haue the feare of God. Vnto whome shall he be lykened, that kepeth it fast? The feare of God is the begynnyng of his loue, and the begynnyng of fayth is to cleue faste vnto it. The heynesse of the hert is al the punishement, and the wicked nes of a woman goeth aboue all.

All punyshement and plage is nothyng in comparison of the plage of the hearte, euen so all wyckednesse is nothynge, to the wyckednesse of a womanne. What so euer happeneth vnto a man, is nothyng in com-C parylon of it, that his euel willers do vnto hym: and all bengeaunce is nothinge to the bengeaunce of the enemye. There is not a HAppye is the man that hath a verte-A ous wife, for the nōbre of his yeares shalbe dubble. An honest womā ma-keth her husbande a ioyful man, & she shal fil the yeres of his life in peace. A vertuous womā is a noble gifte, which shalbe geuen for a good porcion vnto such as feare God: Whether a mā be rich or poze, he may haue euer a merye hearte, and a chearefull countenaunce. There be thre thynges that my hert feareth, and my face is afrayed of the fourth. Treason in a cyte, a seditycous people, and no yome tounges, all these are hey-uyer then the deathe. But when one is gelous ouer his wyfe, it bryngeth payne and sorowe vnto the herte: and a woman that telleth oute all thynges, is a scourge of the tounge. When one hath an euell wife, it is euen as when an vnlike payre of oxen must drawe together, * he that getteth her, getteth a scorpion. A dronckē woman is a Jud. 16.b great plage, for she cannot couer her owne shame. The whoredome of a woman maye be knowen in the pryde of her eyes and ei B lyddes. * If thy doughter be not chame-faste, holde her straytlye, lest she abuse her selfe thorowe ouer muche libertie. Beware of all the dishonestye of her eyes, and maruell not yf she do agaynste the. Like as one that goeth by the waye and is thyrstye, so shall she open her mouth, and drinche of e-uerye nerre water that she maye get. By euery hedge shall she set her downe, and open her quiuer agaynst euery arowe. A louynge wyfe reioyseth her husbande, and fedeth his bones wyth her wysedome. A woman of fewe wordes is a gyfte of God, and to all well nurtured mindes may nothyng be compared. An honest and manerly wo-C man is a gifte aboue other gifres, and there is no weight to be compared, vnto a minde that can rule it selfe. Lyke as the Sunne when it aryseth, is an ornament in the hie heauen of the Lorde, so is a vertreous wyfe the bewtye of all her house. Lyke as the cleare lyght is vpon the holy candelsticke, so is the bewtie of the face vpon an honest Cant. 6.d body. * Like as the golden pyllers are vpō the sockettes of syluer, so are the fayre legges vpon a woman that hath a constaunte mynde. Perpetuall are the foundacyons that be layed vpon a whole stonye rocke, D so are the commaundementes of God vp-on the hearte of an holye woman. There be two thinges that greue my heart and in the thirde is a displeasure come vpon me. When an experte manne of warre suffreth scarsenes and pouertye. When men of vnderstandynge and wisedom are not set by: And when one departeth frome righteousnes vnto sinne. Whoso doeth such the lorde hath prepared him vnto the swerde. There be two maner of thinges, which me thincke to be harde & perilous. A marchaunte can not lightly kepe him from wronge, neyther a tauerner him selfe from synne.

A Because of pouertye haue many one offended: & he that seketh to be ryche, turneth his eyes a syde. Like as a nayle in the wal sticketh fast betwixe two stones, euen so doth sinne sticke betwixt the vier & the seller. If he hold him not diligētly in the feare of the lord, his house shal sone be ouerthrowen. Like as when one sifteth, the kylthines remayneth in the syue: So remayneth there some vncleane thynge in the thoughte of manne. The ouen proueth the potters vessell, * so doeth temptacyon of trouble trye righteous men. * The tree of the kelde is knowen by hys fruite, so is the thought of mans heart knowen by his wordes. Prayse no man except thou haue heard him, for a man is knowen by hys wordes.

If thou folowest righteousnes, thou shalte get her, and put her vpon thee, as a kayze garmente. And thou shalt dwell wyth her, and she shall defende thee for euer, and in the daye of knowledge thou shalte fynde stedfastnesse. The birdes resorte vnto theyr lyke, so doeth the trueth tourne vnto them that he occupyed wythall. The Lion wayteth the praye: so do the synners lurke vpon the workers of wickednes. The talkynge of him that feareth God, is nothinge but wisdome: as for a foole he chaungeth as the Moone. If thou be amonge the vnderstonde, kepe thy wordes vntil a conuenient time, but amonge suche as be wise, speake on har delye. The talkynge of fooles is abhominacion, and their sporte is voluptuousnesse and mishurtoure. * Muche swearynge maketh the heart to stande vp: And to stryue with such as stoppeth the eares. The stryke of the proude is bloudesheddynge, and theyr blaspheminge is heupe to heare.

* Who so discouereth secretes, leseth hys credence, and fyndeth no frende after hys wyl, Loue thy frende, and bynde thy selfe in faythfulnes wyth hym: But if thou bewrayest his secretes thou shalt not get him agayne. For lyke as the manne is that destroyeth hys enemye: so is he also that deceyth falselye in the frendshyp of hys neyghboure. Like as one that letteth a byrde goe oute of hys hande, cannot take her agayne: Euen so thou, yf thou geue ouer thy frende, thou canste not get hym agayne: yea, thou canste not come by hym, for he is farre of. He is vnto the as a Roe escaped oute of the snare, for hys soule is wounded. As for woundes, they maye be bounde vp agayne, and an euell worde may be reconcyled: but who so bewrayeth the secretes of a frende, there is no more hope to be had vnto hym.

* He that wincketh with his eyes ymagineth some euel, and no man shall take hym frome it. When thou arte presente, he shall lyke commende and prayse thy woordes: but at the last he shal turne hys tayle, and sclaunder thy sayinge. Many thinges haue I hated, but nothynge so euell, for the lorde him selfe also abhorreth suche a one. * Who so casteth a stone on hye, it shall fall vpon hys owne heade: and he that smiteth wyth gyle, woundeth him selfe. Who so byggeth a pyt shal fall therin (and he that layeth a stone in hys neyghbours waye, shall stomble thereon) and he that layeth a snare for another, shall be taken in it hym selfe. * Who so geueth a wicked noysome counsell, it shall come vpon hym selfe, and he shal not knowe frome whence. The proude blaspheme and are scornefull, but vengeaūce lurketh for the as a lio. They that rejoyce at the fal of the righteous, shalbe taken in the snare, anguishe of heart shal consume the before they die. Anger & rigorousnes are two abhominable thynges, & the vngodlye hath them bothe vpon him.

HE * that seketh vengeaūce, shal finde vengeaunce of the Lord, whiche shal surelye kepe hi his sinnes. * Forgeue thy neyghbour, the hurt that he hath done the, & so shal thy sinnes be forgeuen the also, when thou prayeste. A man that beareth hatred agaynst another, howe dare he require forgeuenes of god? he that shweth no mercy to a man, whiche is like him selfe, howe dare he aske forgeuenes of his sinnes? If he that is but flesche, beareth hatred and reuengeth it, who wyll entreat for hys synnes? Remembre the ende, and let enemyte passe, whiche seketh deathe and destruccion, and abyde thou in the commaundementes. Remembre the commaundementes, so shalte thou not be rygorous ouer thy neyghbour. Thyncke vpon the couenaunte of the hiest. and forgeue thy neyghbours ignorauncē. * Beware of stryfe, & thou shalte make thy sins fewer. For an angrie man kindleth bataile, & the vngodly disquieteth frendes, & putteth discorde amōg the that be at peace.

For he hathe made all thynges to doe good vnto man. Hys blessynge shal renne ouer as the streame, and moysture the earth, lyke a cloude of water. Lyke as he maketh the water for drouth, so shal hys wrathe fall vpon the heathen. * His wayes are playne & right vnto the iust, but the vngodly stomble at them. For the good, are good thynges created fro the beginninge, and euell thynges for the vngodly. * All thynges necessarye for the lyfe of man are created frome the begynnynge: water, fire, yron, and salt, meele, wheat, and hony, milke, and wine, oyle, and clothyng. * All these thynges are created for the best to the faythfull: But to the vngodlye shall al these thynges be tourned to the hurt and harme. There be spirites that are created for vengeaūce, & in their rigorousnes haue they fastened their formētes. * In the time of the ende they shall powre oute their strength, and pacifie the wrath of him that made them. * Fyre, hayle, honger & warthe: al these thinges are created for vengeaūce. The teeth of wylde moyloue beastes, the scorpions, serpentes, & the swearde are created also for vengeaunce, to the destruction of the vngodlye. They shall be glad to doe his commaundementes: and when nede is, they shalbe readye vpon earthe: And when their houre is come, they shall not ouerpasse the commaundemente of the Lorde. Therefore haue I taken a good corage vnto me frome the begynnynge and thoughte to put these thynges in writing, & to leaue them behynde me. * All the woorckes of the Lorde are good, and he geueth euery one in due season, and when nede is, so that a man nede not to saye: this is worse then that. For i due seasō they are al pleasaūt & good: & therfore prayse the lord with whole heart & mouthe, & geue thanckes vnto his name.

A Great trauayle is created for al mē, & an heuye yocke vpon al men chyldren, fro the day that they go out of their mothers wombe, tyll they be buryed in (the earthe) the mother of all thynges: Namelye, their thoughtes and imaginacions, feare of the heart, counsell, meditacions, lodginge and delyte, the daye of death: from the hiest that sitteth vpon the glorious state, vnto the lowest and moste symple vpon the earthe: from hym that is gorgiously araped, and weareth a crowne, vnto hym that is but homely and symply clothed. There is nothinge but wrath, zele, fearfulnes, vnquietnes, and feare of death, rigorous, anger and strife. And in the night when one shoulde reste, and slepe vpon his bed, the slepe chaungeth his vnderstādinge and knowledge. A lytle or nothynge is hys rest in the slepe as well as in the day of labour. He feareth and is dysquyeted in the vision of his heart, as one that renneth out of a battayle: and in the tyme of healthe he awaketh and marueleth that the feare was nothynge. Suche thynges happen vnto al flesche, bothe man and beast: but seuen folde to the vngodlye. Moreouer, deathe bloude-sheddynge, stryfe and swearde, oppression, honger, destruccion & punyshmente: * these thinges are al created againste the vngod-ly, and for their sakes came the floude also. * All that is of the earthe, shall turne to earthe agayne: and all waters ebbe agayne into the sea. Al bribes and vnrighteousnes shalbe put away, but faythfulnes & trueth shall endure for euer. The substaunce and goodes of the vngodlye shalbe dryed vp & vyncke awaye as a water floude, and they shall make a sounde lyke a great thonder in the rayne. Like as the righteous reioyseth when he openeth his hāde, so shal the trās-gressours be vaynte, when their goodes ba-nyshe and consume awaye. * The children of the vngodlye shall not obtayne mauye braunches, and the brickeane rotes, vpō the hye rockes shalbe roted oute before the grasse by the water syde and vpō the ryuer banckes. Freendlynes and lyberalyte in the increase and blessynge of god, is lyke a Paradise and garden of pleasure: suche mercy also and kyndnes endureth for euer. * To labour and to be content with that a man hath, is a swete pleasaunte lyfe: and that is to finde a treasure aboue all treasures. To beget children and to repayre the cytie, ma-keth a perpetuall name: but an honest woman is more worthe then they both. Wyne and minstrelsye reioyse the hearte, but the loue of wysedome is aboue them bothe. Toipynge and harpynge make a swete noyse, but a frendly tōge goeth beyonde thē both.

Thyne eye desireth fauour & bewty, but a grene sede tyme, rather then they bothe. A frende & cōpanion come together at oport-tunyte, but aboue thē both is a wife that a-greeth with her husbande. One brother hel peth another in the time of trouble, but almes shal deliuer more thē they both. Golde & syluer fasten thy fete, but a good counsel is more pleasaunte then they bothe. Tēporal substaūce & strēgth lyfte vp the minde: but the feare of the Lorde more then they bothe. The feare of the Lorde wanteth nothynge, and needeth no helpe. The feare of the LORDE is a pleasaunte garden of blessynge, and nothynge so bewtyfull as it is. Oh sonne, lede not a beggers lyfe, for better it were to dye then to begge. Who so loketh to another mans table, taketh no thoughte for hys owne liuinge how to by-holde hys lyfe, for he fedeth hym selfe with other mens meat. But a wise and wel nurtoured man wyll beware therof. Eggynge is swete in the mouth of the vnshamefast, but in hys bely there burneth a fyre.

¶ The xli. Chapter. Death.

O Deathe, how bitter is the remēbrāce of the, to a man that seketh rest & con forte in his substaunce & riches, vnto the mā that hath nothyng to bere hym, and that hath prosperite in al thinges: yea, vnto hym that is yet able to receaue meate?
O death, howe acceptable and good is thy iudgement vnto the nedeful, and vnto him whose strength fayleth, and that is nowe in hys last age, & that in al thinges is full of care and fearfulnes: vnto hym also that is in dyspayre, and hath no hope nor pacience?
Be not thou afrayed of deathe: remembre thē that hath bene before the: & that come after the: this is the iudgement of the Lord ouer al flesche. * And why wouldest thou be againste this pleasure of the Lorde? Whether it be ten, an hundreth, or a thousande yeares: deathe asketh not howe longe one hathe liued. The children of the vngodlye are abhominable chyldren, and so are they that kepe companye wyth the vngodlye.
* The inheritaunce of vngodlye children shal come to nought, & their posteryte shal haue perpetuall shame and confusion. The children complaine of an vngodly father: & why? for his sake they are rebuked and despised. Wo be vnto you, (O ye vngodlye) which haue forsaken the law of the Lorde God: yf ye be borne, ye shall be borne to curssynge, yf ye dye, the curse shalbe youre portion. * All that is of the earthe, shall turne to earthe agayne: so go the vngodlye also oure of the curse into destruccion. The sorow of men is theyr bodye: but the name of the vngodlye shall be put oute, for it is nothynge worthe. * Laboure to get the a good name, for that shall con-tynue surer vnto the, then a thousande great treasures of golde. A good lyfe hathe a nūbre of dayes, but a good name endureth euer. * Thy childrē, kepe wysedom in peace: for wysedōe that is hid and a treasure that is not sene, what profit is in them both? A man that hydeth his foolishnes, is better then a man that hideth his wisdom. Ther fore be ye turned at my wordes: for it is not good, in all thynges and alwaye to be ashamed. True faith must proue and measure it. Be ashamed of whordome, before father and mother: Be ashamed of lesynge, before the prynce and men of auctorite? Of synne, before the iudge and ruler. Of offēce, before the congregacion & people: Of vnrighteousnes, before a companion & frende: Of theffte, before thy neighbours. * Be not

the trueth of God and his couenaũt, be not ashamed therof. Be ashamed to lye wyth thine elbowes vpon the breade: be ashamed to loke vpõ harlottes: be ashamed to turne away thy face frõ thy frẽde. Be ashamed to take & not to gene: be ashamed also to loke vpõ another mãs wife, & to make many restyngye wordes with her mayden, or to stãde by her bed syde. Be ashamed to vpbrayde thy frẽde: when thou geuest any thing, cast him not in the teeth withal.

Rehearse not a thing twise, & disclose not the wordes that thou hast hearde in secrete. Be shamefast and wel manered in dede, so shalt euery mã fauoure the.
Of these thinges be not thou ashamed. & accept no person to offende. Namelye, of these thinges be not ashamed: of the law of god, of the couenaunt, of iudgemẽt: to bring the vngodly from his vngodlines vnto righte-ousnes, & to make him a good man: to deale faythfully with thy neyghboure, and companion: to distribute the heritage vnto thy frendes: to be diligẽt to kepe true measure & weyghte: to be content, whether thou get-test muche or lytle: to deale truly with tem-porall goodes in byinge and sellynge: To bringe vp children with diligence: To correct an euell seruaunte: To kepe that hyne is from an euel wife: To set a locke where manye handes are: What thou deliuerest & geuest out to be kepte, to tell it, and to weye it: to wryte vp all thy oute geuinge and re-ceauinge: To enfourme the vnlearned and vnwyse. Of the aged, that are iudged of the younge. If thou be diligent in these thyn-ges, truly thou shalt be learned, & wise, and accepted of all men. The doughter maketh the father to watche secretlye: and the care-fulnes that he had for her, taketh awaye hys slepe: yea, in the youth, lest she shoulde ouergrow him: And when she hath an hus-bãde, lest she shoulde be hated: lest she shuld be defiled or rauished in her virginite, or gotten with childe in her fathers house: or (when she commeth to the man) lest she behaue her selfe not a right, or continue vn-fruitful. * If thy doughter be wãton, kepe her straytlye, lest she cause thyne enemyes to laugh the to scorne, and the whole cittye to gene the an euel reporte, and so thou be fayne to heare thy shame of euery man, & be confounded before all the people. * Be-holde not euerye bodyes bewtye, and haue not much dwellynge amonge women. For like as the wormе and moth commeth oute of clothynge, * so doeth wickednes come of women. It is better to be with an euel mã, then with a frendely wyfe that putteth one by shame and rebuke, I wyll remembre the wordes of the Lord, and declare the thing that I haue sene. In the woordes of the Lorde are hys wordes. The Sunne ouerloketh all thynges with hys lyght, and al his worckes are full of the clerenes therof.
Hath not the Lorde brought to passe, that his sayntes shoulde tell out al hys wonderous worckes, whiche the almyghtye Lorde hath stablished: Al thynges endure in hys glorye. He seketh oute the grounde of the depe, and the heart of men, and he knoweth al theyr ymagynacion and wysdome. For the Lorde knoweth all sciẽce, and he lo-keth into the tooken of the tyme. He decla-reth the thynges that are paste and for to come, and discloseth the thynges that are secrete. * No thought may escape him, nether may anye worde be hyd from hym. He hath garnished the hye excellente worckes of hys wysdom, and he is from euerlasting to euerlastynge. Vnto hym maye nothynge be added, neither cã he be minished, he hath no nede also of any mans councell. O, howe amiable are al his worckes, and as a sparke to loke vpon. They lyue all, and endure for euer: and whan soeuer nede is, they are all obedient vnto hym. They are al dubble, one agaynste another: he hathe made nothynge that hath faulte or blemyshe. * He hath stablished the goodes of euery one: & who may be satisfied with his glorye, whẽ he seyth it.

¶ The. xliii. Chapter.

The glory of the heighte, is the fayre & cleare firmamente, the bewtie of the heauen is his glorious clearnes. The sunne when it appeareth, declareth the day in the going out of it, a marueilous worcke of the hiest. At noone it burneth the earthe, & who may abide for the heate therof: who so seeth an ouen when it is hote, the rymes more doeth the sunne burne vpõ the moun-taynes, whẽ it breatheth out the fyrye bea-mes, and shineth: with the brightnes of it, it blyndeth the eyes. Greate is the Lorde that made it, and in his commaundemẽt he causeth it to renne hastelye. * The Moone also is in all, and at conuenyent season it shewed the tymes, & is a token of the time.
* The token of the solempne feaste is taken of the Moone, a lighte that munisheth and increaseth agayne. The Moneth is called after the Moone, it groweth wonderoustye in her chaungynge. The armye of heauen also is in the heygth, in the firmamente of heauen it geueth a cleare & glorious shyne.
This is the clearnes of the starres, the beutiful apparel of heauen, the apparell that the Lorde lighteneth in the heygth. In hys holy worcke they continue in theyr ordre, & not one of theym fayleth in hys watche.
* Looke vpon the rayne bowe, and prayse hym that made it: bery bewtyfull is it i hys shyne. He compaſſeth the heauen aboute with his clearenes and glory, the handes of the hiest haue bended it. Thorow his cōmaundemente he maketh the snowe to fal, and the thunder of his iudgement to smite haſtely. Thorowe his commaundement the treaſures are opened, and the cloudes flye as the foules. In hys power hathe he strengthened the clondes, and broken the hayle stones. The mountaynes melt at the sight of him, the winde blowyth accordyng to his wyl. The sounde of his thunder beteth the earthe, and so dothe the storme of the northe: the whirle winde also lyghteth downe as a fethered foule, caſteth oute and spredeth the snowe abrode: and as the gresshoppers that destroye all, so falleth it downe. The eye meruayleth at the bewtye of the whytenesse therof, and the hearte is afrayed at the rayne of it. He powreth out the frost vpon earth lyke salte, and when it is frosen, it is as sharpe as the pryckes of a thistle. Whē the colde northwinde bloweth harde, Chriſtal commeth of the water. He lighteth downe vpon all the gatheringes togethere of water, and putteth on the waters as a brest plate. He deuoureth the mountaynes, and burneth the wyldernesses: and loke what is grene, he putteth it oute lyke fyre. The medicine of al these is, when a cloude commeth haſtely: and when a dewe cōmeth vpon the heate, it shalbe refreshed agayne. In his word he stilleth the winde: In hys councell he setteth the deape, & (the Lorde) Jesus planted it. They that sayle ouer the sea, tell of the parels, and harmes therof, & when we heare with oure eares, we marueil therat. For there be straunge wonderous workes, diuerse maners of nice beastes and whalfiches. Thorowe him are all thynges set in good order and perfourmed, and in his worde all thinges endure. I speake much, but I can not sufficiently attrayne vnto it, for he him selfe onelye is the perfection of al woordes. We shoulde prayse the Lorde after all oure power, for he is great in all hys workes. The Lorde is to be feared: yea, very greate is he, * and marueilous is his power. Prayse the Lord, and magnifie him as muche as ye may, yet doeth he farre exceade all prayse. * O magnifie him, with al your power, and laboure earneſtlye, yet are ye in no wise able sufficiently to prayse hym. Who hath sene him, that he might tell vs? * Who can magnifie him so greatly as he is? For there are hyd yet greater thynges then these be: As for vs, we haue sene but fewe of hys workes. For the Lorde hathe made all thynges, and geuen wisdome to suche as feare God.

LEt vs cōmende the noble famous mē, & the generation of oure fore elders, & fathers. Many moze glorious actes hath the lord done, & shewed his great power euer sēce the beginning. The noble famous men raygned in their kingdomes, and bare excellent rule. In their wisdom and vnderstandyng, they folowed the councel shewed in the Prophetes. * They ledde the folcke thorowe the councell and wisedome of the Scribes of the people. Wyse sentences are founde in their instruction. They soughte the swetnes and melodye of musycke, and broughte forthe the pleasaunte songes in scripture. They wer rich also, & coulde cōforte and pacifie those that dwelte wyth them. All these were berye noble and honorable men in their generations, and were well reporred of in their tymes. These haue lefte a name behynde them, so that theyr prayse shal alway be spoken of. Afterward there were some, whose remembraunce is gone. * They came to noughte & perysshed, as thoughe they had neuer bene: & became as though they had neuer bene borne: yea, & theyr children also wyth thē. Neuertheles, these are louinge men, whose ryghteousnesse shall neuer be forgotten, but contynue by theyr posterite. Their children are an holy good heritage: Theyr sede endureth faste in the couenaunt. For their sakes shal their children and sede continue for euer, and their prayse shall neuer be putte downe. Their bodies are buryed in peace, but theyr name liueth for euermooze. The people can speake of their wisedome, & the congregacion can talcke of theyr prayse. * Enoch walcked right and acceptably before the Lorde: Therfore was he translated for an exemple of amendement to the generacions. * Noe was a stedfast and ryghteous man, and in the tyme of wrath he became a reconcilynge. Therfore was he lefte a remnaunt vnto the earth, when the flouw came. An euerlastynge couenaūt was made with him, that al fleashe shoulde * perish nomoze with the water. Iesus. Exod.17.c Num.27.b Deut.3.b Iosu.1.a. MAly and stroge in battayle * was Iesus the sonne of Naue, whyche in steade of Moses the prophet was genen to be captayne of the people, whyche accordynge vnto his name was a great saueniere vnto the electe of God, to punyshe the enemyes that rose vp agaist Israel, that Israel might optaine their enheritaunce. O how great, noble, & excellent was he, when he lift vp his hād, & drewe out his swearde agaynst the cities? Who stode so manly before hym? For the Lord hym selfe brought in the enemyes. * Stode not the sunne styl at his commaundemente, & one day was as lōge as two? he called vpō the hyest & most mighty when the enemyes prealed vpō him on euery syde, & the Lord hearde hym with the hayle stones. They smote the Heithenish people mightely, & in fallig down they slewe all the aduersaries, so that the Heathen knewe hys hoost, and al hys defence, that the Lorde hym selfe fought agaynste them, for he folowed vpon the mighty men of them. * In the tyme of Moses also, he and Caleb the son of Jephune, dyd a good worke, whyche stode agaīst the enemyes, wythholde the people from synne, & stylled the wycked murmurynge. * And of fyue hū dyerd thousande people of fore, they two were preserued, to bringe them into the heritage, namely, a lande that floweth wyth mylke and hony. * The Lord gaue strēgth also vnto Caleb, whyche remayned wyth hym vnto hys age: so that he wente vp into the hye places of the lande, and his sede conquered the same for an heritage: that all the chyldren of Israell myghte se, howe good a thing it is, to be obedyente vnto the Lorde. And the iudges or rulers (euerye one after hys name) whose herte wente not a whorynge, nor departed from the Lorde, and that forsoke not the LORD vnfaythfully, whose remēbraunce hathe a good reporte: yea, their bones flourysshe out of their place: and their names shall neuer be chaūged, but honoure remayneth styll with the children of those holy men.) In the lawe of the Lorde ruled he, and iudged the congregation, and the Lord had respecte vnto Jacob. The prophet was founde diligent in his faythfulnes: yea, in his faythfulnes was the faithfulnes of the vision knowne. * He called vpon the Lord the almyghtye, when the enemyes prealed vpon hym on euerye syde, what tyme as he offred the sucklynge lambes. And the Lord thondred from heauen, and made hys voice to be hearde with a greate noyse. He discōfyted the princes of Tyre, & all the rulers of the Philystines. * Before his last ende he made protestacion in the syghte of the Lorde, and his annoynted that he toke neither substaunce nor good of anye man, no not so muche as a shoo, and no man myghte accuse hym. After this he tolde, that hys ende was at hande, and shewed the kynge also hys ende and dearthe, & from the earthe lyft he vp hys voyce in the prophecye, that the vngodly people shoulde perysshe.

AFterwarde in the tyme of king Dauid, there rose vp a prophet called Nathan: For like as the fat is taken awaye from the offeringe, so was Dauid chosen oute of the children of Israell. He toke his pastyme with the lōs, as with kydde, and wyth beares lyke as wyth lambes. * Slewe he not a gyaunte when he was yet but yonge, and toke awaye the rebuke from his people: what time as he tolde the stone in hys hande, and smote downe prouide Goliath with the slynge? For he called vpon the hyest Lorde, whiche gaue him strength in his right hande, so that he ouerthrewe the mighty gyaunte in the battayle, that he myght set vp the horne of his people agayne. * Thus brought he hym to worshyp aboue all princes, and made hym to haue a good reporte in the prayse of the Lorde, that he should weare a crowne of glorye. * For he destroyed the enemyes on euery syde, rooted oute the Philistines his aduersaries, & brake their horne in sunder, lyke as it is broken yet this daye. In all hys workes he praysed the hyest and Hopyest, and ascryebed the honoure vnto hym. Wyth hys whole herte dyd he prayse the Lorde and loued hym that made hym. * He set singers also before the aulter, & in their tune he made swete songes. He ordeyned to kepe the holy dayes worshypfully, and that the solēpne feastes throwoe the whole yeare shoulde be honorably holden, wyth prayisynge the name of the Lorde, and with syngynge by tymes in the mornynge in the Sanctuary. * The Lorde toke awaye hys synnes, and exalted his horne for euer. When he put on the garmente of honoure. and was clothed with all bewtye: when he wente to the holy aulter, to garnyshe the couerynge of the Sanctuary: when he toke the portions oute of the Prieستes hande, he hym selfe stode by the herth of the aulter, + his brethren rounde aboute in ordre. As the braūches of the Cedre tree vpō the moūt Libanus, so stode they rounde aboute hym. And as the braūches of the Olyue tree, so stode all the sonnes of Aaron in theyr glorye.

And that he myght sufficiently perfourme his seruyce vpō the aulter, and garnish the offringe of the hiest God. he stretched oure his hande, and toke of the drincheoffringe, and powred in of the wyne: so he powred vpon the botome of the aulter a good smell vnto the hiest Prince. Then beganne the sōnes of Aarō to synge, and to blowe with trompettes, and to make a greate noyse, for a remembraunce and praise vnto the Lord. Thē were the people afrayed, + fell downe to the earthe vpon their faces, to worshyp the Lorde theyr God, and to geue thankes to the almyghtye God. They songe goodly also with their boyces, so that there was a pleasaunte noyse in the greate house of the Lorde. And the people in their prayer besought the Lord the hiest, that he would be mercyful, tyl the honour of the Lord were perfourmed, thus ended they theyr mynystracion and seruice. Then went he downe and stretched out his hādes ouer the whole multytude of the people of Israell; that they should geue prayse and thankes out of their lyppes vnto the Lorde, and to reioyse in hys name. He beganne yet once also to make prayer, that he myghte openlye shewe the thankesgeuige before the hiest, namely thus: Ogeue prayse + thāke ye all vnto the lord our god, which hath euer done noble and great thinges: which hath encreased oure dayes from ours mothers wombe, and dealte with vs accordynge to his mercye: that he wyll geue vs the ioyfulnes of herte, and peace for oure tyme in Israell. Whiche faithfullye kepeth hys mercye for vs euermore, and alwaye deliuereth vs in oure lealon. There be two maner of people that I abhorre fro my herte: as for the thirde, whom I hate, it is no people. They that sye vpon the mountayne of Samaria, the Philistines, and the folysh people that dwel in Sichimis. I Jesus the sonne of Sirach Eleazarus of Jerusalem, haue

I Will thanche the, O Lord & synge, and prayse the, O God, my Sauioure. I wyll yelde prayse vnto thy name: for thou art my defender & helper, & hast preserued my body frō destruction, frō the snare of crafty tonges, & from the lippes that are occupied with lies. Thou hast bene my helper, frō suche as stode vp against me, & hast deliuered me after the multitude of thy mercy, and for thy holy names sake. Thou hast delyuered me frome the roaryng of them, that prepared them selues to deuoure me, oute of the handes of suche as sought after my lyfe: from the multytude of them that troubled me, and went about to sette fyre vpon me on euery syde, so that I am not brent in the myddest of the fyre: From the depe of hell, from an vncleane tonge, frome lying wordes, from the wicked lyng, and from an vnrighteous tōge. My soule shall prayse the Lorde vnto deathe, for my lyfe draweth vnto hell downeward. They compalled me rounde about on euery syde, and there was no manne to helpe me. I looked about me, if there were any man that would socour me: but there was none. Then thought I vpō thy mercy, O Lorde, & vpon thy actes that thou hast done euer of olde: namelye, that thou delyuerest suche as put their truste in the, and riddest them oute of the handes of the Heathen. Thus lyfte I vp my prayer frome the earthe, and prayed for delyueraunce from death. I called vpon the Lord my father, that he wold not leaue me without helpe, in the daye of my trouble, and in the tyme of the proude: I prayssed thy name contynually, yeldyng honour and thankes vnto it: and so my prayer was heard. Thou sauedest me from destruction, and deliueredest me from the vnrighteous tyme. Therfore wyll I acknowledge and prayse the: and magnyfye the name of the Lorde. When I was yet but yonge, or euer I went astraye, I wished wisedome openlye in my prayer. I came therefore before the temple, and sought her vnto the last. Then flouryshed she vnto me, as a grape that is soone rype. My herte reioysed in her, then wōt my fote the ryght way: yea, frō youthe vp, sought I after her. I bowed downe myne eare and receaued her. I founde me muche wisedome: and prospered greatly in her. Therfore I will ascribe the glory vnto him, that geueth me wisedō: for I am aduised to do therafter. I wil be gelous to cleue vnto the thinge that is good, so that I not be cōfounded. My soule hath wrestled with her, & I haue bene diligent to be occupied in her. I lifte vp myne handes an hye, then was my soule lightened thorow wisedome, that I knowledged my folythnes. I ordred my soule after her, she & I were one hearte frō the begynnyng, & I founde her in clennes. And therfore shal I not be forsakē. My hert longed after her, & I gat a good treasure. Thorow her the Lord hath geuen me a new tonge, wherwith I will prayse him.

+ O come vnto me ye vnlearned, and dwell in the house of wysedome: wythdrawe not your selues from her, but talke and cōmen of these thynges, for your soules are verye thirstye. I opened my mouth, and spake. O come & bye wisedom without money, bowe downe your necke vnder her yocke, & your soule shall receaue wisedome. She is hard at hande, and is content to be founde. Behold, with your eyes, + howe that I haue had but lytle labour, and yet haue founde muche rest. O receaue wisedome, & ye shall haue plenteousnes of syluer & golde in possession. Let your mynde reioyce in his mercye, & be not ashamed of his prayse. Worcke his worcke by times, and he shal geue you your rewarde in due time.

AND these ar the wordes of the boke, which were writte by Baruch the sōne of Neryas, the son of Maasias, the sonne of Sedechias, the sōne of Sedeias, the son of Helchias, at Babilō in the .v. yere, & in the .vij. day of the moneth, what time as the Chaldees toke Ierusalē and brente it vp with fyre. And Baruch did reade the wordes of thys boke, that Iechonias the son of Joachin kyng of Juda might heare: and in the presence of all the people, that were come to heare the boke: yea, and before all the noble kynges sonnes, before the lordes of the counsell and elders: and before the whole people, frome the lowest vnto the hyest: before all them that dwelt at Babilon, by the water of Sody. the lyght of the eyes, and quietnesse. Who euer founde out her place? Or who came euer into her treasures. Where are the Kynges of the Heathen become, and suche as ruled the beastes vpon the earth? They that hadde their pastime with the foules of the ayre, they that hoorded vp siluer & gold (wherin men truste so muche) and made no ende of their gatherynge? What is become of them that coyned syluer, and were so carefull, and coulde not brynge their worckes to passe? They be rooted out, and gone downe to hell, and other men are come vp in their steades. Yong men haue sene lyght, and dwelt vpon earth: but the waye of reformacyon haue they not knowen, nor vnderstande the pathes therof: neyther haue their children receaued it: yea, lyght farre is it from them. It hath not bene heerde of in the lande of Canaan, neither hath it bene sene at Theman. The Agarenes soughte after wysedome, but that which is earthly, lyke as the marchauntes of the lande do. They of Theman are connynge also, and they laboure for wisedome and vnderstandynge: but the waye of tene wisedome they know not: neither do they thyncke vpō the pathes thereof. O Israell howe greate is the house of God? and howe large is the place of his possessyon? * Greate is he, and hathe none ende: yea, and vnmeasurable. What is become of those famouse Gyauntes, that were so greate of bodyes, and so worthy men of warre? Those hadde not the Lorde chosen, neither haue they founde the waye of reformacyon, therefore were they destroyed: and for so much as they hadde no wysedome, they perysshed because of their foolyshnesse. Who hathe gone vp into heauen, to take wysedome there, and brought her downe frome the cloudes? Who hathe gone ouer the sea to fynde her, and hathe chosen her aboue golde, and so brought her hyther? No manne knoweth the waies of wysdome, neither is there anye that can seke oute her pathes. But he that woteth all thynges, knoweth her, & he hath founde her oute wyth hys foreknowledge. * Thys same is he whiche prepared the earth at the begynninge, and filled it wyth al maner of foules and beastes. * When he sendeth out the lyght, it goeth: and when he calleth it againe, it obeyeth him with feare. The starres kepe their watch, & giue their light: yea, and that gladly. Whē he calleth them, they say: here we be. And so with thearfulnesse they shewe light vnto him that made them. * Thys is oure God, and there shall none other be compared vnto hym. It is he that hath founde oute all wisedome, and hathe geuen her vnto Jacob his seruaunte, and to Israel his beloued. * Afterwarde did he shewe him selfe vpon earthe, and dwelte amonge men.

This is the boke of the cōmaundemen tes of God, & the lawe that endureth for euer. All they that kepe it, shall come to life: but such as forsake it, shal come to death. Turne the O Jacob, & take holde of it: walke by this waye thorow his brightnes & shine. Gene not thyne honour to another, & thy worship to a straunge people. O Israel, * howe happy are we, seing that God hath shewed vs suche thynges as are pleasaūt vnto him? Be of good cheare, thou people of God, O thou auncyente Israel. * Howe are ye solde amonge the Heathen, howbeit, not for your vtter destructiō: but because ye prouoked God the LORDE to wrath and displeasure, therfore were ye deliuered vnto youre enemyes: for ye displeased the euerlastynge God that made you, offerynge vnto deuels, and not to God. Ye haue forgotten hym that broughte you vp, and youre nurse haue ye greued, O Jerusalem. When she saw that the wrathe of God was commynge vpon you, she sayd: Herkē O ye that dwel about Sion, for God hathe brought me into great heynes: and why? I se the captiuitie of my people, of my sonnes and daughters, whiche the euerlasting GOD wyll brynge vpon them. With ioye dyd I nourishe them, but nowe must I leaue thē with weping & sorowe. Let no man reioyce ouer me widdow & forlaken: whiche for the sinnes of my children am desolate of euery man. For why? they departed frō the law of God: they wold not know his righteousnes, nor walke in the way of his commaundementes: & as for the pathes of the truth & godlynes, they had no lust to go in them. O ye dwellers about Sion: come, & let vs cal to remēbrance the captiuite, that the euerlasting God hath brought vpō my sonnes & my doughters. * He hath brought a people vpon them from farre, an vncurteous people and of a straunge language: which neither regard the olde, nor pitie the yonge. These haue caryed awaie the deare beloued of my widdowes, leauynge me alone, both desolate and childles. But alas, what can I helpe you? Nowe he that hath brought these plages vpō you, deliuer you also from the handes of your enemyes. Go your way (O my children) go your way: for I am desolate & forlaken. * I haue put of the clothyng of peace, and put vpon me the sacke cloth of prayer, & for my tyme I wyll cal vpō the most hieth. For God is purposed to bringe downe all stoute mountaynes, yea, and all hye rockes, to fill the valleys, & so to make them euen wyth the grounde: that Israel maye be diligente to lyue vnto the honoure of God. ¶ The.bi. Chapter.

A Because of the sinnes that ye haue done against God, ye shalbe led away captiue vnto Babilō, euen of Nabuchodonozor the kynge of Babilon. So whā ye be come into Babilō, ye shal remaine there many yeres, & for a long season: namely seuen generations: & after that will I bring you awaye peaceably from thence. Nowe shall ye se in Babylon, goddes of golde, of siluer, of wodde, and of stone, borne vpon mens shoulders, to cause oute a fearfulnesse before the heathen. But loke that ye do not as the other: be not ye afrayed, and let B not the feare of them ouercome you. Therfore, when ye se the multytude of people worshyppynge theym behynde and before, saye ye in your hertes: O Lord, * it is thou Deut.6.b that oughtest only to be worshipped. Myne Aungell Aungell also shalbe with you, and I my self will care for your soules. As for the timbre of those goddes, the carpenter hathe polysshed them, yea, gilted be they, & layed ouer wyth syluer, yet are they but dayne thynges, and can not speake. Lyke as a wenche that louerth peramours is trymly dect, euē so are these made and hanged wyth golde. Crownes of golde beside haue they a goddes vpon their heades: so the Preestes them selues take gold and siluer frō them: and put it to their own vses: yea, they geue of the same vnto harlottes, and tepynne their wyues with all: agayne, they take it from the whores, and decke theyr goddes Jere.x.b ther with. * yet can not these Goddes deliuer them selues from rust and mothes. Rotted.
When they haue couered them wyth clothynge of purple, they wype theyr faces for the dust of the temple, wherof thee is muche amonge theym. One hathe a scepter in hys hande, as thoughe he were Iudge of the countre: yet can he not slay suche as offende hym. Another hathe a swearde or an axe in his hande, for al that, is he neither able to defende him selfe frome batayle, nor frome murtherers. By thys may ye understande, that they be no goddes: therfore se that ye neyther worshyp them, nor feare thē. For lyke as a dessel that a man breky, is nothyng worth, when it is broken, euen so is it with theyr goddes. When they be set vp in the temple, theyr eyes be full of duste, thorowe the fete of thole that come in. And lyke as the doores are shut in rounde about vpon hym that hath offended the kyng. Or as it were a dead body kept belike the graue. Euen so the priestes kepe the doores with barres & lockes, lest theyr goddes be spoyled with robbers. They set vp candels before thē: (yea, verely & that many) wherof they can not se one, but euen as blockes, so stande they in the temple. It is sayde, that the serpentes and wormes, whiche come of the earth, gnawe out theyr hearties, eating them and theyr clothes also, and yet they fele it not. Theyr faces are blacke thorowe the smoke that is in the temple. The owles, swalowes, and birdes flie vpon them: yea, & the cattes runne ouer their heades. By this ye maye be sure, that they are not goddes, therfore feare thē not. The golde that they haue, is to make them beautyful: For all that, except some bodye dighte of theyr end, they wil geue no thinc: and when they were caste into a fourme, they felte it not. They are boughte for moneye, and haue no breath of life within them. * They muste be borne vpon meanes shoulders, as those that haue no fete: whereby they declare vnto men, that they be nothynge worthe.

* Confounded be they then, that worshyp them, for if they fal to the grounde, they can not ryse vp agayne of them selues. yea, thoughe one helpe them vp, and set them vpryghte, yet are they not able to stand alone, but muste haue proppes to set vnto the like deade men. As for the thynge that is offered vnto them, theyr Prestes selle it, and abuse it: yea, the priestes wiues take therefof, but vnto the sicke and poore they gyue nothynge of it, the women wyth chyld and the menstrous laye handes vpon theyr offrynges: By this ye maye be sure, that they are no goddes, therefore be not ye afrayed of them. From whence commeth it then, that they be called goddes? The women fet before the goddes of syluer, golde, and wood, and the priestes sit in their stooles, hauinge open clothes, whose heades and beardes are shauen and haue nothynge vpon theyr heades: roarynge and cryinge vpon theyr goddes, as men do at a feaste, when one is deade. The priestes also take awaye the garementes of the ymages, and decke theyr wiues and children withal. Whether it be good or euel that anye man do vnto them, they are not able to recompense it: They can neither sette vp a kyng, nor put hym downe. In lyke maner they maye neyther gene eyches, nor rewarde euell. * Though a man make a bowe vnto them, and kepe it not, they wil not require it. They can saue no man frome deathe, neyther delyuer the weake from the mygtyeye. They cannot restore a blynde man to hys syght, nor helpe any man at hys nede. They can shewe no mercy to the widowe, nore do good to the fatherlesse. Theyr goddes of woodde, stone, golde, and syluer, are but euen as other stones, that be hewē of the mountayne. They that worshyp theym, shal be confounded. Howe shoulde they then be taken for goddes? yea, howe dare men call them goddes? And though the Chaldees worshipped thē not, hearing that they were but dōme, and coulde not speake. yet they them selues offre vnto Bel, and woulde fayne haue him to speake: as who say they coulde fele, that may not moue? But when these men come to vnderstandinge, they shal forsake them, for theyr goddes haue no felinge. A greate sorte of women girde with coardes, syt in the streates, and burne oliue beryes. Now if one of them be conueyed awaye, and lye with any suche as come by: she casteth her neyghbours in the teeth, because she was not so worthelye reputed, nor her coarde broken. What so euer is done for them, it is but in bayne and loste. Howe maye it then be thought or sayde, that they are goddes. Carpenters and goldsmythes make them, neither be they any other thynge, but euen what the worcke man wyll make of them. yea, the golde smythes theym selues that make them, are of no longe continaunce. Howe shoulde then the thynges that are made of them, be goddes? Wayne therefore are the thinges (: yea, very shame is it) that they leaue behynde theym for their posterite. For as sone as there cōmeth anye warre or plage vpon them, then the priestes ymagine, where they may hyde the selues with them. How can men thinke then, that they be goddes, which neither may defende them selues from warre, nor delyuer them frome misfortune? For seynge they be but of wood, of stone, of syluer, and of golde: All people and kynges, shall knowe hereafter, that they be bute bayne thinges: yea, it shal be openlye declared, that they be no gods des: but euen the very worckes of mens handes, and that God hathe nothynge to do with them. (It is manifeste then that they are no goddes, but the worckes of mens handes, and no worke of God in theym.) They can set no king in the lande, nor geue raine vnto men. They can geue no sentence of a matter. neyther defende the lande from warre. For they are not able to do so much as a crowe, that flyeth betwixte heaue and earth. When there happeneth a fyre into the house of those goddes of wod, and siluer, and of golde, the priestes will escape & saue them selues, but the goddes burne as the balckes therin. They can not wythstande any kyng or bataile: howe maye it then be thoughte or graunted, that they be goddes? Moreouer, these goddes of wod, of stone, of gold & siluer, may neither defende them selues from theues nor robbers: yea, the very wicked are stronger thē they. These stripe thē out of their apparell, that they be clothed withall, these take these golde & siluer from them, & so get them away: yet cā they not helpe thē selues. Therefore it is muche better for a man, to be a king, & so to shewe his power: or elles a profytable vessell in a house: wherin he that oweth it, might haue pleasure: yea, or to be a doore in a house, to kepe such thinges safe as be therin, thē to be suche a dayne GOD. The Sunne, the Moone, and all the starres, seyng they geue their shine & light, are obedient, & do men good. When the lightening glistereth, all is clere. The winde blowyth in euery countrey: & when God cōmaundeth the cloudes to go rounde aboute the whole worlde, they do as they are bydden, when the fyre is sōe downe frō a bone and cōmaunded, it burneth vpō hilles & woddes. But as for those goddes, they are not lyke one of these thinges, neither in bewte, neither strength.

Wherefore, men should not thinke, nor saye that they be goddes, seyng they can neither geue sentence in iudgemēt, nor do mē good. For so much nowe as ye are sure, that they be no goddes, then feare thē not. For they can neyther speake euell nor good of kynges. They can shewe no tokens in heauen for the heithen, neither shyne as the Sūne, nor geue lyght as the Moone: yea, the vnreasonable beastes are better then they, for they can get them vnder the rofe, & do them selues good. So can ye be certified by no maner of meanes, that they be goddes: ther fore feare them not. For lyke as a scarcrow in a garden of herbes kepeth no thyng, euē so are these goddes of wod, of stuer, & golde: and lyke as a whyte thorne in an orcharde, that euery byrde sitteth vpon: yea, like as a dead body that is cast in the darke, Euen so is it with those goddes of wod, stuer and golde. By the purple and scarlet wythe they haue vpon them, and soone fayde away, ye may vnderstande, that they be no goddes: yea, they them selues shalbe consumed at the last, whiche shalbe a great confusion of the lande. Blessed is the godly mā that hath no ymages, & worshipeth none, for he shalbe farre from reproch.

A THere dwelt a man in Babylon, called Joachim, that toke a wyfe, whose name was Sulanna, the doughter of Helchia, a verye fayre woman, & such one as feared God. Her father and her mother also were godlye people and taughte theyr doughter accordynge to the lawe of Moses. Nowe Joachim (her husbande) was a greate ryche man, and had a fayre orcharde ioynynge vnto hys house. And to him resorted the Jewes comenlye, because he was a man of reputacion among e them. The same yeare were there made two iudges, suche as the Lorde speaketh of: All the wickednesse of Babylon, commeth from the elders (that is) from the iudges, whiche seme to rule the people. These came ofte to Joachims house, and all suche as had anye thynge to do in the lawe, came thither vnto them. Now when the people came agayne at after noone. Sulanna wente into her husbandes orcharde, to walke. The elders seynge this, that she wente in daylye, and walked: they burned for lust to her: yea, they were almost out of theyr wyttes, and cast downe theyr eyes, that they should not se heauen, nor remembre that GOD is a righteous iudge. For they were both wounded with the loue of her, neither durste one shewe another his greefe. And for shame they durst not tell her their inordinate lust, that they would faine haue had to do with her. Yet they layed wayte for her earnestlye from daye to daye, that they myght (at the least) haue a sight of her. And the one sayde to the other: Vp, let vs goe home, for it is dyner tyme. So they went their way from her. When they retourned againe, they came together enquiringe oute the matter betwyxte them selues: yea, the one told the other of hys wicked lust. Then appointed they a tyme, when they might take Sulanna alone. It happened also that they spyed out a conuenient time, when she wēt forth to walke (as her maner was) and no bodye with her, but two maydens, and thoughte * to washe her selfe in the gardē, for it was an hote season: And there was not one person there, except the two elders, that had hid them selues, to behold her. So she sayde to her maydes, go fet me oyle and sope, and shut the orchars doze, that I maye washe me. And they dyd as she bad thē, and shut the orcharde doze, and wente oute them selues at a backe doze to fet the thing that she had commaunded: but Sulanna knewe not that the elders laye there hid within. Now when the maydens were gone forthe, the two elders gat them vp: and ranne vpon her, sayinge: nowe the orcharde dozes are shut, that no man canse vs: we haue a lust vnto the, therefore consente vnto vs & lye with vs. If thou wilt not, we shall bringe a testimonial agaynst the: that there was a yonge felow with the, and that thou hast sent awaye thy maydens from the for the same cause. Sulanna sighed, and sayde: Alas. I am in trouble on euery syde. Thoughe

I folowe your mynde, it wyl be my deathe, & yf I consent not vnto you, I cā not escape your handes. Well, it is better for me, to fal into your hande without the dede doing, then to synne in the syght of the Lord: and with that, she cried out with a loude voice: the elders also cryed out agaynst her. The ranne there one to the orcharde dore, and smote it open. Now when the seruauntes of the house hearde the crye in the orcharde they rushed in at the backe dore: to se what the matter was. So when the elders tolde them, the seruauntes were greatlye ashamed, for why? there was neuer such a reporte made of Susanna. On the morowe after came the people to Joachim her husbande, and the two elders came also, full of mischeuous imaginacion agaynst Susanna, to bringe her vnto death, and spake thus before the people: Sende for Susanna the doughter of Helchias, Joachims wyfe. And immediatly they fet for her. So she came with her father and mother, her children and all her kynred. Now Susanna was a tender person, & meruelous fayre of face. Therfore the wicked men commanded to take of the clothes from her face (for she was couered) that at the leest they myghte so be satisfyed in her beautye. Then her frendes: yea, and al they that knew her, beganne to wepe. These two elders stode Leu. 24.c by in the myddest of the people, and * layed theyr handes vpon the heade of Susanna: which wept, and loked vp towarde heauē, for her heart had a sure truste in the Lorde. And the elders sayd: As we were walking in the orcharde alone, this woman came in with her two maydens: whome she sente away from her, and sparred the orcharde dores: with that a yonge felow (whiche there was hyd) came vnto her: and laye with her. F As for vs, we stode in a corner of the orcharde. And when we saw this wickednes, we ranne to her: and perceaued, that they had medled togethet. But we coulde not holde hym, for he was stroger then we: therfore he oppened the dore and gat hym awaye. Nowe when we had taken this woman, we asked her, what younge felowe this was: but she would not tel vs. This is the matter, and we be witnesse of the same. The comen sorte beleued them, as those that were the elders and iudges of the people, and so they condēned her to death. Susanna cried Susanna prayeth out with a loude voice, and said: O eternal Heb. 4.c, lyuynge God, * thou serchest of secretes, thou that knowest all thynges afore they come to passe: thou wotest, that they haue borne falle witnes against me: and behold, I must dye, where as I neuer dyd any such thynges, as these men haue maliciously inuented agaynst me. And the Lorde hearde her voyce. For when she was led forthe to Daniel. death, the Lorde raysed vp the spirite of a yonge chylde, whose name was Daniel, 2. reg. b.f whiche cryed with a loude voyce: * I am Acte. xx.d cleane from this bloude. Then all the people turned them towarde him, & sayde: What meane these wordes, that thou hast spoken? Daniel stode in the myddest of them, and sayde: Are ye suche fooles, O ye chyldren of Israel, that ye can not discerne nor knowe the trueth? Ye haue here condēned a doughter of Israell vnto deathe, and knowe not the trueth wherfore: Goe syt on iudgement againe, for they haue spoken falle witnesse agaynste her. Wherfore the people turned agayne in al the haste. And the elders (that is the payncipall heades) sayde vnto hym: come sit downe here amonge vs, and shewe vs this matter, seynge God hath geuen the as greate honour as an elder. And Daniel 2. reg. 3 d sayde vnto them. * Put these two aside one from another, and then shal I heare them. When they were put asunder one from another, he called one of them, and sayd vnto hym: O thou olde cankerde carle, that Examinatio hast vsed thy wickednelle so longe: thyne vngracious dedes whyche thou hast done afore, are nowe come to lyghte. For thou hast geuen false iudgementes, thou hast oppressed the innocente, and letten the gylty go free where as yet the Lorde sayeth: Exo. 23.a * The innocente and rygheteous se thou Deu. 17.c slaye not. Well than, yf thou hast sene her tell me vnder what tree sawest thou them talkynge together? He answered: vnder a Mastyche tree. And Daniel sayde: verye well, now thou lyest euen vpon thyne heade. Lo the messaunger of the Lorde hathe receaued the sentence of hym, to cut the in two. Then put he hym aside, and called for the other, and sayde vnto hym: O thou sede of Canaan, but not of Juda: Fayrenesse hath dysceaued the, and lustes hath subuerted thyne heart. Thus dealte ye afore with the doughters of Israel, and they (for feare) consented vnto you: but the doughter of Juda would not abyde youre wyckednesse. Nowe tell me than vnder what tree didest thou take them, speakinge together? He answered: Vnder a pomgranate tree. Then sayde Daniel vnto hym: verye well, nowe thou lyest also euen vpon thyne heade. The messaunger of the Lorde standeth waityng with the swearde, to cut the in two, and to slaye you both. With that, al the whole multitude gaue a great shout, Jos. 12.a and praysed God, * whiche alway deliuered them that put theyr truste in hym. And they came vpon the two elders (whom Daniel had conuycte wyth their owne mouth:

that they had genen falſe wytneſſe) and dealte with them, euen lykewyſe as they woulde haue done with theyr neighbours: Deu.19.d Pro.19.a yea, they dyd * accordynge to the lawe of Moſes, and put them to death. Thus the innocente blonde was ſaued the ſame day. Then Helchiah and his wyfe prayſed god, for their doughter Suſanna, with Joachim her huſbande and all the kynred: that there was no dishonesty founde in her. Frō that daye forthe was Daniel had in great reputacion in the ſyght of the people. (And his Aſtyages was laied with hys fathers, and Cirus of perſia reygned in hys ſtede.)

Daniel dyd eate at the kiges table, & was had in reuerence abone all his frēdes. There was at Babylon an ymage, called Bel: & ther were ſpēt vpon hym euery day .xii. cakes .xl. ſheype, & .vi. great pottes of wine. Daniel ſmiled, & ſaid: O king, diſceaue not thy ſelfe: for this is but made of claye within, & of metal without, * neither eateth he euer any thing. Thō the king was wroth, & called for his prieſtes, & ſaid vnto thē: If ye tel me not who is this, that eateth vp theſe expenſes, ye ſhal dye: but if ye can certifie me that Bel eateth thē, then Daniel ſhall die, for he hath ſpoken blaſphemy againſt Bel.

And in that ſame place there was a great Dragon, whiche they of Babilon worſhipped. And the kynge ſayd vnto Daniel, ſayeſt thou that thys is but a God of metall alſo? lo, he lyueth, he eateth and drinketh: ſo that thou, canſte not ſaye, that he is no lyuynge God, therfore worſhip him. the true lyuynge God: as for this he is not the GOD of lyfe. But geue me leaue (O kynge) and I ſhall deſtroye thys Dragon without ſwearde or ſtaffe. The kynge ſaid. I geue the leaue. Then Daniel toke pytch, fatte and heayre wull, and dyd ſethe them together, and made lompes therof: this he put in the Dragons mouthe, & ſo the Dragon burſt in ſonder: and Daniel ſayde: lo there is he whome ye worſhypped. When they of Babylon hearde that, they toke greate indignacion and gathered them together againſt the kynge, ſayinge: The

kynge is become a Jewe and he hathe destroyed Bell, he hathe slayne the Dragon, and put the Prestes to deathe. So they came to the kynge, and sayde: let vs haue Daniel, or els we wil destroy the and thine house. Nowe when the kynge sawe, that they rushed in so sore vpon hym, and that Dan.6.c. necessyte constrayned hym, * he delyuered Daniel vnto them: which cast hym into the Daniel put in the lyons denne, where he was syxe dayes. In lyons. the denne there were seuen lyons, and they had geuē them euery daye two bodyes and two shepe: which then were not geuen thē, to the intente that they might deuour Daniel. There was in Jewrye a Prophet called Abacuc. whiche had made potage, and Abacuc. brake in a depe platter, & was goig into the felde, for to bringe it to the reapers. But the Angell of the Lorde sayde vnto Abacuc go carye the meate that thou hast into Babylon, vnto Daniel, which is in the lyōs denne. And Abacuc sayd: Lord, Ezec.8.a I neuer sawe Babilon: and as for the dēne, I knowe it not. * Then the Angell of the Lorde toke hym by the top, and bare hym by the heare of the heade, and (thorowe a myghtye wynde) set hym in Babilon vpon the denne. And Abacuc cried, sayinge: O 4.Re.17.a Daniel * thou seruaunt of God, haue, take the breakefaste, that God hath sente the. And Daniel sayde: O GOD, haste thou thoughte vpon me? wel, thou neuer failest them that loue the. ¶ The prayer of Manasses kinge of Juda, when he was holden captyue in Babylon.

O Lorde almyghtye, God of our fathers, Abrahā, Jsaac and Jacob, and of the righteous sede of them whyche hast made heauen & earth, with al the ornament therof, whiche hast ordened the sea, by the word of thy commaundemente: which hast shut vp the depe, and hast sealed it for thy fearfull and laudable name, whiche all men feare, and tremble before the face of thy vertue, and for the anger of thy threatenynge, the whyche is importable to sinners. But the mercy of thy promes is greate and vnsearcheable: for thou arte the Lorde God moste hyghe, aboue all the earth, longesuffringe, & exceedinge mercyfull, and repentaunte for the malyce of men. ¶ The fyrste Chapter.

A Fter that Alexãder the ſon of Philippe, king of Macedonia went forth of the lãde of Cethim, & ſlewe Darius king of the Perſians, and Medes: it happened, that he toke great warres vpõ him, wan very many ſtrong cities, & ſlew many kinges of the earth: goynge thoꝛow to the endes of the worlde, and gettinge manye ſpoyles of the people: In ſo muche, that the worlde ſtode in great awe of him, * and therfoꝛe was he pꝛoude in his heart. Nowe when he hadde gathered a mighty ſtronge hooſte, and ſubdued the landes and people with their pꝛinces, ſo that they became tributaries vnto him: he fel ſycke. And when he perceaued that he muſt nedes die, he called foꝛ hys noble eſtates (whiche had bene bꝛoughte vp with him of chyldꝛen) * and parted hys kyngdome amonge them, while he was yet alyue. So Alexander raygned. xii. yeare, and then died. After hys deathe fell the kyngdome vnto hys pꝛynces, & they optayned it euerye one in his rowme, and cauſed them ſelues to be crowned as kinges: and ſo did their children after thẽ many yeares, and muche wickednes increaſed in the worlde. Oute of theſe came the vngracious roote, noble Antiochus the ſonne of Antiochus the kynge (* whiche had bene a pledge at Rome) and he raygned in the C. xxxvii. yeare of the empyre of the Grekes. In thoſe dayes went there out of Iſrael wicked men, whiche moued much people with their counceil, ſayinge: * Let vs go and make a couenaunte with the heathen, that are rounde aboute vs: * foꝛ ſence we departed from them, we haue had muche ſoꝛowe. So thys deuice pleaſed them well, and certayne of the people tooke vpon them foꝛ to go vnto the kyng, whiche gaue them licence to doe after the ordinaunce of the heathen. * Then ſet they vp an open ſcole (at Ieruſalem) of the lawes of the heathen, and were no mooze circumciſed: But foꝛſoke the holye teſtament, and ioyned them ſelues to the heathen, * and were cleane ſolde to do miſchiefe. So when Antiochus beganne to be mighty in hys kyngdome, he went about to optayne the lande of Egypte alſo, that he myghte haue the dominion of two realmes. * Vpon thys entred he into Egypte with a ſtronge hooſte, with charettes, elephantes, hoꝛſemen, and a greate numbze of ſhyppes, and beganne to warre agaynſt Ptolomy the kynge of Egypte. But Ptolomy was afrayed of hym, and fled: and manye of hys people were wounded to death. Thus Antiochus wanne many ſtronge cities, and tooke awaye greate good oute of the lande of Egypte. * And after that Antiochus had ſmitten Egypte, he turned agayne in the. C. xliii. yeare, and went towarde Iſraell, and came vp to Ieruſalem, with a mighty people: and entred pꝛoudelye into the ſanctuarye, and toke awaye the golden aulter, the candelſticke, & al the oꝛnamentes thereof, the table of the ſhewbꝛeade, the powꝛynge veſſel, the chargers, the golde ſpones, the bayle, the crownes, and golden apparel of the temple, and bꝛake downe al. He toke alſo the ſiluer, and golde, the pꝛecious Jewels, and the ſecrete treaſures that he found. And when he had taken away al together, he cauſed a greate murther of men, and ſo fulfylled hys malycious pꝛide, he departed into his owne lãd. Thus there aroſe great heuines and miſerye, in all the lande of Iſraell. * The pꝛinces and the elders of the people mourned, the yonge men and the maydens were deſſled, and the fayze beutye of womẽ was chaunged: the bꝛydegrome and the bꝛyde toke them to mournynge: The lande and thoſe that dwelt therin, was moued: foꝛ all the houſe of Jacob was bꝛoughte to confuſion. * After two yeares the kynge ſent his chiefe treaſurer vnto the cities of Iuda, which came to Ieruſalẽ with a greate multitude of people, ſpeakynge peaceable wozdes vnto them, but al was diſceate: foꝛ whõ they hadde geuen hym credence, he fell ſodenly vpon the citie, and ſmote it ſooze, and deſtroyed muche people in Iſraell. * And when he had ſpoyled the citie, he ſet fyze on it, caſtynge downe houſes and walles on euerye ſide. The women and their childꝛen toke they captiue, and led awaye theyꝛ cattel. Then buylded they the citie of Dauid, with a great and thicke wal, and with mighty towzes, and made it a ſtronge hold foꝛ them. Welyde all thys, they ſet wicked people, and vngodlye men to kepe it, ſtoared it with weapons and vitayles: gathered the goodes of Ieruſalem, and layed them vp there: thus became it a thꝛuth caſtell. And this was done to lay wayte foꝛ the people that went into the Sanctuarye, and foꝛ the cruell deſtruction of Iſraell. Thus they ſhedde innecent bloude on euerye ſyde of the Sanctuarye, and vnclene it: In ſo muche that the citezins were fayne to departe, and the citie became an habytacion of ſtraungers, beynge deſolate of her owne ſede, foꝛ her owne natiues were fayne to leaue her. * Her Sanctuarye was clene waſted, her holy dayes were tourned into mournynge, her Sabathes were hadde in deriſion, and her honoure bꝛoughte to nought. Loke howe greate her glozye was afoze, ſo greate was her confuſion, and he loye tourned into sorowe. * Antiochus also 2.Ma.6.a the kinge, sente oute a commission vnto all hys kyngdome, that all the people shoulde be one. Then they lefte euery man his lawe, and all the heathen agreed to the cõmaun-E dement of kynge Antiochus: yea, manye of the Israelites consented there vnto, offe-rynge vnto Idols, and defilynge the Sabbath. So the kinge Antiochus sẽt his mes-saungers with his commission vnto Jerusalem, and to al the cities of Juda: That they shoulde folowe the lawes of the heathen, & forbad eyther burntoffrynge, meatofferynge, or peaceofferinge, to be made in the temple of God, and that there shulde no Sabboth nor the feaste daye be kepte: But commaunded, that the Sanctuarye, and the holye people of Israell shoulde be defiled. He commaunded also, that ther shulde be set vp other aulters, temples, & Idols: to offre vp swines fleash, and other vnclene beastes: that men shoulde leaue their children vncircumcised, to defile their soules with al maner of vnclenesse, and abhomi-F nacions: that they might so forget the law, and chaunge all the holye ordinaunces of God: and that whosoeuer wolde not do ac-cordinge to the commaundemente of kynge Antiochus, shoulde suffre deathe: In lyke maner commaunded he thorowout all hys realme, and sette rulers ouer the people, for to compel them to doe these thinges, commaundinge the cities of Juda, to doe sacrifice vnto Idolles. Then wente the people vnto the heathen by heapes, forsoke the lawe of the Lorde, and committed mache euell in the lande: yea, and chased out the secrete Israelites, whiche had de hyd them selues in corners and priuye places. The xv. day of the moneth Casleu, in the. cxlv yeare, set kynge Antiochus an abhominable Idol of desolacion vpon the aulter of God, and they builded aulters thorowout al the cityes of Juda, on euerye syde, before the doores of the houses, and in the streates: wher they brent incense, and did sacrifice.

Jer.36.c. * And as for the bookes of the lawe of God, they brent them in the fyre, and rente them in peces. What soeuer he was that had a boke of the Testament of the Lorde, founde by hym: yea, whosoeuer endeuoured hym selfe to kepe the lawe of the Lorde, G the kinges commaundemẽt was that they shoulde put hym to deathe. And thorowe hys auctoritie, they executed these thinges euery moneth, vpon the people of Israell 2.Ma.6.b that were founde in the cities. * The fyue and twenty daye of the moneth, what time as they did sacrifyce vpon the aulter (which Goode in the steade of the aulter of the LORDE) accordynge to the commaundemente of kynge Antiochus, they putte cer-tayne women to deathe, whiche had caused their childzen to circumcise: Not only that, but they hanged vp the childzen by the neckes thorowout all their houses, and slewe the circumcisers of them. Yet were there many of the people of Israell, whyche determined in them selues, that they wold not eate vncleane thinges: but chose rather to suffre deathe, then to be defyled wyth vncleane meates. So because they wolde not breake the blessed law of god they wer cruelly slaine. And this great tirany increased very sore vpon the people of Israell.

¶ The. ii. Chapter.

IN those dates, ther did stãde vp one Ma- A thathias, the sonne of Simeon the priest (out of the kinred of Joaris) frõ Jerusalẽ, & dwelt vpõ the mount of Modin, & had. v. sonnes: John called Goddis, Simeon called Thassi, Judas, other wise called Machabe-us, Eleazer, other wise called Abarõ, & Jonathas, whose surname was Apphus. These sawe the euel, that was done amonge the people of Juda, and Jerusalem. And Ma-thathias sayde: Wo is me, alas that euer I was borne: to se this misirye of my people, and the pitefous destruction of the holy Ci-tie, and thus to syt so styl, it beinge delyue-red into the handes of the enemyes. * Her 1.Ma.1.d Sanctuarye is come into the power of straungers: her temple is, as it were a man that hath loste hys good name: Her precious ornamentes are caryed awaye captiue.
Her olde men are slayne in the streates, and her yonge men are fallẽ thorow the sweerd of the enemies. What people is it, that hath not some possession in her kyngdome?
Or who hathe not gotten some of her spoy-les? All her glorye is taken awaye. She was a free woman, and nowe she is become an handemayden. Beholde, oure Sanctuarye, out bewtie, and honoure is wasted awaye, and defiled by the Gentyles. What helpeth it vs then to lyue? And Mathathias rent his clothes, he and hys sonnes, and put sackecloth vpon them, and mourned verye sore. Thẽ came the men thither, whiche were sent of kynge Antiochus, to compel suche as were fled into the citie of Mo-din, for to do sacrifice, and to burne incense vnto Idols, & to forsake the lawe of God.
So, many of the people of Israell consented and enclined vnto them, but Mathethias and hys sonnes remayned stedfaste.
Then spake the commissyoners of kynge Antiochus, and sayde vnto Mathathias: Thou arte a noble man, of hye reputacion and great in this citye, hauinge fayre children and brethrẽ. Come thou therfore first, and fulfyll the kynges commaundemente, lyke

lyke as all the heathen hane done: yea, and the men of Juda, and suche as remayne at Jerusalem: so shalt thou and thy children be in the kinges fauour, and inriched with golde, siluer, and great rewardes. Mathathias aunswered, and spake wyth a loude voyce. Though al nacions obey the kynge Antiochus, and fall away euery man frome kepinge of the law of their fathers: though they consent to his commaundementes, yet will I, and my sonnes, and my brethren, not fall frome the lawe of oure fathers. GOD forbide we shoulde, that were not good for vs, * that we shoulde forsake the lawe and Acte. 5. b. ordinaunces of God, and to agee vnto the commaundement of king Antiochus. Ther fore, we wyl doe no suche sacrifice, neyther Prou. 4 c breake the statutes of oure lawe, * to goe another waye. And when he hadde spoken these wordes, ther came one of the Jewes, whiche openly in the sight of all dyd sacrifyce vnto the Idols vpon the aulter, in the citie of Modin, accordinge to the kynges commaundemente. Whē Mathathias sawe C this, it greued him at the heart, so that his raynes shoke withall, and hys wrathe kindled for very zele of the law. Wyth that, he start vp, and kylled the Jewe beside the aulter: yea, and slewe the kinges comissioner, that compelled him to doe sacrifice, and Nu. 25, b destroyed the aulter at the same time: suche a zele had he vnto the lawe of God, * lyke as Phinehes did vnto Zambri the sonne of Salomi. And Mathathias cryed wyth a loude voyce, whosowe the citie, sayinge: Whosoeuer is feruent in the lawe, and wyll kepe the couenaunte, lette him folowe me. 2. Ma. 5. c * So he and his sonnes fled into the mountaynes, and left al that euer they hadde in the citye. Manye other godlye men also departed into the wildernesse with their children, their wiues, and their catell, and remayned there: For the tirannye encreased sore vpon them. Nowe when the kynges D seruauntes, and the hoaste, whiche was at Jerusalem in the citie of Dauid, hearde that certayne men had broken the kinges commaundemente, & were gone their waye to the wildernesse into secrete places, and that there wer many departed after them: they folowed vpon them, to fyghte agaynste them in the Sabboth day, and sayde. Wyl ye yet rebell? Gette you hence, and doe lyke commaundement of kynge Antiochus, and ye shall lyue. They aunswered: * We wyll Josu. 1. c. not go forth, neither wyll we do the kynges commaundemente, to defyle the Sabboth day. Then beganne they to fyght agaynste them, neuertheles, they gaue them none other answere, neither caste they one stone at them, nor made fast their priuy places, but sayde: We wyll dye all in oure innocencye, heauen and earthe shall testifye wyth vs, that ye put vs to death wrongeously. Thus they fought agaynste them vpon the Sabbothe daye, slewe bothe men & catell, their wiues, and their children, to the numbre of E a thousande people. When Mathathias and his frendes hearde this, they mourned for them eyghte sore, and sayde one to another: If so be that we all doe as oure brethren haue done, and fighte not for our lyues and for oure lawes agaynst the heathē: then shall they the soner rote vs oute of the earthe. So they concluded amonge theym selues at the same time, sayinge: whatsoeuer he be that commeth to make batayle with vs, vpon the Sabboth daye, we wyll fight agaynst him, and not dye all, as oure brethren that were murthered so haynously. Vpon this came the Synagoge of the Jewes vnto them, stronge men of Israell, all suche as were feruente in the lawe. And all they that were fledde for persecution, came to helpe them, and to stande by them. In so muche that they gathered an hoaste of men: and slewe the wicked doers in their gelousye: And the vngodly men in theyr F wrathe. Some of the wycked fled vnto the Heathen, and escaped. Thus Mathathias and his frendes wente aboute, and destroyed the aulters, and circumcised the children, that had not yet receaued circumcision: as manye as they founde within the coastes of Israel: And folowed myghtelye vpon the children of pryde, and thys acte prospered in their handes: In so much, that they kepte the lawe agaynste the power of the Gentyles and the kynges, and gaue not ouer their dominion vnto wycked doers. After this, when the tyme drew on fast, that Mathathias shoulde dye, he sayde vnto hys sonnes: Nowe is pryde & perfecution increased, nowe is the time of destruction, and wrathefull displeasure: Wherefore (O my sonnes) be ye feruente in the lawe, and ieoparde youre lyues for the Testamente of the fathers, and cal to remembraunce what actes oure fathers did in their time, so shal ye receaue great honoure, and an euerlastynge name. * Remembre Abraham, was Jacob. 2. d not he founde faythfull in temptation, Rom. 4. a and it was reckened vnto hym for rygh- Gen. 22 d teousnes? * Joseph in time of hys trou- Heb. 11. d ble kepte the commaundemente, and was Ecc. 44. c made a Lorde of Egypte. * Phinehes 1 Ge. 41. f our father, was so feruent for the honoure * Nu 25 c of God, that he optayned the couenaunte Ecc. 45. f of an euerlastynge Priesthode. 1 Josue 1 Nu 27 d for fulfyllynge the worde of God was made Josue. 1. a the captayne of Israell. * Caleb bare re- * Nu. 14 g corde before the congregacion, and receaued ye do the thynges that are commaūded you all thoſe that fauoure the lawe, & ſe that ye auenge the wronge of your people, and recompence the heathen agayne, and applye and was layed by his fathers: & died in the C. and. xlvi. yeare at Modin, where hys ſonnes buryed him in his fathers ſepulcre, and all Iſraell made greate lamentacyon for hym.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

A Then ſtode vp Judas Machabeus in Joſe. ca 8 his fathers ſteade, & all hys brethren 9. lib. 12. helped him: & ſo did all they that helde anti. with his father, & fought with cherefulnes for Iſraell. So Judas gat his people great honour: He put on a breſt plate as a giaūt, and arayed hym ſelfe wyth hys harneſſe, and defended the hoſte wyth hys ſwearde.
pſa. ci.b. In his actes he was like a Lyon, and as a Lyons whelpe roarynge at his praye. * He 2.ma.8.a was an enemye to the wycked, and hunted them oute: * and brent vp thoſe that vexed hys people: So that hys enemyes fledde for feare of him, & al the workers of vngodly-nes wer put to trouble: ſuch lucke & proſpe rite was in his hand. Thys greued diuerſe kinges, but Jacob was greatly reioyſed tho row his actes, & he gat him ſelf a greate name for euer. He went thorowe the cyties of Juda, deſtroying the vngodly out of them, turning away the wrath frō Iſraell, & exten ning ſuche as were oppreſſed: & the fame of him wēt vnto the vttemoſt part of the erth.
Thē Appolonius (a prynce of Syria) gathe red a mighty great hoſt of the Hethen, and oute of Samaria, to fyghte agaynſte Iſraell. Whiche when Judas perceaued, he wente forth to mete him, fought with him, ſlewe him, and a great multitud with him, the remnaunt fledde, and he toke their ſub-ſtaunce. Judas alſo toke Appollonius own ſwearde, and foughte wyth it all hys lyfe B longe. Nowe when Seron (another prynce of Siria) hearde ſaye, that Judas had gathered vnto him the congregacion & church of the faythfull, he ſayde: I wyll get me a name, and a prayſe thorowoute the realme: for I wil go fighte wyth Judas, and them that are with hym, as many as haue deſpi-ſed the hynges commaundemente. So he made him ready, and there went wyth him a greate myghtye hoſt of the vngodly, to ſtand by him, and to be auenged of the chil dren of Iſraell. And when they came nye vnto Bethoron, Judas went forth agaynſt them with a ſmall company. And when his people ſaw ſuch a great hoſte before them, they ſayde vnto Judas: Howe are we able (beynge ſo fewe) to fyght againſte ſo great a multitude, and ſo ſtronge, ſeynge we be ſo weery, and haue faſted all this day?
* But Judas ſayde: It is a ſmall matter 1.re.14 d for many to be ouercome wyth fewe: yea, there is no differēce to the God of Heauen, to deliuer by a greate multitude or by 2.pa 25 b a ſmall companye: * for the victorye of the him ſelfe ſhal deſtroy them before our face: therfore be not ye afraied of them. As ſoone as he had ſpoken theſe wordes, he leapt ſodenly vpō them. Thus was Seron ſmitē, and his hooſte put to flight, and Judas folowed vpon them beyonde Bethoron vnto the playne felde: where there were ſlayne eyght hundreth men of theim, and the re-ſidue fled into the lande of the Philiſtines.

Then all the Heathē on euery ſide were a-fraied for Judas & his brethren: ſo that the Neuertheles when he sawe, that there was not money ynoughe in hys treasuryes, and that thorowe the discorde and persecucyon, which he made in the lande (to put downe the lawes that had bene of olde tyme) hys custames and tributes of the lande were mynisshed. he feared that he was not able for to beare the costes and charges anye longer, nor to haue suche giftes, to geue so liberallye as he dyd afore, more then the kynges that were before hym. Wherefore, he was 1.Ma.6 a heuy in his mynde, and thought * to go into Perssides, for to take trybutes of the lande, and so to gather muche money. So he lefte Lysias (a noble man of the kynges blonde) to ouerse the kynges busines, from the water Euphrates, vnto the borders of E Egypte: and to kepe well his sonne Antiochus, tyll he came agayne. Moreouer, he gaue him halfe of his hoost, and Elephantes, commytted vnto hym euerye thyng of his mynde, concerning those whiche dwelt in Juda and Jerusalem: that he shoulde sende oute an armye againste theym, to destroye and to rote out the power of Israell, and the remnaũt of Jerusalem: to put oute theyr memoyrall frome that place, to sette straungers for to inhabyte all their quarters, and to parte theyr lande amonge thẽ:

2.ma.8 d * And Lisias chose vnto hym Ptolomy, the sonne of Dozymenus, Nicanor, and Gozgias, mighty men, and the kinges frẽdes. These he sent with. xl. thousande fote men and vii. thousande hozsemen, for to go into the lande of Juda, and to destroye it, as the kynge commaunded. So they wente forth with al their power, and came to Emmaus into the playne felde. When the marchauntes hearde the rumour of them, they and their seruauntes toke very muche syluer and golde, for to bie the chyldren of Israell to be their bonde menne. There came vnto theym also yet mo menne of warre on euery syde, out of Siria, and from the Pa-
F lestines. Nowe when Judas and hys brethren sawe that trouble increased, and that the hoost drew nie vnto theyr borders, consideringe the kinges wordes whiche he cõmaunded vnto the people: namelye, that they shoulde vtterlye waste and destroye them: They sayde one to another: Let vs redeme the decaye of oure people, lette vs fight for our folke, and for oure Sanctuarye. Then the congregacyon were soone ready gathered to fighte, to praye, and to make supplicaciõ vnto God for mercy and grace. * As for Jerusalem, it laye boyde, and was as it had bene a wildernesse. 1.mac.1.b There wente no man in nor out at it, and the Sanctuarye was troden downe. The aleauntes kepte the castell, there was the habitacyon of the heathen. The mirthe of Jacob was taken awaye, the pype and the harpe was gone from amonge theim. The Israelites gathered theym together, and came to Maspha before Jerusalem: for in maspha was the place * where they praied 1.reg.7 b

For thy Sanctuarie is troden downe and defiled, thy Prestes are come to heuinesse and dyshonoure: and beholde, the heathen are come together, for to destroye vs. Thou knowest what thinges they ymagine agaynste vs. Howe maye we stande before theym, excepte thou (O God) be oure helpe? They blewe oute the trompet also with a loude voyce.

And Judas sayde: Arme youre selues, be strong, O my children, make you readye against to morowe in the morynge, that ye may fight with these people, which are agreed together to destroy vs and oure sanctuary. arose arose Judas to smyte the chiefe and prynce: pall of the kynges hooste at Emmaus, for the armye was not yet come together. In the meane season came Gorgias by nyghte vnto Judas tentes: and when he founde no man there, he sought them in the mountaynes, and thoughte they had bene fled away because of him. But when it was day, Judas shewed him selfe in the felde with thre thousande men onely, which had neither hat nelle nor swerdes to their myndes. But on the other syde, they sawe that the heathen were myghtie and well harnelled, and theyr horsemen abonte theym, and all these wel experte in feates of warre. Then sayde Judas to the menne that were wyth hym: Feare not ye the multytude of theym, be not afrayed of theyr vyolent runnynge: remembre, howe oure fathers were delyuered

Euen so let vs also crie nowe towarde heauen: and the Lord shall haue mercy vpon vs, and remembre the couenaunte of oure fathers, yea, and destrope thys hooste before oure face thys daye: And all the heathen shall know, that it is God hym selfe, whiche delyuereth and saueth Israel. Then the heathen lyfte vp theyr eyes: and when they sawe that they were commynge agaynste them, they wente oute of their tentes into

For they folowed vpon them vnto Azaremoth, and into the feldes of Idumea towarde Azot and Jamma: so that there were slaine of them vpon a thre thousande men. So Judas turned agayne wyth hys hoste, and sayd vnto the people: Be not gredye of the spoiles, we haue yet a battaile to fyght: for Gorgias & his hoste are here by vs in the mountaynes, but stande ye fast agaynst oure enemyes, and ouercome them, then maye ye safelye take the spoiles. As Judas was speakyng these wordes, beholde there appeared one parte of them vpon the mounte. But whan Gorgias sawe that they of hys partye were fled, and the tentes brent vp, (for by the smoke they myght vnderstand what was done) they perceauing this, were very sore afrayed: and when they sawe also that Judas and hys hooste were in the feld redye to stryke battayle, they fled euerychone into the lande of the Heathen. So Judas turned agayne to spoyle the tentes, where they gatte muche gold and syluer, precious stones, purple and great riches. Thus they went home, and songe a Psalme of thankesgeuynge, and praysed God in heauen: Psal.107.a * for he is gracyous, & his mercy endureth for euer: And so Israell hadde a great victory in that daye. Now al the Heathē that escaped, came and tolde Lisias euery tyng as it happened. Wherfore Lisias was sore afraied, and greued in his mynde, because Israel had not gotten suche misfortune as he would they shonde, neither as the kynge commaunded. The nexte yeare folowynge, gathered Lisias thre score thousande chosen men offote, and fyue thousande horsemen, to fighte agaynste thē. So they came into Jewrye, and pyched theyr tentes at Bethoron, where Judas came agaynste them with ten thousande men. And when he sawe so greate and myghtie an hoost, he made his prayer, & sayde: Blessed be thou (O Sauioure of Israell) * whiche hyddest destroy the violent power of the Gyaunte, in the hande of thy seruaunte Dauid, * and gauest the hoost of the heathen into the hande of Jonathas (the sonne of Saule) and of hys weapon bearer.

Put this hooste now into the hande of thy people of Israell, and let them be confounded in their multitud and horsemen. Make them afrayed, and discomforte the boldnes of their strengthe, that they maye be moued thorow their destruction. Caste theym down thorow the sweard of thy louers, thā shall all they that knowe thy name, prayse the with thanckesgeuynge. So they stroke the battayle, and there were slayne of Lisias hoost, fyue thousande men. Then Lisias seynge the discomfeytynge of hys men, and the manlynesse of the Jewes, howe they were readye, eyther to lyue or to dye lyke menne: He wente vnto Antioche, and chose oute men of warre: that whan they were gathered together, they myghte come agayne into Jewrye. Then sayde Judas and hys brethren: beholde, oure enemyes are discomfyted: Let vs nowe go vp, to clense & to repayre the Sanctuary. * Vpon 2.ma.x.a this, all the hoost gathered them together, and wente vp into mounte Sion. Nowe when they sawe the Sanctuary layed waste, the auiter defyled, the dores brent vp, the shrubbes growynge in the courtes, like as in a wod or vpon mountaynes: yea, & that the Priestes Celles were broken downe:
They rente theyr clothes, made greate lamentacyon, caste asshes vpon their heades, fell downe flatte to the grounde, made a great noyse with the trompettes, and cryed towarde heauen. Then Judas appoynted certayne men to fight agaynst those whiche were in the castell tyll they had clensed the Sanctuarye. So he chose Priestes that were vndefyled, suche as had pleasure in the the lawe of God: And they clensed the sanctuarye, and bare oute the defyled stones into an vncleane place. And for so muche as the aultre of burntoffrynges was vnhalowed, he tooke aduisemente, what he mighte do with all: So he thought it was best to destroye it (lest it shoulde happen so doe them anye shame) for the heathen had defyled it, and therefore they brake it, downe. As for the stones, they layde them

They made new ornamentes, and brought the candelsticke, the aultre of incense, and the table into the temple. The incense layed they vpon the aultre, and lyghted the lampes which were vpon the candelsticke, that they mighte bourne in the temple. They set the shewbreade vpon the table, & hanged vp the vayle, and set vp the tem-

The same daye was it set vp agayne with songes, pipes, harpes & cymbales. And all the people fell vpon their faces, worshipping & thanking the god of heauē,

They decket the temple also with crownes and shyldes of golde, and halowed the portes and celles, and hanged doores vpon them. Thus there was very greate gladnesse amonge the people, because the blasphemye of the heathen was put awaye. So Judas and his brethrē

And at the same time buylded they vp the mounte Sion with hie walles and stronge towres rounde about: lest the Gentyles shoulde come and tread it downe, as they did afore. Therfore Juda set men of warre in it, to kepe it:

agaynst those, whiche were at Arabathane 2.Ma.5.c (for they dwelte rounde about the Israelites) where he slewe and spoyled a greate multitude of them. He thought also vpon the malyce and vnfaythfulnesse of the chyldren of Bean, howe they were a snare and stoppe vnto the people, and howe they layed wayte for them in the hye waye: wherefore, he shut thē vp in two towres, & came vnto them, destroyed them vtterlye, and brente vp their towres, with all that were in them. Afterwarde wente he agaynst the childzen of Ammon, wherof he founde a myghtye power and a great multitude of people, with Timothy their captayne. So he stroke manye battayles wyth them, whiche were distroyed before hym.
And when he hadde slayne them, he wanne H Gazer the citie, with the townes belonginge thereto, and so tourned agayne into Jewrye. The heathen also in Galilea gathered them together, agaynst the Israelites that were in their quarters, to slaye them: But they fled to the castell of Mathemā, and sent letters vnto Judas & his brethren, sayinge: the heathen are gathered agaynst vs, on euery side, to destroye vs, and now they make thē ready for to come & lay syege to the castel, whervnto we are fled, and Timothy is the captayne of their hoostes: come therfore, and deliuer vs oute of theyr handes: for there is a great multitude of vs slayne all ready. Yea, and oure brethren that were at Tubin, are slayne & destroyed (welnye a thousande menne) and theyr wyues, their children, and theyr goodes haue the enemies ledde awaye captyue. Whyle these letters were yet a readynge: beholde, there came other messaungers frome Galile, with rente clothes: Which tolde euen the same tidinges, and sayde: that they of Ptolomais, of Tyrus, and of Sydon, were gathered agaynste them, and that al Galile was fylled wyth enemyes, to destroye Israell. * When Judas and the people 2.Ma.8. heard this, they gathered together (a great congregacion) to deuise, what they mighte do for their brethren, that were in trouble, and besieged of their enemyes. And Judas sayde vnto Simon hys brother: Chose thē out certayne men: and go deliuer thy brethren in Galile: As for me and my brother Jonathas, we wyll goe into Gileadithim. So he lefte Josephus the sonne of Zacharey, and Azarias to be Captaines of the people, and to kepe the remnaunt of the host in Jewrye, and commaunded them, sayinge: Take the ouerlight of this people, and see that ye make no warre agaynste the heathen, vntill the tyme that we come agayne: And vnto Simon he gaue three thousande men, for to go into Galile, but Judas hym selfe hadde eyghte thousande in Gileadithim. Then wente Simon into Galile, and stroke diuers barrelles with the heathen: whome he discomfited, and folowed vpon them vnto the porte of Ptolomais. And there were slayne of the heathen almoste. iii. thousande men. So he toke the spoyles of them, and caryed away the Israelites, that were in Galile and Arbatis, with their wiues, their children, and al that they had, and brought them into Jewrye with greate gladnesse. Judas Machabeus also and hys brother Jonathas went ouer Jordane, and trauayled. iii. dayes iourney in the wyldernes: Where the Nebuthees mette them, and receaued them louyngly, and tolde them euery thynge that had happened vnto their brethren in Gileadithim, and howe that manye of them were beseged in Barasa, Boloz, Alimis, Casphor, Mageth and Carnaim (all these are strong walled and mighty greate Cities) and that they were kepte in other cities of Gilead also: and to morowe they are appointed to bringe their hoost vnto these cytyes, to take thē, and to wynne them in one day. So Judas and his hoostе turned in all the hast into the wyldernes towarde Boloz, & wanne the citie, slewe all the males with the swearde, toke all their goodes, and sette fire vpon the Citye. And in the nyghte they toke their iourneye frome thence, and came to the castel: And by times in the morning when they looked vp, beholde, there was an innumerable people bearynge ladders and other instrumentes of warre, to take the castell and to ouercome them. When Judas sawe that the batayle beganne, and that the noyse thereof wente vp, and range into the heauen, and that ther was so great a crie in the citye: He sayde vnto hys hoost: fyghte this daye for youre brethren. And so came behynde their enemies in three companies, and blewe vp the trompettes, and cried in their prayer to God. But as soone as Timothes hoost perceaued that Machabeus was there, they fled from him, and the other slewe them downe eyght score so that there were killed of them the same daye, almoste eyght thousande men. Then repared Judas vnto Malspha, layed lege vnto it, and wanne it, slewe all the males in it, spoyled it, and set fire vpon it. From thence wente he, and toke Casbon, Mageth, Boso, and the other cities in Gilead. * After this gathered Timothy another hoost, whiche pytched theyr tentes before Raphon, beyonde the watre. Judas also sente to spye the hoost, and they brought him worde agayne, sayinge: All the heathen that be rounde aboute vs, are gathered vnto hym, and the hoost is very great: yea, they haue hyred the Arabians to helpe them, & haue pytched their tentes beyonde the water, and are readye to come and fyghte agaynst the. So Judas wente on to mete them. And Timothy sayde vnto the Captaynes of hys hoostе: When Judas and hys hoostе come nye the ryuer: If he go ouer fyrste, we shall not be able to withstande him: For why? he wil be to stronge for vs. But yf he dare not come ouer, so that he pitche hys tent beyonde the water: Then wyll we goe ouer, for we shall be stronge ynoughe agaynst him. Now as soone as Judas came to the riuer, he appointed certayne scribes of the people, and commaanded them, sayinge: See that ye leaue none behynde vpon thys side of the ryuer, but lette euerye man come to the batayle. So he wente fyrste ouer vnto them, and his people after hym. And al the heathen were discomfyted before him, and lette their weapons falle, and ranne into the temple that was at Carnaim. Whyche Citye Judas wanne, and brent the temple, with all that were in it: So was Carnaim subdued, and mighte not withstande Judas. Then Judas gathered all the Israelites that were in Gileadithim, from the leste vnto the moste, with their wiues and children a (verye greate hoostе) for to come into the lande of Israell. * So they came vnto Ephzom, whiche was a myghtye, greate, and stronge Citye, and laye in theyr waye. For they couldе not goe byt, neyther of the eyghte hande, nor of the lefte, but mustе goe thorowe it. Neuertheles, they that were in the citie, wouldе not let them goe thorowe, but walled vp the portes with stones. And Judas sente vnto thē with peaceable wordes sayinge: let vs passe thorowe youre lande, that we may go into our owne countreye: there shal no body do you harme, we wyll but only go thorow on fote. But they wold not let them in. Wherfore Judas cōmaunded a proclamation to be made thorow out the hoost, that euery man shoulde kepe hys order: & so they did their best lyke baleaunt men. And Judas beseged the citye all that daye, and all that nighte, and so wanne it:

where they slewe as many as were males, & destroyed the citie, and spoyled it, and went throwe all the cytie ouer theym that were slayne. Then went they ouer Jordane into the playne felde before Bethsan. And Judas helped those forward that came behind, and gaue the people good exhortacyon all the waye throwe, tyl they were come into the lande of Juda. Thus they wente by

Nowe what tyme as Judas and Jonathas were in the lande of Gilead, and Simō their brother in Galilee before Ptolomays: Then Josephus the sōne of Zachary, and Azarias the captaynes, hearynge of the actes that were done, and of the battels that were stroken, sayde: Let vs get vs a name also, and go fyghte against the heathen that are rounde

But the men that were with Judas, were greately commended in the sight of al Jsraell, & all heathen, where so euer their name was herde vpon, and the people came vnto them, byddinge them welcome. After this went Judas forth with his brethren, and fought against the children of Esau, in the lande that lyeth towarde the southe where he wāne the citie of Hebron and the townes that lye beside it: & as for the walles and towres rounde aboute it, he brente them vp. Then remoued he to goe into the lande of the Philistines, and went throw Samaria. and.6.f. thorowe Idumea vnto Bethſura, and besieged it a longe season, and made diuerse instrumentes of warre agaynste it. But the Iewes came out and brent them, & foughte lyke men. Then departed Judas from the castell at Ieruſalem, and remoued the hoste towarde Bethzacaran ouer agaynste the kynges armye. So the kynge arose before the daye, & brought the power of his hoste E into the waye to Bethzacaran, where the hostes made them to the battaile, blowing the trompettes. And to prouoke the Elephantes for to fyght, they shewed them the suppe of reed grapes and molberies. And deuyded the Elephantes amonge the hoste: so that by euerye Elephante there stoode a M. men well harnessed, and helmettes of stele vpon their heades: yea, vnto euery one of the Elephantes also, were ordeined fyue C. horsemen of the beste, whiche wayted of the Elephante, goynge where so euer he E wente, and departed not from him. Euerye Elephāte was couered with a stroge towre of wod, wherupon were .xxxii. baleant men wyth weapens to fyghte, & within it was a man of Inde to rule the beaste. As for the remnaunt of the horsmen, he set them vpon both the sides in two partes with trompettes, to prouoke the hoste, and to stere vp E furthe as were slow in the armye. And when the sunne shone vpon their shildes of golde and stele, the mountaynes glistered agaynst them, and were as bryghte as the creselettes of fire. The kinges hoste also was deuyded, one part vpon the hye mountaynes, the other lowe beneth: so they wente on ſkynge good hede, and keppinge their ordre. And all they that dwelte in the lande, were afrayed at the noyse of theyr hooste, when the multytude wente forthe, and when the weapons smote togethre, for the hoste was both great and myghtye. Judas also & hys host entred into the battaile, and slewe sixe C. men of the kynges armye. Nowe when Eleazar the sonne of Saura, dyd se one of the Elephantes decke wyth the kynges badge, and was a more goodlye beast then the other: he thought the kinge shoulde be vpon him, and ieoparde hym selfe to deliuer hys people, and to get hym a perpetual name. Wherfore he ranne wyth a cozage vnto the Elephante in the myddest of the hoofte, smytynge them downe of bothe the sides, and slew many about him. So wente he to the Elephantes fete, and gat hym vnder him, and slewe him: then fell the Elephāte downe vpon him, and there he dyed. Judas also and his men scynge the power of the kynge, and the myghtye violence of his hoste, departed fro them. And the kynges armye wente vp agaynst them towarde Ieruſalē, & pitched theyr tentes in Iewrye beside mounte Sion. Moreouer, the kynge toke truse with them that were in * Beth- F ſura. But when they came out of the cytye 1.Ma.4.f (because they had no vitayles within, and and.6.d the lāde laye vnetylled) the kyng toke Beth- 2.ma.13a ſura, and set men to kepe it, and turned his and.15.d hoste to the place of the Sanctuarye, and layed syege to it a great whyle. Where he made all maner ordynaunce: handebowes, fyrye dartes, rachettes to caste stones, sozpions to shote arowes, and slynges. The Iewes also made ordynaunce agaynste theirs, and foughte a longe season. But in the cytie there were no vytailes, for it was the seuenth yeare of the warres, and those heathen that remayned in Iewry, had eaten vp all their store. And in the Sāctuary were fewe men left, for the hunger came so vpon thē, that they were scattred abrode euery man to his owne place. So when Ly- 2.Ma.6 b ſias heard e that Philippe (* whom Antiochus the kyng whyle he was yet lyuynge, had ordeyned to brynge vp Antiochus hys sonne, that he myght be kynge) was come agayne oute of Perſia and Medea, wyth G the kynges hoofte, and thought to optaine the kyngdome. He gat him to the kynge in all the haste, and to the captaynes of the hoost, and sayde we beseche hoyly, & ouer prayles are but small: Agayne, the place that we laye lege vnto, is very strange, and it were oure parte to se to the realme. Let vs agree with these men, & take truce with them, and with al their people, and graūte them to lyue after their lawe: as they dyd afore. For they be greued and do all these thinges against vs, because we haue despised their lawe. So the kynge and the princes were content, and sent vnto thē to make peace, and they receaued it. Nowe whē the kynge and the prices had made an othe vnto thē, they came oute of the castel, and the kynge went vp to mount Sion. But when he sawe that the place was well fenced, he brake the othe that he had made, and commaunded to destroye the wal rounde about.

Then departed he in all the haste, and returned vnto Antioche, where he folde Philip y haunge dominion of the cyte. So he fought agaynste hym, and toke the citie a-gayne into hys handes.

A ¶ The. viij. Chapter.

IN the. xi. yere came Demetrius the son of Seleucus fro the citie of Rome with a smale companye of mē, vnto a citie of the sea coast, & there he bare rule. And it chanced, that whē he came to Antioche the citye of his progenitours, his hoostes toke Antiochus & Lisias, to hynge them vnto hym.
But when it was tolde him, he sayd: let me not se their faces. So the hoost put them to death. Now when Demetrius was set vpō the crone of his kingdome, there came vnto him wicked & vngodly mē of Israel: whose captayne was Alcimus, that would bene made hye priest: These men accused the people of Israel vnto the king, sayinge: Judas and hys brethren haue slayne thy frendes, and driuen vs out of oure owne lande.
Wherfore, sende some some man (to whome thou geuest credence) that he maye go and se all the destruction, whiche he hath done vnto vs and to the kynges lande, and let hym be punyshed wyth all his frendes and fauourers. Then the king chose Bachides a frende of hys, which was a man of great power in the realme (beyonde the greate water) and trayed him vnto the kynge: and sente hym to se the destruction that Judas had done. And as for that wicked Alcimus he made hym hye priest, and commaunded hym to be auenged of the children of Israel. So they rode vp, and came wyth a greate hoost into the lande of Juda, & sen-dynge messangers to Judas and his brethren, and speakynge vnto them with gen-tell wordes: but vnder disceate. + Therefore Judas & his people beleued: not they sayinge for they sawe that they were come with a great hoost. After this came the scribes together vnto Alcimus and Bachides, seekynge the best vnto them. And sect the Asidees required peace of thē, sayinge: Alcimus the priest is come of the sede of Aaron, how can he disceaue vs? So they gaue them louynge wordes, and swore vnto them: & sayde: we wyl do you no harme nether your frendes: and they beleued thē.
But the very same daye toke they. lx. mē of them and slewe them accordynge to the wordes that are wrytten: + They haue cast pſal. 79. the flesche of thy saīctes, and shed theyr bloude rounde about Jerusalem, and ther was no mā that would bury thē. So there came a greate feare and dreade amonge the people, sayinge: there is neither trueth nor righteousnesse in them, for they haue broken the appoyntemente and othe that they made. And Bachides remoued hys hoost from Jerusalem, and pytched hys tente at Bethzeha: where he sente forthe, and toke many of them that had forsaken hym: He slewe many of the people also, and cast thē into a greate pyt. Then committed he the lande vnto Alcimus, and lefte men of war with him to helpe hym, and Bachides him selfe went vnto the kynge. And thus Alcimus defended his hye priesthode: and al suche as vexed Israell resorted vnto hym: In so muche that they optayned the lande of Juda, and dyd muche euell vnto the Israelites. Now when Judas sawe all the mischiefe that Alcimus and his company had done (yea, more then the Heathenes selues) vnto the Israelytes: He went forthe rounde about al the borders of Jewry, and punished those vnfaythfull renneagates, so that they came nomore oute into the cōtre.
So when Alcimus sawe, that Judas & his people had gotten the vpper hande, & that he was not able to abyde them: he went agayne to the kynge, and layd al the worst of them that he couldē. Then the kynge sente Nicanor, one of hys chiefe princes (which bare euel wil vnto Israel) and commaunded hym, that he shoulde vtterly de- D stroye the people. + So Nicanor came to 2. mac. 5.
Jerusalem with a great hoost, and sent vn- a. to Judas and hys brethren wyth frendlye wordes (but vnder disceate) sayinge: there shall be no warre betwexte me and you: I wyll come wyth a fewe men, to se howe ye do wyth frendshyp. Vpon this he came vnto Judas, & they saluted one another gentelly: but the enemyes were appointed to take Judas by violēce. Neuertheles it was tolde Judas, that he came vnto him but vnder disceate: wherefore he gat him away from him, and wolde se hys face nomore.
When Nicanor perceyued that his counsel was hewyssaled, he went out to fyght agaīst Judas, beside Capharlamala: where there were slayne of Nicanors hoost .v. M. men: & the residue fled vnto the castell of Dauid. After this came Nicanor vp vnto mounte Sion: and the preestes with the elders of the people went forth to salute him peaceably, and to shewe him the burnt sacrifices that were offered for the kynge. But he laughed them and the people to scorne, mocked them, & defiled their offeringes, & spake disdaynefully vnto them, and swore in his wroth, 2 mac 14 c saynge: ✠ If Judas and his hoost be not deliuered nowe into my handes, as soone as euer I come agayne (and fare wel) I shal burne vp this houle. With that, went he out in a greate anger. Then the Preestes 2. Par. 3 c came in, and stode before the aulter of the 3. reg. 8. f temple, wepynge, & sayinge. ✠ For so much as thou (O Lorde) hast chosen this houle, that thy name might be called vpon therin, Esa. 56. b and that it shoulde be + an houle of prayer mat. 21. b and petition for thy people: Be auenged of this man and his hoofte, and let them be slayne with the swearde, remēber the blasphemyes of them, and suffre them not to continue any longer. When Nicanor was gone from Jerusalem, he pytched his tente at Bethoron, and there an hoofte met him out of Syria. And Judas came to Adarsa Esa. 37. c. with thre thousande mē, & made his prayer 2. mac. 8. b vnto God, saynge: O Lorde, because the and. 15. b & 19. g messaunger of kyng Senacherib blasphemed thy Sanctuarye, and punish him according to his malitiousnes. And so the hoofte strake the felde, the thyrtene day of the Moneth, ✠ Adar: and Nicanors hoofte was discōfited, + and he hym selfe was fyrste slayne in the battayle. When Nicanors men ofwarre sawe that he was slayne, they caste awaye Febr. uarii 2 mac. their weapens and fled, but the Jewes fol- 15. d lowed vpon them an whole dayes iourney, from Adazer vnto Gazara, blowynge with the trompets, and makynge tokens after them. So the Jewes came to the of all the townes there about, and blewe after them with their hornes vpon them, wherfore they turned again vpon the. Thus were they all slayne, and not one of them lefte. Then they tooke their substaunce for a praye, and smote of Nicanors heade and his ryght hande (which he had so proudly) and brought it with them, and hanged it vp before Jerusalem. Wherfore, the people were exceedingly reioyced, & passed ouer that daye in great gladnesse. And Judas ordeyned, that the same day (accor-dyng therby vnto) daye of the moneth Adar) shoulde be kept in mynde euery yere. Thus the lande of Juda was in rest a litle while.

I Was heede also the fame of the Romaines, that they were mightie & valeaunte men, & agreable to all thinges that were required of the, and make peace with all men, whiche come vnto them, & howe they were doughtie men of stregth. Beleues that it was tolde him of their battailes, & noble actes which they did in Galatea, howe they had conquered them, & brought the vnder tributes: what great thinges they had done in Spayne: how that with their wyse counsell & labor behaudue they had wone the Syluer & golde that are there, & optayned all the lawe, with other places farre fro the: how they had discōfited & slayne downe the kinges that came vpon the, fro the vttermost part of the earth, & how other people gaue the tribute euery yere. How they had slayne & ouercome Philip & Perses kinges of Cethim, and other mo (in battaile) which had brought their ordinaunce against the: how they discōfited great Antiochus kyng of Asia (that would nedes fight with the) hauynge an hundred and twenty Elephātes with horsemen, charettes, and a very greate hoofte: how they toke him selfe alyue, and ordeyned him (with suche as shoulde B raygne after him) to paye them a great tryute. + Yea, and to hyde the good fuerties and pledges: besides all this, how they had taken from him India, Media, and Lidia, (his best landes) and geuen them to kynge Eumenus. Agayne, how they ordeyned that the Grekes were cōmynge to dere them: sent agaīste them a capteyne, & an hoofte, whiche gaue them battaile, slewe many of them, led away their wiues and children captyue, spoyled them, tooke possession of their lande, destroyed their stronge holdes, and subdued them to be their bondmen, vnto this daye. Moreouer, howe that as for other kyngedomes and Iles which sometyme withstode them, they destroyed them, and brought them vnder their dominion, but helped euer their owne frendes, and those that were confederate with the, and conquered kingdomes both farre & nere: & that whosoeuer hearde of their renowme, was afeared of them: for whom they would helpe to their kyngdomes, those raigned: whome they lyked not them to resyste, they put him downe. And beinge they were come to great preēminence: hauynge no kynge amonge them, neither any man clothed in purple, to be magnified therby: moreouer they had ordeyned them a counsell place, where in there sate euery daye two hundred and xx. men ceiued daylye vpon the counsel, to dispatch euer the busines of the people, and to kepe good ordre. And howe that euery yere they chosen Mayre to haue the gouernaunce of all theyr lande, to whome euerie man was obediente, and there was neyther enyl will nor dyscencion amonge them. Then Judas chose Eupolemus, the sonne of John, the sonne of Jacob, and Jason the sonne of Eleazar, and sente them vnto Rome for to make frendshippe and a bonde of loue with them, that they myght take from them the bondage of the Grekes, for the Jewes sawe that the Grekes wouldo subdue the kyngdome of Israel. So they went vnto Rome, (a verye greate iourney) and came into the parlament, and sayde: Judas Machabeus with hys brethren and the people of the Jewes hathe sente vs vnto you, to make a bonde of frendshippe and peace with you, and yet to note vs as your louers and frenddes. And the matter pleased the Romaines exghte well, wherefore it was wryten by of the whyche the Romaynes made a mys-tyque in tables of braße, and sente it to Jerusalem: that they myghte haue by them a memoryall of the same peace and bonde of frendshippe after this maner: God saue the Ro-maynes & the people of the Jewe, bothe by sea and by lande, and kepe the swearde and enemye from them for euermore. If there come fyrste any warre vpon the Romaines or any of their frendes thorowout all theyr dowmynyon, the people of the Jewes shall helpe them (as the tyme requireth) & that with all theyr herces. Also they that nether geue nor sell vnto their enemies, bytayles, weapon, money nor shippes: but fulfil this thynge at the Romaines pleasure, and take nothing from them therfore. Agayne, yf the people of the Jewes happen fyrste to haue warre, the Romaynes shall stande by them with a good wil, accordyng as the tyme wil suffre. Neyther shall they geue vnto the Jewes enemyes, bitayles, weapens, money, nor shippes. Thus are the Romaines cõtẽ to do, and shall fulfyll theyr charge wyth out any dyscease. Accordynge to these articles, the Romaynes made the bonde with the Jewes. Nowe after these articles (sayth they) yf anye of the parties wyll put to this, or take anye thynge from them: they shall do it with the consente of bothe: and what soeuer they adde vnto them, or take fro̅e them, it shall stande fast. And as touchyng the euell that Demetrius hathe done vnto the Jewes, we haue written vnto hym, wherfore yf he trouble thom the leest parte vpon the Jewes our frendes and louers: & yf they make any complaynt of you againe vnto vs, we shal helpe them, and fyght with the by sea & by lande. ¶ The. iy. Chapter.

IN the meane seaso, when Demetrius herd that s Nicanor & his hoste was slayne in the feld, he proceeded further to seke Bachides & Alcimus agayne into Jewrye, and chose that were in the exghtwynge of hys hoode, with them. So they went forthe by the way that leadeth vnto Galgala, and pytched theyr tentes before Mesaloth wherein in Arbelitis, and wanne the cite, and slew much people. In the fyrst Monyth of the. cli. yere, they brought theyr hoost to Jerusalem, and rose vp, and came to Ber-rea, with xx. thousande fotemen, and. ii. M. horsemen. Nowe Judas had pytched hys tent at Laisa, with thre thousande chosen men. And when they sawe the multytude of the other army, that it was so greate, they were sore afrayed, and many conueied them selues out of the hoost. In so much that there abode no mo of them but exght hundred men. When Judas sawe that his hoste fayled hym, and that he must nedes fyghte: it brake hys herte: that he had no time to gather them together: wherfore the man was in extreme trouble. Neuerthelesse, he sayde vnto them, that remayned with hym. Vp, let vs go agaynste our enemyes, peraduen-ture we shalbe able to fyght with the. But they wolde haue stopped hym, saying: we shall not be able, therfore let vs nowe saue our liues, and turne againe to our brethre, and then wyl we fyghte agaynste them, for we are here but fewe. And Judas sayde: God forbyd, that we shulde fle from them.
Wherfore, if our tyme be come, let vs dye manfully for oure brethren, and let vs not staine oure honoure. Then the hoost remoued out of the tentes, and stode agaynst vs.
The horsme were deuided in two partes: the slinge casters and archers went before the host, and all the myghtye men were for-moste in the felde. Bachides hym self was in the exghtwynge of the battaile, and the hoste dyewe nye vn two partes, and blewe the trompettes. They of Judas side blewe the trompetters also, and the earth shake at the noyse of the hoastes, and they stroke felde from the morowe tyl night. And when Judas sawe that Bachides hoole was strength of the exghte syde, he toke with hym all the hardye men, and brake the exghtwynge of their wynge, and followed vpon them vnto the mount Azot. Now when they which were of the lefte wynge sawe that the exghte syde was dismayd, they persewed Judas and them that were with hym. Then was there a sore battayle, for many were slayne on both the partes. Judas also was slayne, and the remnaunte fled. So Jonathan and Simon tooke Judas their brother, & buryed hym in hys fathers sepulchre in the cyte of Modem. And all the people of Israell made greate lamentacyon for hym, and mourned longe, sayinge: Alas, that thys worthy shoulde be slayne, whiche delyuered the people of Israell. As for other thynges perteynynge to the batayles of Judas, the noble actes that he dyd and of hys worthynesse: they are not C wrytten, for they were verye manye. ✶ And Josep.ca. 3.lib.13. de antiq. after the death of Judas, wycked mē came vp in all the costes of Israell, and there arose all suche as wroche vngodlynesse. In those dayes was there a greate dearthe in the lande, and all the countre gaue ouer thē selues and theyrs vnto Bachides. So Bachides chose wicked menne, and made them lordes in the lande. Theyr sought oute and made search for Judas frendes, & brought them vnto Bachides: whiche auenged him selfe vpon them wyth greate dyspyte. And there came so great trouble in Israell, as was not sence the tyme that no Prophete was sene there.

Then came all Judas frendes together, and saide vnto Jonathas: For so muche as thy brother Judas is deade, there is none like hym, to go forth agaynst our enemyes, against Bachides, & suche as are aduersaryes vnto our people. Wherefore, this daye we chose the for hym, to be oure prynce & captayne to ayde our battaile. And Jonathas toke the gouernaūce vpon hym at the same tyme, and ruled in steade of hys brother Judas. When Bachides gat knowlege therof, he sought for to slaye hym. But Jonathas & Simon his brother, perceauinge that, fledde into the wildernesse of Thecua wyth al their company, and pytched theyr tentes by the water pole of Asphar. Which when Bachides vnderstode, he came ouer Jordane with all his hoost vpon the Sabboth daye. Nowe had Jonathas sente hys brother John (a Captayne of the people) to praye hys frendes the Nabuthites, that they would lende them their ordynaunce, for they hadde muche. So the chyldren of Jambry came oute of Medaba, and toke John and all that he had, and wente theyr waye wythall. Then came worde vnto Jonathas and Simon hys brother, that the chyldren of Jambry made a great mariage, and brought the bryde fro Madaba, with greate pompe: for she was doughter to one of the noblest Prynces of Canaan. Wherefore they remembred the bloode of John theyr brother, and wente vp, and hid them selues vnder the shadow of the mountaine.

So they lyfte vp theyr eyes, and loked and beholde, there was muche a do, and great trayne: for the bryde grome came forthe, and hys frendes and hys brethren mette them with tymbales, instrumentes of musyche, and many weapens. Then Jonathas and they that were with hym, rose out of theyr lurkyng places agaynst thē, and slewe many of theym. As for the remnaunte, they fled into the mountaynes, and they toke all theyr substaunce. Thus the mariage was turned to mournynge, and the noyse of theyr melody vnto lamentacio. And so when they had auenged the bloode of theyr brother, they turned agayne vnto Jordane. Wherfore, hearynge thys, came vnto the verye bordre of Jordane, with a great power vpon the Sabboth daye. And Jonathas sayde to his companye, lette vs get vp, and fyghte agaynst our enemies: for it standeth not with vs to day, as in tyme paste: Beholde, oure enemyes are in oure waye, the water of Jordane vpon the one side of vs, with bankes, fennes and woddes of the other side, so that there is no place for vs to departe vnto. ✶ Wherefore, crye nowe vnto heauen, that ye maye be delyuered from the power of youre enemyes. So they stroke the battayle. Then Jonathas stretched oute hys handes to smyte Bachides, but he fledde backwarde. Then Jonathas and they that were wyth him, leapte into Jordane, and swymmed ouer Jordan vnto hym, and there were slayne of Bachides side that daye, & thousande men. Therfore Bachides with his hoost turned agayne to Jerusalem, and builte vp the castels and stronge holdes, that were in Jewrye, Jericho, Emaus, Bethoron, Bethell, Thamnata, Pharo, and Topo, with hie walles, with portes and wyth lockes: and set men to kepe thē, that they myght vse their malyce vpon Israel. He walled vp the cite Bethsurath, Gazarah, & the castel at Jerusalē also, & prouyded them with men & victailes. He toke also the chefest mēs sonnes in the cōtre for pledges, & put them in the castel at Jerusalem to be kepte. Afterwarde in the hundred fyftie and thyrde yeare in the seconde moneth, Alcimus commaunded, that the walles of the inmoste Sanctuary should be vttroyed, and the buildinges of the prophetes also. And when he begaune to destroye them, the thynges that he wente about, were hyndered, for he was smytten with a palsey, and his mouth shut, so that he coulde no more speake nor commaunde any of hys house concernyng hys busines. Thus dyed Alcimus in great misery at the same tyme. And when Bachides sawe that Alcimus was dead, he turned agayne to the kynge, and so the lande was in rest two yeares. Then all the ungodlye men helde a councell, & sayde: Beholde, Jonathas & his

companye are at eaſe, and dwell wythout care. Wherefore, let vs bynge Bachides hyther, and he ſhall take them all in one nyght. So they went and gaue Bachydes this counceil, whyche aroſe to come wirly a great hooſt, and ſent letters preuely to his adherentes, whiche were in Jewry, to take Jonathas and thoſe that were wyth hym: but they myghte not for the other had goeten knowledge of theyr denyce. And Jonathas toke fyftye men of the countre (whiche were the cyngeleaders of them) and ſlewe them. Then Jonathas and Simon wyth their cõpany departed vnto the cytie Bethbeſſen which lyeth in the wilderneſſe, and repayred the decaye therof, and made it ſtronge. When Bachides knewe this, he gathered all hys hooſte, and ſent worde to them that were of Jewry. Then came he and layde lege to Bethbeſſen, and fought agaynſt it a longe ſeaſon, and made inſtrumentes of warre. Nowe Jonathas lefte hys brother Simon in the cytye, and went forthe him ſelfe into the countre, and came wyth a certayne numbre, and ſlue Odares and hys brethren and the chyldren of Phaſeron in theire tentes: ſo that he beganne to be ſtronge, and to increaſe in power. As for Simon and his companye, they wente oute of the Cittie, and brent vp the inſtrumentes of warre, and fought againſt Bachides, & diſconfyted hym. And Balchides was ſore hered, becauſe his cõceil and trauaile was in dayne. Wherefore he was wroth at the wicked mẽ (that gaue him councel to come into their lande) and ſlewe manye of them. Then purpoſed he wyth his cõpany to go awaye into his owne countre: wherof whẽ Jonathas had knowledge, he ſent ambaſſadours vnto hym, for to make peace wyth hym, and that he ſhoulde delyuer hym his priſoners agayne. To the which Bachides conſented gladly, and did accordyng to hys deſire: yea, & made an othe, that he ſhoulde neuer do hym harme all the dayes of hys life. So he reſtored vnto hym all the priſoners that he had taken oute of the lande of Juda, and then turned and went his waye into hys owne lãde, nether proceded he any further to come vnto the borders of Juda. Thus Iſrael had nomore warre. And Jonathas dwelte at Machemas, and beganne there to gouerne the people, and deſtroyed the vngodly men out of Iſrael.

Joſeph.ca 2.lib.13

IN the hundred & thre ſore yere came Alexander the ſonne of noble Antiochus & rode Ptolomais, whoſe citezins receaued hym, and there he raygned. When Demetrius heard therof, he gathered an exceadynge great hooſt, and went forth againſt hym to fyght. Wherefore Demetrius ſente letters vnto Jonathas, with louig wordes, and prayſed hym greatly. For he ſayde: we wyl fyrſte make peace with hym, before he bynde hym ſelfe wyth Alexander agaynſte vs: elles he ſhall remembre the euell that we haue done agaynſte him, his brother & hys people. And ſo he gaue Jonathas leaue to gather an hooſte, to make weapens, and to be confederate with hym, and commaunded the pledges that were in the caſtell, to be delyuered vnto hym. Then came Jonathas to Jeruſalem, and red the letters in the audience of all the people, and of them that were in the caſtell. And therfore were they ſore afrayed, becauſe they hearde, that the kyng had geuen hym lycence to gather an hooſte. Thus were the pledges deliuered vnto Jonathas, whyche reſtored them to their elders. Jonathas alſo dwelte at Jeruſalem, and beganne to buylde vp, and to repayre the citie: commaũdinge the worckmen to wall it, and the mount Sion roũde about wyth fre ſtone, to be a ſtroge holde, and ſo they dyd. As for the Heathen that were in the Caſtelles which Bachydes had made vp, they fled: ſo that euerye man lefte the place, and wente into his owne cõtre. Onely at Bethſura remayned certayne of the Jewes, which had forſaken the lawe & commaundementes of God, for Bethſura was their refuge. Now when kynge Alexander hearde of the promyſes that Demetrius hadde made vnto Jonathas, & when it was tolde him of the battelles and noble actes, which he and his brethren had done, and of the greate trauayles that they had taken, he ſayde: where ſhal we fynde ſuch a man? Well, we wyll make hym our frende, and be confederate with him. Vpõ this he wrote a lettre vnto him, with theſe wordes: kynge Alexander ſaluteth his brother Jonathas. We haue hearde of the, that thou art a balcaunte mã, & mete to be our frẽde: wherefore, this daye we ordeyne the to be the hye Prieſte of thy people, and to be called the kynges frende. (Vpon thys, he ſent him a purple clothynge, and a crowne of golde) that thou mayeſt cõfyrme what is for our profite, & kepe frendſhyppe towarde vs. So in the ſeuenth moneth of the hundred & thre ſore yeare vpon the ſolempne feaſte daye of the tabernacles, Jonathas put the holy raymente vpon him. Thẽ gathered he an hooſt, & made many weapens. Whiche when Demetrius hearde, he was maruelous ſoure, and ſaid: Alas, what haue we done, that Alexander hath preuented vs in gettynge the frendſhippe of the Jewes, for hys owne defence? Yet wyll I wrytte louyngly vnto them alſo: yea, and promyſe them dignities & rewardes, that they may be of my ſyde. Wherupon he wrote vnto them theſe wordes. Kynge Demetrius ſendeth greetinge vnto the people of the Jewes. Where as ye haue kepte youre couenaunt towarde vs, and cõtinued in our frendſhip, not enclynynge to oure enemyes, we were glade, when we hearde therof. Wherfore, remayne ſtyll, and be kaythfull to vs: and we ſhal well recompenſe you for the thynges, that ye haue done on oure partye: we ſhal releaſe you of many charges, and gene you rewardes. And nowe I diſcharge you and al the Jewes from tributes, I forgeue you the cuſtomes of ſalte, and releaſe you of the crowne taxes, of the thyrde parte of ſede, and halfe of the frutes of trees, whych is myne owne dewtye. Theſe I leaue for you from this daye forthe: ſo that they ſhal not be taken of the lãde of Juda, nor of the thre cityes whiche are added there vnto oute of Samaria and Galilee, from this day forthe for euermore. Jeruſalẽ alſo with all thynges belonginge therto, ſhalbe holy and free: yea, the tithes and trybutes ſhall pertayne vnto it. As for the power of the caſtell which is at Jeruſalem, I reſigne and geue it vnto the hye prieſte that he maye ſet in it ſuche men, as he ſhal chooſe to kepe it. I freely delyuer all the Jewes that are pryſoners throwout all my realme: ſo that euery one of them ſhalbe free from payinge any trybute: yea, euen of theyr catel. All the ſolempne feaſtes, Sabbothes, newe moones, the dayes appoynted, the thre dayes before and after the feaſte, ſhall be free for all the Jewes in my Realme: ſo that in them no man ſhal haue power to do any thynge, or to moue any buſines agaynſte any of them in any maner of cauſe. There ſhall thirtye thouſande alſo of the Jewes be written vp in the kinges hoſt, and haue their wages payde, as al other men of warre of the kynges ſhoulde haue: and of them ſhall be ordeyned certayne to kepe the kynges ſtrõge holdes: yea, ſome of them ſhall be ſet ouer the kynges buſynelle, that they may faithfullye deale with the ſame. The Jewes alſo ſhall haue Princes of their owne, and walke in theyr owne lawes, as the kynge hathe commaunded in the lande of Juda. And the thre cytyes that are fallen vnto Jewrye from the countre of Samaria, and Galilee: ſhall be taken as Jewrye, and be vnder one: nether be ſubiecte to any ſtraũg Lorde, but to the hie Prieſt. As for Ptolomais and the lande pertaynynge therto, I gene it vnto the Sanctuarye at Jeruſalem, for the neceſſarye expences of the holy thynges. Moreouer, I wyll gene euerye yeare fyftene thouſande Sicles of ſiluer out of the kynges checher, (whiche pertaynyth vnto me) to the worcke of the temple: yea, and loke what remaineth (which they that had oure matters in hande in tymes paſt, haue not payde,) the ſame ſhall they gene vnto them alſo. And beſides al this, the fyue thouſande Sicles whiche they toke yerelye of the rentes of the Sanctuarye, ſhall belonge vnto the Prieſtes that do ſeruyce. Item, whoſoeuer they be that flee vnto the temple at Jeruſalem or wythin the lyberteyes thereof, where as they are fallen into the kynges daunger for any maner of buſines, they ſhalbe pardoned, & all the goodes that they haue in my realme, ſhalbe free. For the buildinge alſo and repairynge of the worcke of the Sanctuarye, expenſes ſhalbe geuen oute of the kynges Checher: yea, and for the makynge of the walles rounde about Jeruſalem, for the breakyng downe of the olde and for the ſettynge vp of the ſtronge holdes in Jewrye, ſhall the coſtes & charges be geuen oute of the kynges Checher. * But when Jonathas and the people hearde theſe wordes, they gaue no credẽce vnto them, nether receaued thẽ: for they remembred the great wickednelle that he had done vnto Iſraell, & howe ſore he had vexed them. Wherfore, they agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a Prynce that had dealte frendlye with them, and ſo they ſtode by hym alway. * Then gathered kyng Alexander a greate hoſt, and brought his army againſt Demetrius. So the two kinges ſtroke batayle together, but Demetrius hoſte fledde, and Alexander folowed after, and fell vpon them. A mygthye ſoore felde was it, continuynge tyll the Sunne wente downe, and Demetrius was ſlayne the ſame daye. And Alexander ſent ambaſſadours vnto Ptolompe the kynge of Egypte with theſe wordes, ſayinge: For ſo much as I am come agayne to my realme, and am ſet i the trone of my progenitours, and haue gotten the dominion, ouercomed Demetrius, conquered the lande, and ſtriken a feldt with him, ſo that we haue diſcõfited both him and his hoſte, and ſet in the trone of hys kyngedome. Lette vs nowe make frendeſhyppe together, gene me thy doughter to wyfe: So ſhall I be thy ſonne in lawe, and forthe gene the rewardes, and her greate dignitie. Ptolompe the kynge gaue anſwere, ſayinge: happye be the daye wherin thou art come agayne vnto the lãde of thy progenitoures, and ſette in the trone of their kyngdome. As nowe wyl I fulfyll thy wayenge: but mete me at Ptolomais, that we maye ſee one another, and that I maye marry my doughter vnto the: accordynge thy deſire. So Ptolomy went and of Egypte with hys doughter Cleopatra, and came vnto Ptolomays in the .CLxii. yeare: Where kynge Alexander mette him, and he gaue Alexander hys doughter Cleopatra, and maryed the at Ptolomays with great worshyp, lyke as the maner of kynges is to be. Then wrote kyng Alexander vnto Jonathas, that he shoulde come and mete him. So he went honorably vnto Ptolomais, and there he mette the two kinges, & gaue them great presentes of golde and syluer, & founde fauoure in their syght. And there came together agaynst Jonathas certayne wicked men and vngracious persones of Israell, makynge complayntes of hym, but the kinge regarded them not. As for Jonathas the kynge commaunded to take of his garmentes, and to cloth him in purple: and so they dyd. Then the kinge appoynted him to sitte by hym, and sayde vnto his prices: go with him into the middest of the citye, and make a proclamacion, that no mā complayne agaynst hym of any matter, & that no man trouble him for any maner of cause. So it happened, that whē his accusers sawe the worshyppe, whiche was proclaymed of him, and that he was clothed in purple: They fledde euerichone. And the kynge made muche of him, wrote him amonge his chiefe frendes, made him a duke, and partaker of hys dominion.

* Thus Jonathas wente agayne to Jerusalem with peace & gladnes. In the .CLxiii. yeare came Demetrius the sonne of Demetrius from Creta into hys fathers lāde: wherof when Lasthenes knewe thereof was ryght sorye, and returned vnto Antioche. And Demetrius chose * Appollonius (whiche hadde the gouernaunce of Celosyria) to be his captayne. So he gathered a great hoost and came vnto Jamnia, & sent word vnto Jonathas the hye priest, saying: Darest thou withstande vs thy selfe alone? As for me, I am but laughed to scorne and shamed, because thou prouedst thy strength against vs in the mountaines. Now therfore, if thou trustest in thyne owne strengthe, come downe to vs into the plaine felde, and there let vs proue oure strengthe together: thou shalt fynde, that I haue baleaunte mē of warre with me, and shalte know whome I am, and the other that stande by me. Whiche saye, that youre fote is not able to stāde before oure face, for thy fathers haue bene twyse chased into their owne lande. And nowe, how wilt thou be able to abyde so greate an hoost of horsemen and fotemen in the felde where as is nether roche, stone nor place to flie vnto? When Jonathas hearde the wordes of Appolonius, he was moued in hys mynde: wherfore he chose ten thousande men, and wente out of Jerusalem, and Simon hys brother met him for to helpe him: And they pytched their tentes at Joppa, but the Cytye kept him forth for Joppa was an holde of Appollonius: Thē Jonathas layde seage to it, and they that were in the Cytye, for verye feare lette him in, and so Jonathas wanne Joppa. Appollonius hearinge of this, toke three thousande horsemen, with a greate hoost of foote, and wente, as thoughe he would go to Azotus, and came immediately into the playne felde: because he had so many horsemen, and put his truste in them. So Jonathas folowed vpon him to Azotus, & there they stroke the battayle. Now had Appollonius lefte a thousande horsemen behinde them priuely in the tentes. And when Jonathas knewe that such wayte was layde behynde them, they wente rounde aboute the enemyes hoost, and shot dartes at the people from the mornynge to the euenynge. As for Jonathas people, they kepte their ordre as he had commaunded them, and the enemyes horses were euer labourynge. Thē broughte Simon forth his hoost, and set them against the fotemen. For the horsemen were weryе all ready. So he discomfyted them, and they fled. And they that were scatred in the felde, gat thē to Azotus, and came into the Temple of Dagon their Idol, that they myght there saue their lyues. But Jonathas set fyre vpon Azotus, & al the Cyties rounde aboute it, and toke their goodes and * brente the temple of Dagon, with all them that were fled into it. Thus were burnte and brent well nye. viii.C.men. So Jonathas remoued the hoost from thence, and broughte them to Ascalon: where the men of the cytye came forthe, & met him with greate worshyppe. After this went Jonathas and hys hooste agayne to Jerusalem, with great substaūce of good. And when kynge Alexandre heard these thynges, he thoughte to do Jonathas more worshyppe, and sente vpon a colar of golde, as the vse is to be geuen vnto suche as are of the kynges nerre blonde. He gaue him also the citye of Accaron (with the landes belongynge therto) in possession.

Joseph.ca 7.lib.13.

AND the kynge of Egipt gathered an hoost (lyke the sande that lyeth vpō the sea shore,) & many shyps: * and wōt about thorow disceate to optayne the kyngedom of Alexander, & to ioyne it vn: to hys owne realme. Vnto thys he tooke his iourney into Siria, and was letten into the Cities, and men came forth to mete him: for kynge Alexander had commaūded them so to do, because he was his father in

Iewe. Now whē Ptolomy entred into any Cytie he lefte men of warre to kepe it. And thus he dyd thorowoute all the cyties. And when he came to Azotas, * they shewed him the temple of Dagon and Azotus, that was brent vp, with the other thiges which were destroyed, the deade bodyes caste abrode, and the graues that they had made by the waye syde, for suche as were slayne in the felde. And tolde the kynge that Jonathas had done all these thinges, to then-tent they might get hym envi wil. But the kynge sayde not a worde thereto. And Jonathas mette the kynge with great honoure at Joppa, where they saluted one another, and toke their rest. So whē Jonathas had gone wyth the kynge vnto the water that was called Eleutherus, he turned agayne to Jerusalem. Now Ptolomye had gotten the dominion of the cities vnto Seleucia, vpon the sea coaste, ymagynynge wycked counceis agaynste Alexander, and sent ambassitones vnto Demetrius, sayinge: Come let vs make a bonde betwyxte vs, so that I geue the my doughter that Alexander hath, and thou shalt raygne in thy fathers kingdome. I repent that I gaue Alexander my doughter, for he goeth aboute to slaye me.
And thus he sclaūdered Alexander, because he would haue hadde hys realme. Thus he toke hys doughter from hym, gaue her vnto Demetrius, and forsoke Alexander, so that hys malice was openlye knowen. And Ptolomye came to Antioche, where he set two crownes vpon hys owne heade: the crowne of Egypte and of Asia. In the meane season was kynge Alexander in Cilicia, for they that dweit i those places, had rebelled against him. But when Alexander hearde of thys, he came to warre agaynste hym. So kynge Ptolomy brought forthe his host, & met hym with a mightie power, and chased hym awaye. Then fled Alexander into Araby, there to be defended, and kynge Ptolomyes honoure increased. And Zabdiel the Arabian, smote of Alexanders heade, and sente it vnto Ptolomy. But the thyrde daye after, dyed kynge Ptolomye hym selfe: and they whom he had set in the stronge holdes, were slayne of those that were wythin the cytyes. And Demetrius C raygned in the hundred and seuen & fyftie yeare. At the same tyme gathered Jona-thas them that were in Jewry, to lay sege vnto the castell whiche was at Jerusalem, and so they made manye instrumentes of warre against it. Then went there certaine vngodlye personnes (whyche hated theyr owne people) vnto kynge Demetrius, and tolde hym that Jonathas beseged the castell. So when he hearde it, he was angrye, and immediatelye came vnto Ptolomays.
And wrote vnto Jonathas, that he should not laye sege to the castell, but come and speake with him in all the hast. Neuertheles, when Jonathas herde this, he cōmaunded to besege it. He chose also certayne of the elders and Prestes of Israel, and put hym selfe in the parell, and rode with him golde, siluer, clothynge, and diuerse presentes: and went to Ptolomais vnto the king, and founde him gracious. And though cer-tayne vngodly mē of his owne people made cōplaintes vpon him, yet the kyng intreаted hym, * lyke as hys predecessoures had done before: and promoted hym in the sight of all his frendes, confirmed him in the hye priesthode with al the worship that he had afore, and made him his chiefe frende. Jonathas also desired the king, that he would make Jewry free, * with the three head cy-ties of Samaria, and the landes pertaynyng therto: vpon this dyd Jonathas pro-myse him thre. C. talentes. Wherevnto the kynge consented, and gaue Jonathas wry-tynge of the same, conteynynge these wor-des: Kynge Demetrius sendeth gretynge vnto his brother Jonathas, and to the people of the Jewes. We sende you here a copie of the letter, whiche we did wryte vnto oure elder Lasthenus, concernynge you that ye should knowe it. Kyng Demetrius sendeth gretyng vnto Lasthenus his elder.
For the faithfulnesse that our frendes the people of the Jewes kepe vnto vs, and for the louyng kindnes whiche they beare to-warde vs, we determyned to do them good. Wherfore we ordeyne all the coastes of Jewry, with thre cyties, Lidda and Ra-matha (whiche are added vnto Jewry from Samaria) and all the landes pertaynynge therevnto, to be freely seperated for suche as do sacrifyce in Jerusalem: bothe concernynge the paymentes which the king toke yearlye afore tyme, and the frutes also of the earth and trees. As for other tythes & tributes that belonged to vs, we discharge them therof from this tyme forth.

In lyke maner, we graunt vnto them all the customes of salt & crowne rates, which were brought vnto vs. And thys fredome shall they haue fyrme and stedfaste, frome thys tyme forth for euermore. Therefore se that ye make a copye of these oure letters, and delyuer it vnto Jonathas: that it maye be kepte vpon the holye mount in a conuenient place. After this, whē Demetrius the kynge sawe that hys land was in rest, and that no resistaunce was made him: he sente away all his hoost, euery man to his owne place, excepte an armie of strangers, whom he brought from the Iles of the Heathen, wher-

wherefore all his fathers hoste hadde euyll 1.mac.12 ¶ wyll at hym. ✣ Nowe was there one Triphon(that hadde bene of Alexanders parte afore)which whē he sawe that all the hoost murmured agaynste Demetrius: he wente to Emalcuel the Arabian(that brought vp Antiochus the sonne of Alexander) and lay sore vpon hym, to delyuer hym thys yonge Antiochus:that he myght reigne in his fathers steade. He tolde him also, what great euyll Demetrius had done, and howe thys men of warre loued him not:and so remayned there a longe season.

And Jonathas sente vnto kynge Demetrius, to dryue them out which were in the castell at Jerusalem, and in the other refuges, for they dyd Israell great harme. So Demetrius sente woorde vnto Jonathas, sayinge: I wyll not onelye do these thyn-ges for the, and thy people, but at tyme cōuenient, I wyll do both thee and thy peo-F ple great worshyppe. But now thou shalt do me a pleasure, yf thou wilt sende me men to helpe me: for all myne armye is gone fro me. So Jonathas sente hym thre thousande stronge men vnto Antioche, and they came vnto the kynge, whereafore the kynge was very glad at their commynge.

But they that were of the cytie (euen an hundred and twentye thousande men) gathered them together, and wouldē haue slayne the kynge, whyche fledde into hys courte, and the Cytezyns kept the stretes of the cytye, and beganne to fyghte. Then the kyng called for the Jewes helpe, which came vnto hym all together, and wente abroade thorowe the cytye, and slewe the same daye, an hundred thousande men: set fyre vpon the cytye, gat many spoyles in that daye, and delyuered the kynge.

So when the Cytezyns sawe that the Jewes had gotten their wyll of the cytye, and theym selues dysappoynted of theyr purpose, they made theyr supplycacyon vn to the kyng, saying: Graunt vs peace, and lette the Jewes ceasse from troublynge vs and the Cytye, and vpon thys they cast awaye theyr weapons.

Thus they made peace, and the Jewes gat greate worshyppe in the syghte of the kynge, and in the syghte of all that were in hys realme, and were spoken of thorowout the kyngedome: and so they came a-G gayne to Jerusalem wyth great goodes.

So the kynge Demetrius satte in the trone of hys kyngedome, and hadde peace in hys lande: ✣Neuertheleſſe, he dyssembled in all that euer he spake, and wythdrewe him selfe from Jonathas, neither rewarded him accordynge to the benefites whiche he had done for hym, but troubled him verye sore. After this came Triphon againe with yonge Antiochus, whiche raygned & was crowned kynge. Then there gathered vnto hym all the men of warre, whome Demetrius had put awaye: these fought against Demetrius, whiche fled & turned his back.
So Triphon toke the Elephātes, & wanne Antioche. And yonge Antiochus wrote vnto Jonathas, saynge: I confirme the in thy priesthode, and make the ruler of.iiii. couns-trees, that thou mayeste be a frende of the kynges. Vpon this he sente him golde dē-sciles to be serued in, and gaue hym leue to drincke in golde, to be clothed in purple, & to were a colar of golde. He made hys brother Simon also captaine, from the coastes of Tirus, vnto the borders of Egipt. The Jonathas toke hys iourneye, and wente thorowe the cytyes beyonde the water of Jordane, and all the men of warre of Syria gathered theym vnto hym for to helpe hym. So he came vnto Ascalon, and they of the cytie receaued him honorably, and from thence wente he vnto Gaza, but they wold not let hym in: wherefore he layed sege vnto it, burnynge vp, and spoilyng the places that were about the cittie. And the citezyns of Gaza submytted them selues vnto Jona-thas, whyche made peace wyth theym, but toke of theyr sonnes to pledge, sente theym to Jerusalē, and went thorowe the cōtrey vnto Damascus. Nowe when Jonathas herde that Demetrius prynces were come into Cades (whyche is in Galilee) wyth a great hoost, purposynge to put Demetrius oute from medlynge in the realme: he came agaynste theym, and lefte Simon his brother in the lande: whiche came to Bethsura, and layed sege to it a longe season, and discomfited them. So they wisshed to haue peace with him, whiche he graunted them, and afterwarde put them out from thence, toke the cittie, and set men to kepe it. And Jonathas with his hoost came to the water of Genesar, and by tymes in the mornynge gat them to the playne felde of Asor.
And beholde, the hoostes of the heathen mette them in the felde, and layed watche for them in the mountaynes: so that when Jonathas came agaynste theym, the other (whiche were layed to watche) rose oute of theyr places, and fought, and they that were of Jonathas side, fled euery man: and there was not one of theym lefte, excepte Mattathias the sonne of Absalomus, and Judas the sonne of Calphi, the Captayne of the hoost. Then Jonathas rente his clothes, layed earth vpon his head, made hys prayer, and turned agayne to theym in the felde: where they fought together, and he put them to flyght. Nowe when his owne men that were fled, fawe thys: they turned agayne vnto hym, & helped him to kolowe vpon all theyr enemies, vnto their tentes at Cades. So there were slayne of the Heathen the same day thre thousand men, and Jonathas turned agayne to Jerusalē.

IOnathas seynge that the time was mete for him, chose certayne men & sent them vnto Rome, for to stablishe & renue ye frendshyp with thē. He sente letters vnto Sparta, & to other places in like maner. So they wēt vnto Rome, & entred into the councel, & sayde: Jonathas the hie Prieste, and the people of the Jewes sente vs vnto you, for to renue the olde frendshyppe, and bonde of loue: Vpon thys the Romaynes gaue them fre palporres, that men shoulde leade theym home into the lande of Juda peaceably. And thys is the copye of the letters that Jonathas wrote vnto the Spartians. Jonathas the hye Prieste with the elders, Prieftes, and the other people of the Jewes, sende greetyng vnto the Spartians theyr brethren. There were letters B sente longe a goe vnto Onias the hye Prieste, from Arius, whyche then raygned amonge you: That ye are oure brethren, as the wrytynge made thereupon specifyeth. And Onias entreateth the embassytoure that was sente, honorablye, and receaued the letters: Wherein there was mencion made of the bande of loue and frendshyppe. But as for vs, we nede no suche wrytynges: For why? We haue the holye bookes of scrypture in oure hāds to oure comforte: Neuertheleſſe, we hadde rather sende vnto you, for the renuynge of the brotherhode and frendshyppe: lest we shoulde be straūge vnto you: For it is long, sence the time that ye sent vnto vs. Wherfore in the sacrifices that we offre and other ceremonies vpon the hie solempne dayes and other, we alwaye remembre you without cea Jnmeſſlyke as reason is, and as it becōmeth vs to thynche vpon our brethren: yea, and are right glad of your prosperous honoure. And thoughe we haue had great troubles and warres, so that the kynges aboute vs haue foughten agaynste vs: yet wolde we not be greuous vnto you, nor to other of oure louers and frendes in these warres: For we haue had helpe from heāē, so that we are delyuered and oure enemies subdued. Wherefore we chose Numenius the sonne of Antiochus, & Antipater the sonne of Jason, and sente them vnto the Romaines, for to renue the C olde bonde of frendshyppe and loue wyth them. We commaunded them also to come vnto you to salute you, and to delyuer you oure letters, concernynge the renouacion of oure brotherhode. And nowe ye shall doe right well, to geue vs an answere therunto. And this is the coppe of the wrytynge, whiche Arius the kynge of Sparta sente vnto Onias. Arius kynge of the Spartiās sendeth greetinge vnto Onias the hye prieste. It is founde in wrytynge, that the Spartians and Jewes are brethrē, and come out of the generacion of Abraham. And nowe for so muche as this is come to oure knowledge, ye shall doe wel to wryte vnto vs of youre prosperite. As for vs, we haue written oure mynde vnto you: Oure cattell and goodes are youres, and youres oures. These thynges haue we commaunded to be shewed vnto you. When Jonathas hearde that Demetrius prynces wer come forth to fyght agaynst hym, with a greater hoost then afore, he went from Jerusalem, and met them in the lande of Hemath, for he gaue theym not space to come into hys owne countree. And he sent spies vnto their tentes, whiche came agayne & tolde hym, that they wer appoynted to come vpō him in the nyghte season. Wherefore, when the sunne was gone doune, Jonathas cōmaūded his men to watche al the nyght, and to be ready with weapens for to fyghte: And sette watchmen rounde aboute the hoofte. But when the aduersaries hearde that Jonathas was readye with hys men to the batayle, they feared, and were afrayed in their hearres, and kindled fires in their tēres, brake vp, and gate thē awaye. Neuertheles, Jonathas and hys companye knewe it not tyl the morwnynge, for they sawe the fyres burnynge. Then Jonathas folowed vpon thē, but he myght not ouertake thē, for they were gone ouer the water Eleutherus. So Jonathas departed vnto the Arabians (whyche were called Zebadei) slewe them, and take their goodes. He proceeded further also, and came vnto Damascus, and wente thorowe all that countreye. D But Simon hys brother toke his iourney and came to Ascalon, & to the next stronge holdes: departinge vnto Joppa, & wanne it. For he heard that they wolde stande of Demetrius partye: wherfore he set men of war in the citie, to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home agayne, & called the elders of the people together: and denyfed wyth them for to builde vp the stronge holdes in Jewrye, and the walles of Jerusalem, to set vp an hye wall betwyxt the castell and the citie, for to separate it frō the citie, that it might be alone, and that men shuld neither bye nor sell in it. Vpon this they came together for to buylde vp the citie, and for so muche as the wall vpon the brooke of the west

well syde (called Caphetlah) was fallē down, they repaired it. And Simon set vp Adiadah in Sephelah, and made it stronge, settyng portes and lockes vpon it. Nowe whē 1.ma.11.c. Iose.cap. 29.li.13. * Tryphon purposed to raygne in Asia, to be crowned, and to slaye the kynge Antiochus: he was afrayed that Jonathas wolde not suffre him, but fyght agaynst hym.

Wherefore he wente aboute to take Jonathas, and to kyll hym. So he departed, and came vnto Bethsan. Then wēt Jonathas forth against him to the battail with fourtye thousande chosen men, and came vnto Bethsan also. But when Tryphon sawe that Jonathas came with so great an host to destroye him, he was afrayed: and therefore he receaued him honourably, commended him vnto al his frendes, and gaue hym rewardes, & commaunded his men of warre to be as obedyent vnto him, as to him self. And sayde vnto Jonathas: why hast thou caused this people to take suche trauayle, seynge there is no warre betwixte vs? Therefore sende them home agayne, and chose certayne men to wayte vpon the, and come thou wyth me to Ptolomays: for I wyl geue it the, with the other stronge holdes, men of warre and their officers: As for me, I must departe, this is onely the cause of my commynge. Jonathas beleued hym, and dyd as he sayde, put kynge awaye hys host, whiche wente into the lande of Juda. He kept but .iii.M. by him, wherof he sent, ii.M. into Galile, and one.M. wente wyth him selfe. Nowe as soone as Jonathas entred into Ptolomays, the citezins sparred the gates of the citye, and toke hym, and slewe all them with the swearde, that came in with him. Then sent Tryphon an hoost offote men and horsemen into Galilee, and into the great playne felde, to destroye all Jonathas company. But when they knew that Jonathas was taken, & al they slayne that wayted vpon him: they toke councell together, and came forth readye to the battayle. So when they whiche folowed vpon thē, sawe that it was a matter of lyfe, they turned backe againe. As for the other, they went into the land of Juda peaceably, and bewayled Jonathas, and them that were with him right sore. And Israel made great lamentacyon. Then all the Heathen that were rounde aboute them, sought to destroye them. For they sayde: nowe haue they no captayne, nor anye man to helpe them. Therfore let vs ouercome them, and rote out their name from among men.

NOwe when Simon herd that Tryphon gathered a great host, to come into the lāde of Juda, & to destroy it: & saw that the people was in great fearfulnes & care: He came vp to Jerusalem, & gathered the people together, & gaue them exhortacion, sayinge: ye know what great battails I & my brethren & my fathers house foughte for the lawe and the Sanctuarye, and what maner of troubles we haue sene: wherowe occasion wherof * all my brethren are slayne for Israelles sake, and I am lefte alone. And nowe let me not spare myne owne life in any maner of trouble, for I am no better then my brethren: but wil auenge my people and the Sanctuary, our childrē and oure wyues: for all the Heathen are gathered together, to destroye vs of verye malyce. At these wordes the hearte of the people were kyndled together, so that they cryed with a loude voyce, sayinge: Thou shalte be oure captayne in steade of Judas and Jonathas thy brethren, order thou our battell, and whatsoeuer thou commaundest vs, we shall do it. So he gathered all the men of warre, makynge haste to fynisshe all the walles of Jerusalem, wherwyth he made stronge rounde aboute. Then sent he Jonathas the sonne of Absalomus wyth a freshe hoost vnto Joppa, whyche draue theym oute that were in the castell, and remayned there hym selfe. Tryphon also remoued from Ptolomays with a greate armye, to come into the lande of Juda, and Jonathas with him in warde. And Simon pytched hys tentes at Addus before the playne felde. But when Tryphon knewe that Simon stoode vp in steade of hys brother Jonathas, and that he wouldē warre against him: he sent messengers vnto hym, sayinge: Where as we haue kepte Jonathas thy brother, it is for money that he is owynge in the kynges accompte, concernynge the busynesse that he had in hande. Wherfore sende now an hundred talētes of syluer, and his two sonnes for suerty, that when he is letten forth he shal not forsake vs: and we shall sende hym agayne. Neuertheles Simon knewe, that he dyssembled in his wordes: yet commaunded he the money and chyldren to be delyuered vnto hym: lest he shoulde be the greater enemye agaynst the people of Israell: and saye, because he sent hym not the money and the chyldren, therefore is Jonathas deade. So Simon sente hym the childrē, and an hundreth talentes, but he dissembled, and wold not lette Jonathas goe. Afterwarde came Tryphon into the lande, to destroye it, and wente rounde aboute by the waye, that leadeth vnto Ador. But where so euer they went, thither went Simon and his hooste also. Nowe they that were in the castell, sente messaungers vnto Tryphon, that he shoulde make haste to come by the wyldernesse, and to sende them vytayles. And Typhon made ready all hys hostmen, to come that same nyght. Neuertheles it was a verye greate snowe, so that he came not in Gileadithim. And when he drewe nye Bathlama, he slewe Jonathas, and his son-nes ther, and them tourned for to go home unto his owne lande. Then sent Simon for to fet his brothers dead coarse, and buried it in Modin in his fathers citie. So all Israel bewayled him with greate lamentacion, and moorned for hym very long. And Simon made vpon the Sepulchre of hys father and hys brethren, a buylynge hye to looke vnto, of free stone behynde and before, and set vp seuen pyllers, one agaynste another (for his father, his mother, & foure brethren) and set great pillers rounde about with armes vpon them for a perpetual memorye, & carued shippes beside the armes: that they myght be sene of men sayling in the sea. Thys sepulchre, whiche he made at Modin, standeth yet vnto thys daye.

Josep. ca. 5. lib. 13. Now as Typhon went forth to watche with the yonge kynge Antiochus, he slew hym trayterously, and raygned in hys stede, crowned hym selfe kynge of Asis, and dyd muche euyll in the lande. Simon also builde vp many castels in Jewry, ma-kynge them stronge with hye towres, great walles, portes, and lockes, & layde vp vitayles in the stronge holde. And Simon chose certayne men, and sente them to kynge Demetrius: To desire hym that he wolde discharge the lande fre al bondage, for Typhon hadde spoyled it verye sore. Where vpon Demetrius the kynge answered him: and wrote vnto him after this maner. Demetrius the kyng sendeth greetinge vnto Simon the hye Priestе hys frende, with the elders and people of the Jewes. The golde crowne and precious stone that ye sent vnto vs, haue we receyued: and are ready to make a stedefast peace with you: yea, and to write vnto oure officers, for to releale you, concernyng the thynges whein we made you fre: and the appoyntment that we make with you, shall be firme and stable. The stronge holdes whiche ye haue builded, shall be youre owne. As for anye ouersight or faute chaunced vnto this day, we forgeue it: and the crowne taxe that ye ought vs also. And where as was anye other tribute in Jerusalem, it shal nowe be no tribute: and loke who are mete among you, to be in oure court: let them be written vp, that there maye be peace betwixte vs.
Thus the yocke of the heathen was taken fro Israell, in the hundred and seuentyeth yere. And the people of the Jewes beganne to write in their letters and actes on thys manner. In the fyrste yeare of Simon the 1.Mach.14 hye Priestе, and prynce of the Jewes. In thole dayes wente Simon vnto Gaza, and beseged it rounde about, where he set vp ordynaunce of warre. And wanne a towre, which he toke. So they that gat into the towre, leapte into the citye, whyche was in a greate feare: In so muche that the people of the Cytye rente theyr clothes, and clymed vp vpon the walles with their wyues and children, beseechynge Simon to be at one with them, sayinge: O re-warde vs not after oure wickednes, but be gracious vnto vs, and we shal doe thee ser-uyce. Then Simon for verye pitie, woulde fight no more agaynst them, but put them out of the citye, & caused the houses (where in the ymages were) to be clensed, and so en-tred the citie with Psalmes of prayse, ge-uing thanckes vnto the Lord. So whe he had caste al abhominacions out of the city, he set such mē in it as kept the law of god, and made the citye stronge, and buylded a dwellinge place for him selfe. Nowe, when they in the castel at Jerusalem were kepte so straytly that they coulde not come forth into the countrie, and myghte neyther bye nor sel: they were verye hungrye, and many of them famyshed to deathe: In so muche that they besought Simon to be at one with them, which he graunted them. So he put them oute frome thence, and clensed the castell from fylthynesse. And vpon the xxiii. daye of the seconde moneth in the clxxi. yere, they entred into it with thanckesgeuinge, and braunches of palme trees, with harpes, croudes, cimbals, and lutes, singyng psalmes, & songes of prayse vnto God, for that the greate enemye of Israell was ouercome. And Simon ordeyned that the same daye shulde be kepte euery yeare in gladnesse, and made stronge the hyll of the tēple that was beside the castell, where he dwelt him selfe with hys companye. Simon also perceauyng that John his sonne was a mightye man of armes, made hym captayne of all the hoostes and caused him to dwel at Gaza. ¶ The xiii. Chapter.

In the clxxii. yere, gathered hinge Demetri⁹ his hoste, & departed vnto Media, to get hi helpe for to fight agaynst Typhon. Now whē Arsaces the king of Persia & Medea, heard that Demetri⁹ was en-tred within his borders, he sent one of hys princes to take him alue: & to bringe hym vnto him. So he went, & slew Demetrius hoste, toke him selfe, brought hym to Arsaces, whiche kept him in warde. And all the lande of Juda was in rest so longe as Simon lyued, for he sought the wealthe of hys

his people, therefore were they glad to haue hym for their ruler, and to bee hym worshyppe alwaye. Simon wanne the citie of Joppa also for an hauen towne, and made it an entraunce into the Iles of the sea. He enlarged the borders of his people, and conquered them more lande: he gathered by many of their people that were prisoners: he had the dominion of Gaza, Bethsura, and the castell, whyche he clensed frome filthynesse, and there was no man that resisted him: So that euerye man tylled hys grounde in peace, the lāde of Juda, and the trees gaue their fruite and encrease. The elders sat all in iudgement, and toke theyr bountye, for the wealth of the lande: the yonge men put on worshyp, and harnes vpon them. He prouided vitaples for the cities, & made goodly stronge holdes of them: so that the fame of his worshyp was spoken of vnto Leu. 26. a the ende of the worlde. * For he made peace thorowout the lande, & Israell was full 3. reg. 3. a of mirth and ioye. Euerye man sat vnder hys vine and figtrees, and ther was no māne to feare them awaye. There was none in the lande to fighte agaynste them, for then the kynges were ouercome. He helped those that were in aduersitie amonge his people, he was diligent to se the lawe kepte: as for such as were vngodly and wicked, he toke them away. He set by the Sanctuary, and encreased the holye vessels of the temple.

When the Romaynes and Sparrians had gotte worde, that Jonathas was mad, they were eyght sory. But when they heard that Simon his brother was made hie Prieste in his stede, & how he had wonne the lāde agayne, with the cities in it: they wrote vnto him in tables of brasse, to renue the frēdeship, and bonde of loue, whyche they hadde 1. Mac. 8. c made afore with * Judas & Jonathas and. 12. a his brethren. Whiche writynges were read before the congregacion at Jerusalem. And this is the coppe of the letters, that the Spascians sente: The Senatours, and citezins of Sparta, sende gretyng vnto Simon the greate Prieste, with the Elders, priestes, and the other people of the Jewes, their brethren: When your embassitoures ether were sent vnto oure people, certified vs of your worshippe, honour and prosperous wealth: we wer glad of their cōming, and haue written the earande, whiche they spake before the councell of the people: Namely, that Numenius the sonne of Antiochus, and Antipater the sonne of Jason, the Jewes embassitours are come vnto vs, for to renue the olde frendshyppe with vs. Vpon thys, the people consented, that the men shoulde be honourably entreated, and that the coppe of their earaunde should be writen in the special bokes of the people, for a perpetuall memorye vnto the Spartians: yea, and that we shulde sende a copy of the same vnto Simon the greate priest. After this did Simō sende Numenius vnto Rome, with a golden shilde of a thousande pounde wepght, to confirme the frendshyp with them, whiche when the Romaynes vnderstode, they sayde: what thanckes shal we recompence agayne vnto Simō & his children? For he hathe stablished his brethrē, & ouercome the enemies of Israell. Wherefore they graunted him to be free. And all thys wrote the Jewes in tables of brasse, & nayled it vnto the pyllers vpon the mounte Sion. The coppe of the wrytynge is thys. The xviii. daye of the moneth * Elul, in the. Clxxii. yeare, in the thirde yeare of Simon the hye Prieste, in the great congregacion of the Priestes, rulers of the people, & elders of the countre at Asarame, were these wordes openly declared. For so muche as there was much warre in oure land, therefore Simō the sonne of Machathias (come of the children of Jareb) and hys brethren, put them selues in parell, and resysted the enemyes of theyr people: That their Sanctuarye and lawe might be mayntened, and dyd theyr people great worshyp: Jonathas in like maner, after that he had gouerned his people and bene their hye prieste: dyed, and lyeth buried by the sepulchres his elders. After that would their enemies haue troden their holy thinges vnder foote, destroyed their lande, and beterye wasted theyr Sanctuarye. Then Simon withstod them, and fought for his people, spente muche of hys owne money, weapened the valeaunte men of hys people, gaue them wages, made stronge the cities of Juda, with Bethsura that lyeth vpon the borders of Jewrye (where the ordynaunce of their enemyes laye sometyme) and sette Jewes there for to kepe it. He made fast Joppa also, whiche lieth vpō the sea, and Gaza that bordreth vpon Azotus, (where the enemyes dwelte afore) and there he sette Jewes to kepe it: and whatsoeuer was mete for the subduynge of the aduersaryes, that layed he therein. Nowe when the people sawe the noble actes of Simon, and what worshyppe he purposed to do for them, hys godly behaueoure, and faythfulnesse, whiche he kepte vnto them, and howe he sought by all wayes the welth of his people, because he dyd all this, therefore they chose hym to be their prynce, and hie Prieste. And in this time they prospered wel by hym, so that the Heythen were taken oute of that lande: & they also whych were in the Cytee of Dauid at Jerusalem, lohem in the castell (where they were) oute and defyled all thynges that were aboute the Sanctuary, and dyd greate harme vnto cleanlynesse) and Simon put men of the Jewes in it, for the defence of the land and citye, and sette vp the walles of Jerusalem. And kynge Demetrius confirmed him in hys hye priesthode, made him his frend, and dyd hym greate worshyppe. For he hearde that the Romaynes called the Jewes theyr frendes, louers and brethren, howe honourablye they receaued Simons ambassadoures: howe the Jewes and priestes cõsented that he shoulde be their Prince and hye priest perpetuallye (till God raysed vp the true prophete) and that he shoulde be their capteyne, to care for the Sanctuary, and to sette officers vpon the workes therof, ouer the lande, ouer the weapons, ouer the houses of defence, to make prouision for the holye thinges, & to be obeyed of euerye man, and all the wrytinges of the land to be made in hys name: that he shoulde be clothed in purple and golde, and that it shoulde be lawefull for none of the people, nor priestes to breake any of these thynges, to withstande hys wordes, nor to call any congregation in the lande without him: that he shoulde be clothed in purple, and weare a collar of golde: And if there were anye which disobeyed or brake this ordinaunce, that he shoulde be punished. So all the people consented to alowe Simon, and to doe accordynge to these wordes: Simon also him selfe toshe it vpon him, and was content to be the hye priest, the capteyne, and prynce of the Jewes and priestes, and to gouerne them all. And they commaunded to make thys writynge in tables of brasse, and fasten it vnto the compasse of the Sanctuarye in an open place: and to lay vp a coppe of the same in the treasury, that Simon and his posterite might haue it.

MOreouer kinge Antiochus the son of Demetrius sent letters from the Iles of the sea, vnto Simõ the hye priest & prince of the Jewes, & to all the people, cõteinig these wordes: Antiochus the king sendth greetinge vnto Simon the hye priest, & to the people of the Jewes. For so much as certayne wicked men haue gotten the kingdõ of oure progenitoures, I am purposed to chalenge the realme againe, and to restore it to the olde estate. Wherefore, I haue gathered a great hoste, and made shippes of warre, that I maye go throughout the countrye, & be auenged of them, which haue destroyed oure land, and wasted many cities in my realme. And therefore, nowe I make the free also from all the tributes, wherwith kinges my progenitours haue discharged the: and frome other customes (wherfrom they haue released thee) whatsoeuer they be yea, I giue thee leaue to smite money of thyne owne within thy lande. As for Jerusalem, I will that it be holy and free: and all the weapons and houses of defence, which thou haste buylded, and kepest in thine handes, shall be thyne. Where as any thinge is or shalbe owynge vnto the kinge, I forgiue it the, from this time forth for euermore. And whē we haue obtayned oure kyngedome, we shall doe the, thy people and the temple greate worshyp: so that youre honoure shall be knowen throughout the whole worlde. In the C.lxxiiij. yere went Antiochus into his fathers lande, and al the men of warre came togither vnto him, so that fewe were lefte with Typhon. So the kynge Antiochus followed vpon him, but he fled vnto Dora, which lyeth by the sea syde: for he saw that there was mischefe commynge vnto him, and that hys host had forsaken hym. Then came Antiochus vnto Dora with an. C. & twenty thousande men of armes vpō foote, and eyght thousande horsmen. So he cõpassed the citie rounde aboute, & the shippes came by the sea. Thus they vexed the citye by land and by water, in so much that they suffred no man to go in or out. In the meane season came + Numenius (and they that had bene with him) frome the cyte of Rome, hauynge letters wrytten vnto the kynges and prouinces, wherin were conteyned these wordes: Lucius the Mayre of Rome sendeth greetinge vnto Ptolomy the kynge. The embassyoures of the Jewes oure frendes, beynge sent from Simon the hye priestе, and frome the people of the Jewes, came vnto vs for to renue the olde frendshyppe and bonde of loue, & brought a shilde of golde, weyinge a. M. pounde, which we were content to receaue of them. Wherefore, we thought it good to write vnto the kinges and prouinces, to do them no harme, nor to take parte against them, their cities, nor countrey, neither to mayntayne their enemyes against them. If there be any wicked persones therfore, fled from them vnto you, delyuer them vp to Simon the hie priestе, that he maye punysshe them after his owne law. The same wordes wrote the Romaynes also vnto Demetrius the kinge: to Attalus, Arabia, Arsaces, & to all the regions: as Sampsames, to them of Sparta, Delo, Mindo, Sicion, Caria, Samos, Pamphilia, Licia, Halicarnassum, and to the Rhodes, to Phaselus, Coo, Side, Arado, Gortina, Gnydum, to Cipses & to Cirt. And of euery lettre they sent a copye to Simon the hye preest, and to the people of the Iewes. So Antiochus the kynge brought his hoste vnto Doza the seconde time, to take it: where he made diuerse ordinaunces of warre, and kept Tryphon in, that he shoulde not come forthe. Then sent Simon to Antiochus two thousande chosen men to helpe him with gold, siluer, & other plenteous geere: neuertheles, he wolde not receaue them, but brake all the conenaunt which he made with Simon afore, and withdrewe him selfe from him. He sent Athenobi⁹ also a frende of his vnto Simon, for to reason with him, saying: ye withholde from me Joppa & Gaza, with the castell that is at Jerusalem, whyche are cities of my realme, whose borders ye haue destroyed, and done great euel in the land, hauinge the dominion in many other places of my kyngdome. Wherefore, delyuer nowe the cities, whiche ye haue take, with the tributes of the places that ye haue rule vpon without the borders of Jewrye: Or els geue me fyue hundred talentes of siluer: yea, and for the harme that ye haue done in the cytes, & for the tributes of the same, other fyue hundred talentes. If no, we shal come and fyghte agaynst you. So Athenobius the kynges frende came to Jerusalem, and when he sawe the greate worthyp and honoure of Simon, in golde, siluer, and so great plentye of ornamentes: he meruayled & tolde Simon as the kynge commanded him. Then answered Simon, and sayd vnto hym: As for vs, we haue neyther taken other mens landes, nor wyth holden the, but onely our fathers heritage, whiche our enemies had vnrighteously in possession a certayne time. Thys heritage of our fathers, haue we chalenged in processe of time. And where as thou complaynest concernynge Joppa and Gaza, they did greate harme to our people, and in our lande, yet wyll we geue an hundred talentes for the. Neuertheles, Athenobius answered him not one worde, but turned agayne wrathfully vnto the kyng, and tolde him al these wordes, and the greate dignitie of Symon, with al that he had sene, and the kyng was verye angrye. In the meane tyme fled Tryphon by shyp vnto Ortholaida. Then the kynge made Cendebeus captayne of the sea coste, and gaue him an hoste of foote men and horsemen, commaundynge him to remoue the hoost towarde Jewrye, and to buylde vp the cytye of Cedron, to make vp the portes, and to warre agaynst the people of the Iewes. As for the kynge him selfe he followed vpon Tryphon. So Cendebeus came vnto Jamnia, and began to vexe the people, to treade downe Jewrye, to take the people prysoners, to slaye them, and to buylde vp Cedron, where he set horsemen, and other men of warre, that they might come forth, and go thorow the streetes of Jewrye, lyke as the kynge hadde commaunded hym.

When came John vp fro Gaza, & tolde Simon his father, what Cendebeus had done amonge their people. Vpon thys, called Simon two of his eldest sons, Judas & John, & said vnto the: I & my brethren & my fathers house, haue euer from our youth vp vnto this day, foughte agaynst the enemies of Israel, & god gaue vs good fortune to delyuer Israel ofte tymes. And now, for so much as I am old, be ye in stead of me, and my brother, go forth & fyghte for our people, and the helpe of god be with you. So he chose. xx. thousande fighting men of the countre, with horsmen also, which went forth against Cendebeus, & rested at Modin. In the morning they arose, and went into the playne felde: and beholde, a mighty great hoost came agaynste them, both of foremen and horsemen. Betwe was there a water broode betwene yer them, and John remoued the hoost towarde them. And when he sawe that the people was afrayde to go ouer the water broode, he went ouer first him selfe: and the men seyng this, followed him. Then John set his horsmen and foremen in ordre; the one by the other for their enemies horsmen were verye many. But when they blewe vp the prestes trompettes, Cendebeus fledde with his hoostle, wherof many were slayne, and the remaunte gate them to their stronge holde. Judas also Johns brother, was wounded at the same time. And John folowed styll vpo the enemies, tyl he came to Cedron, which he builded. The enemies fledde also vnto the towres that were in the felde of Azotes, & thole did John burne vp. Thus there were slayne two. xx. men of them, & John touened agayne peaceably into Jewrye. And in the felde of Jericho was Ptolomy the son of Abobus made captayne: whiche because he had aboundaunce of siluer and golde (for he had maryed the doughter of Simon the hye preest) waxed proude in his mynde, and thoughte to conquere the lande, imagynynge falsely agaynst Simon and his sonnes, to destroye them. Now as Simon was goynge about thoroow the cities, that were in the countre of Jewrye, and carynge for them: he came downe to Jericho with Mathathias and Judas his sonnes, in the. C. lxxvii. yeare, in the. xi. moneth called

* Sabat.

January. Sabat. Then Ptolomy the sonne of Abobus receyued them (but with disceyte) into a stronge house of hys, called Woch, which he had buylded, where he made the an baket. So when Simon and his sonnes were merry and had dronken wel, Ptolomy stode vp with his men (whom he had hyd there) and toke theyr weapons, entred into the banket house, and slewe Simon with hys two sonnes, and certayne of his seruautes. Suche greate vnkyndfulnesse dyd Ptolomy in Israell, and recompensed euyll for good. Then wrote this Ptolomy the same vnto kinge Antiochus, requiring him, that he should sende him an hoost to helpe him: and so shoulde he deliuer hym the lande, with the cityes and tributes of the same. He sente other men also vnto Gaza, for to take John: and wrote vnto the captaines to come to hym, and he shoulde geue them syluer, golde, and rewardes. And to Jerusalem he sente other, to take it, and the Sãctuarye. Then ranne there one before, and tolde John in Gaza, that hys father, and hys brethren were slayne, and howe that Ptolomy had sent to slaye him also. When John heard this, he was sore abashed, and layed handes of them that were come to destroye hym, and slew them: for he knew, that they wente about to kil him. As for other thinges cõcernyng John: of his warres, of his noble actes (wherein he behaued him selfe manfully) of the buyldige of walles whiche he made, and other of his vdes: They are wryten in the chronicles of hys priesthode, from the time forth that he was made hye priest after hys father.

¶ An Epistle of the Jewes that dwelt at Jerusalē, sent vnto the that dwelt in Egipte: wherin they exhorte the to gene thankes for the deth of Antiochus. Of the fyre that was hid in the pit. The prayer of Nehemias.

THe brethre of the Jewes which be at Jerusalē, and in the lāde of Jewry, wysshe vnto those brethren of the Jewes that are throwoute Egipte: good fortune, health, & peace, God be gracious vnto you, & thynke vpon hys couenaunte that he made with Abrahā, Isaac, & Jacob his faithfull seruauntes: & gene you al suche an heart, that ye may loue and serue him: yea, and perfourme his wyll with an whole heart, & of a willing mynde. He open your hertes in his lawe and in his commaundemētes, sende you peace, heare your prayers, be at one with you, and neuer forsake you in time of trouble. This is here our prayer for you. What tyme as Demetrius raygned, in C. lxix. yere, we Jewes wrote vnto you in the trouble and violence that came vnto vs. In those yeres, after that Jason departed out of the holy lāde & lyng home, they brent vp the portes, & shed innocent bloude. Then made we our prayer vnto the Lord, and we harde: we offred, & lighted the candels, set vpp the lothes & breade: And now come ye vnto the feast of tabernacles in the moneth Casleu. In the C. lxxx viii. yere, the prophet that was at Jerusalem and in Jewry, the counsayle & Judas him selfe, sende this wholsome saluta-cion vnto Aristobolus kynge Ptolomyes master, whiche came of the generatiō of the annoynted preystes: and to the Jewes that were in Egypte: In so much as God hathe deliuered vs from great perilles, we thanke him hyghly. In that we resysted so myghty a kynge. And why? he broughte men out of Persis by heapes, to fyght agaynste vs and the holy citye. For as he was in Persis (namely, the Captaynte wyth the greate hoste) he perysshed in the temple of Nanea, beynge disceaued throwe the deuyce of Naneas preistes. For as he was purposed to haue dwelte there, Antiochus and his frendes came thether, to receyue muche money for a dowrye. So when Naneas preistes had layed forthe the moneye, he entred wyth a small companye into the compasse of the temple, and so they shut the temple. Nowe when Antiochus entred by ayenynge the yeruy intraunce of the tēple, the preistes stoned the captayne to deathe, hewed them in peces that were wyth him, smote of their heades, & thewe them oute. In al thynges God be praysed, which hath deliuered the wycked, into oure handes. Where as we are nowe purposed to kepe the purificacion of the temple vpon the. xxv. day of the moneth Casleu, we thought necessarye to certifye you therof: that ye also myghte & kepe the tabernacles feaste daye, and the daye of the fyre, wherby was gyuen vs, whē Nehemias offred, after that he had set vp the temple and the auter. For what tyme as oure fathers were led awaye vnto Persis, the preistes (whyche then slaughte the honoure of God) toke the fyre priuely from the auter, and hyd it in a valley, where as was a depe dry pyt: and

When this was done, and the time come that the Sunne shone, whiche afore was hyd in the cloude: there was a greate fire kyndled. In so much that euery man maruepled. Nowe all the preistes prayed, while the sacrifyce was a making. Jonathas prayed first, and the other gaue answere. And Nehemias prayer was after this maner: O Lord god maker of all thynges, thou fearefull and strong, thou righteous, and merciful, thou that art onely a gracious kynge, onely liberall, onelye iuste, almyghtye and euerlastinge, thou that delyuerest Israell from all trouble, thou that haste chosen the fathers, and halowed them: receyue the offrynge for the whole people of Israel, preserue thyne owne portion, and halowe it, gather those togyther, that are scatred abrode from vs: deliuer them that are vnder the heathens bondage, loke vpon them whiche are despised and abhorred, that the Heythen may knowe and se, how that thou art oure God: punish e them that oppresse, and prondelye put vs to dishonoure. Then the kynge considringe and pondringe the matter dilygently, made him a temple to proue the thyng that was done. And when he founde it so in dede, he gaue the preistes manye gyftes and diuers rewardes: yea, he woke them with his awne hande and gaue them. And Nehemias called the same place Nephthey, wyche is as

For though they were but fewe, yet defended they the whole lande, drone awaye the ennemyes hoaste, recouered agayne the temple, that was spoken of throwoute all the world, delyuered the cityе: dorynge theyr beate, that the lawe of the Lorde which was put downe, myght with all tranquillytie be restored agayne vnto the Lorde, that was so mercyfull vnto them. As touchynge Jason also of Cyren, we haue vndertaken compendeously to dryuge into one booke, the thynges that were comprehended of hym in fyue. For we consyderynge the multytude of the bookes, and howe harde it shoulde be for them that wolde medle wyth storyes and actes (and that because of so dyuerse matters) haue vndertaken so to comprehende the storyes: that suche as are dysposed to reade, myghte haue pleasure and pastyme therin: and that they whiche are diligente in suche thynges, myght the better thincke vpon them: yea, and that wholsoeuer reade
c them, might haue profyte therby. Neuertheleſſe, we oure selues that haue medled with this matter for the shortenynge of it, haue taken no small laboure, but great dylygence, watchynges and trauayle. Lyke as they that make a feaste, wolde fayne do other men pleasure: Euen so we also (for many mens sakes) are very well content to take the labour, where as we may shortly cõprehende, the thinges that other mẽ haue truly writtẽ. For he that buildeth an house anew, must prouyde for all maner thynges, to the whole buyldynge: but he that purposeth it afterwarde, seketh but onelye what is comly, mete and conuenient to garnysshe it withal. Euen so do we also in lyke maner. And why? We that begynneth to write a story for the first, must with his vnderstandige gather the matter together, set hys wordes in ordre, & diligẽtly serche out of euery part: But he that afterwarde will shorten it, byseth few wordes, & rouncheth not the matter at the largest: Let this be sufficiente for a Prologe, now wil we begynne to shew the matter: for it is but a folish thig to make a longe Prologe, and to be short in the storye it selfe.

WHat time as the holy cytie was inhabited in al peace & wealth, & whẽ the lawes were yet very wel kepte. (For so was it ordeyned by Onias the hye priestes & other godlye men that were enemies to wickednesse) It came therto * that

2. mac. 3. b of Thersa (whiche then was cheke Lorde in Celosiria and Phenices) and tolde him, that the treasurye in Jerusalem was full of innumerable money, and how that the comon goodes (whiche belonged not vnto the offerynges, were exceadynge greate also: yea, and how it wer possyble, that all these might come vnder the kinges power. Now when Appolonius had shewed the king of the money, as it was tolde hym: the kynge called for Heliodorus his stewarde, & sente him with a cõmaundement, to bringe hym
B the same money. Immediatly Heliodorus tooke his iourneye, but vnder a colour, as though he would go thorow Celosiria and Phenices to vyset the cityes, but his purpose was to fulfyll the kinges pleasure. So when he came to Jerusalem, and was louyngly receaued of the hye Priest into the cityе: he tolde what was determined cõcernynge the money, and shewed the cause of his comminge: he asked also, yf it were so in dede. Then the hye Priestе tolde hym, that there was such money layed vp for the vpholdynge of wydowes and fatherlesse children, and how that a certayne of it belonged vnto Hircanus Tobias a noble man: and that of all the money (whiche that wycked Simon hadde bewrayed) ther were .iii. hundreth talentes of syluer, and .ii. hundreth of golde: yea, and that it were vnpossible for those mens meanynge to be disceaued, that had layed vp their money in the place and temple (whiche is had in worshyp thorowe the whole worlde) for the mayntenaūce and honour of the same. Where vnto Heliodorus aunswered, that the kinge had cōmaunded him in any wise to bringe hym the money. So at the daye appoynted, Heliodorus entred into the tēple to ordre this matter. But there was no smal feare thorowout the whole citie. The Priestes fell downe before the aulter in their bestimentes, and called vnto heauen Exo.22.d vpon hym, * which had made a lawe concernynge stuffe geuen to kepe, that they shulde be safely preserued for suche as cōmitte them vnto kepynge. Then who so hadde loked the hye Priestе in the face, it would haue greued his heart: for his countenaunce and the chaunging of his colour, declared the inwarde sorowe of his mynde. The man was al in heuinesse, and hys body in feare: whereby they that looked vpon him, mighte perceaue the greefe of his heart. The other people also came oute of theyr houses by heapes vnto the comon prayer, because the place was lyke to come into cōfusion. The women came together thorow the streates, with heerye clothes about their breastes. The virgyns also, that were kepte in, ranne to Onias, some in the walles, other some looked oute of the wyndowes: yea, they al helde vp theyr handes towarde heauen, and prayed. A miserable thinge was it, to loke vpon the comen people, and the hye priest beyng in such trouble. But they besoughte almyghty GOD, that the goodes, whiche were committed vnto them, might be kepte whole, for those that hadde delyuered them vnto theyr kepynge. Neuertheles, the thing that Heliodorus was determined to do, that performed he in the same place, he him selfe personally beeing about the treasury with his men of warre. But the spyte of almyghty God shewed hym selfe openlye, so that all they whiche presumed to obeye Heliodorus, fell thorowe the power of God into a great fearefulnesse and drede. * For ther 2.Ma.3.c appeared vnto them an horse, with a terri- and.5.d. ble man sitting vpon him, decked in goodly araye, and the horse smote at Heliodorus with hys foore fete. Mowe he that sat vpon the horse, had harnesse of golde vpon him. Moreouer, ther appeared two fayre & bewtifull ponge men in goodlye araye, whiche stode by him, scourged hym of bothe the syde, and gaue hym many strypes without ceasynge. * With that felle Heliodorus sodenly vnto the grounde. So they toke him vp (beynge compassed aboute with greate darcheneſſe) and bare him out vpon a bere. Thus he that came with so many runners and men of warre into ye sayde treasury, was borne oute, where as no man myghte helpe hym: and so the power of God was manifest and knowen. He laye styl domme also by the power of God, destytute of all hope and lyfe. And they praysed the Lorde, that he hadde shewed his power vpon hys place & temple, which a litle afore was full of feare and trouble: and that thorowe the reuelacion of the almyghtie Lorde, it was filled with ioye and gladnesse. Then certayne of Heliodorus frendes prayed Onias, that in all hast he wolde call vpon God, to graunte hym hys lyfe, whiche was geuinge vp the ghoste. So the hye Priestе considre the matter, and leste the kynge shoulde suspecte that the Jewes had done Heliodorus some euell: he offred an healthofferynge for hym. Nowe, when the hye Priestе hadde offeryd his petycion, the same ponge men in the same clothynge appeared, and stode beside Heliodorus, saynge: Thancke Onias the hye Priestе, for Act.27.d * hys sake hathe the Lorde graunted thee thy life: Therfore, seynge that God hathe scourged thee, geue hym prayse and thankes, and shewe euerye man hys might and power. And when they had spoken these wordes, they appered no more. So Heliodorus offred vnto God, and made greate bowes vnto him, which had graunted him his life, thanckid Onias, toke hys horse, and wente agayne to the kynge. Then testified he vnto euerye man of the greate workes of God, that he had sene with hys eyes. And when the kynge asked Heliodorus who were mete to be sente yet once agayne to Jerusalem, he sayd: yf thou haste any enemie or aduersary vnto thy realme, sende him thither, and thou shalt haue him punished, yf he escape with hys lyfe: for in that place (no doute) there is a speciall power and worshynge of God. For he that dwelleth in heauen, visiteth and defendeth that place: and al that come to do it harme he punisheth and plageth them. Thys is nowe the matter concernyng Heliodorus, and the kepynge of the treasurye at Jerusalem.

A 2.mac.3 a THys Simō now* (of whom we spake afoꝛe) beynge a bewꝛayer of the money & of his own natural cōtrey, repoꝛted the woꝛste of Onias: as thoughe he had moued Heliodoꝛus vnto this, and as thoughe he had bene a bꝛynger vp of euell. Thus was he not ashamed to call him an enemy of the realme, that was so faithfull an ouerseer and defender of the cytye & of hys people: yea, and so feruente in the lawe of God. But when the malyce of Simon increased so farre, that thoꝛowe hys frendes there wer certaine manslaughters committed: Onias consydered the parel that might come thoꝛowe thys stryfe, and howe that Appollonius (namelye the chefe Lorde in Celosiria and Phenices) was all set vpon tyranny, and Simons malice increased the same: He gat him to the kynge, not as an accuser of the cytezins, but as one that by him selfe intended the comen wealth of the whole multytude. Foꝛ he sawe it was not possyble to lyue in peace, nether Simon to leaue of from hys folyshnesse, excepte the kynge dyd loke therto. But after the death of Seleucus, when Antiochus (whyche is called the noble) toke the kyngedome: Jason the bꝛother of Onias laboured to be hye priest: Foꝛ he came vnto the kinge, and B promised him thze hundzeth & .lx. talētes of siluer, & of the other rentes. lxxx. talentes. Beslydes this he promised him yet an. C & .l. if he might haue the scole of the childꝛē, & that he might cal them of Jerusalem Antiochians. Whiche when the kynge had graunted, & he had gotte the superiozite, he beganne immediatly to dꝛaw hys kinsmen to the custome of the Heathen, put downe the thynges that the Jewes had set vp of loue, by John the father of Eupolemius which was sent ambassytoure vnto Rome, foꝛ to make the bonde offrendshyppe and loue. He put downe all the Jewes and Liberties of the Jewes, & set vp the wycked statutes. He durste make a fyghtynge scole vnder the castell, and set fayre younge men to learne the maners of whozes and bꝛothels. Thys was nowe the begynnynge of C the Heathenyshe and straunge conuersacyon, bꝛought in thoꝛowe the vngracious and vnheardе wyckednesse of Jason, which should not be called a priest, but an vngodly personne. In so much that the Priestes were nowe nomoze occupied about the seruyce of the aulter, but despysed the temple, regardednot the offerynge: yea, gaue theyr dylygence to learne to fight, to wꝛastle, to leape, to daunce, and to put at the stone, not settynge by the honoure of the fathers, but lyked the gloꝛye of the Grekes beste of all: foꝛ the whyche they stroue peꝛlously, and were gredy to folowe theyr statutes: yea, theur lust was in all thynges to be lyke them, whiche afoꝛe were theur enemies and destroyers. Howbeit to do wickedly agaynste the lawe of God, shall not escape vnpunyshed: but of thys we shal D spеake hereafter. What tyme as the * Olympiades spoꝛtes were played at Tyrus (the kynge hym selfe beynge psesente) thys vngracious Jason sent wycked men, beꝛyngefrom them of Jerusalem (whyche nowe were called Antiochiās) iii. C. dꝛachmas of syluer foꝛ an offeringe to Hercules. These had they that caryed them, desyred vnoer such a facyō, as though they should not haue bene offered but bestowed to other vses. Neuertheles, he that sent them, sente them to the intente that they shoulde be offred vnto Hercules. But because of those that were psesent, they wer genen as to the makynge of shippes. And Appolonis the sonne of Menetrus was sent into Egipt, because of the noble men of kynge Ptolomye Philometoꝛ. Nowe when Antiochus perceaued, that he was put out from medlinge in the realme, he sought his own pꝛoffyte, departed from thence, came to Joppa, and then to Jerusalem: where he was honozably receaued of Jason, and of the cytye, and was bꝛought in with toꝛche lyghte and wyth greate pꝛayse: and so he turned his hooste vnto Phenyces. After. iii. yeare Jason sente Menelaus, the foꝛsayde Si- E mons bꝛother, * to beare the money vnto 2.mac.4.b the kynge, and to bꝛynge him answere of other necessarye matters. But he (when he was pꝛayse of the kynge foꝛ magnifynge of hys power) turned the pꝛesthode vnto him selfe, layinge bp. iii. C. talentes of syluer foꝛ Jason. So when he had gotte commaundementes from the kynge (he came bauynge nothynge that becōmeth a priest) but bearige the stomacke of a cruel tiraūt, & the wrath of the wilde bꝛute beest. * The 1.mac.3.b Jason (which had disceaued his owne bꝛother) seynge that he him selfe was begyled also, was fayne to flie into the lande of the Ammonites, and Menelaus gat the dominion. But as foꝛ the moneye that he had pꝛomysed vnto the kyng, he dyd nothynge therin, when Sostratus the rulер of the castell requireth it of hym. Foꝛ Sostratus was the man that gathered the customes: wherfore they were bothe called before the kynge. Thus was Menelaus putte oute of the priesthod, and Lisimachus his brother came in hys steade. Sostratus also was made Lorde of the Cipzians. It happened in the meane season, that the Tharsians & Mallacians made insurrectiō, because they were geuen for a present vnto kyng Antiochus concubine. Then came the kyng in al the haste, to kyl them agayne, and to pacifie the matter, leauynge Andronicus there to be his vrbite, as one mete therfore. Now Menelaus supposynge that he had gotten a righte conuenient time, stole certayne vessels of golde oute of the temple, and gaue them to Andronicus for a present: and some he solde at Tirus, and in the cities therby.

F Whiche when Onias knewe of a suerty, he reproued him: but he kept him in a Sanctuarye, beside Daphnis, that lyeth by Antiochie. Wherefore Menelaus gat him to Andronicus, and prayed him that he would slaye Onias. So when he came to Onias, he counceled hym craftely to come oute of the Sanctuarye geuynge hym hys hande weth an othe (howe be it he suspecte hym) and then he slewe Onias, without any regarde of ryghteousnesse. For the whyche cause not onelye the Jewes, but other nacions also toke indignacion, and were displeased for the vnryghteous deathe of so godlye a man. And when the kynge was come agayne from Cilicia, the Jewes and certayne of the Grekes wente vnto hym, complaynynge for the vnryghteous death of Onias. yea, Antiochus him selfe was sorye in hys mynde of Onias, so that it pitied him, and he wepte, remembrynge hys sobernesse & manerly behauioure. Wherefore he was so kyndled in his mynde, that he commaunded Andronicus to be stripped oute of hys purple clothynge, and so to be led throwoute the citye: yea, and the vngracious man to be slayne in the same place where he committed hys wickednes vpon Onias. Thus the Lorde rewarded him his punishemente, as he had deserued. Nowe when Lisimachus had done many wycked dedes in the temple, throwe the councell

G of Menelaus, and the voyce came abrode: the multitude gathered them together agaynst Lisimachus: for he had caryed out nowe muche golde. So when the people arose, and were ful of displeasure, Lisimachus armed.iii.M. vnthryftes to defend him: a certayne tyrauute beynge their captayne, which was growen both in age and woodnesse. But whē the people vnderstode the purpose of Lisimachus, they gat stones, some good stronge clubbes, and some caste asshes vpon Lisimachus. Thus ther were many of them wounded, some being slayne, and al the other chaced awaye. But as for the wicked churchrobber himselfe, they killed him beside the treasurye. Of these matters therefore, there was kepte a courte agaynst Menelaus. Nowe when the kynge came to Tirus, they made a complaynte agaynst Menelaus, concernynge this busynesse. and the embassitours were thre. But Menelaus went and promysed Ptolomy, to geue him muche money, yf he wold persuade the kynge. So Ptolompe wente to the kynge into a courte (where as he was set to coole hym) and dzoughte hym oute of that mynde. In so much that he discharged Menelaus from the accusations, that notwithstandynge was cause of all mischiefes & those poore men, whiche if they had tolde their cause: yea, before the Scithians, they should haue bene iudged innocēt, them he condēpned to deathe. Thus were they slone punished, which solowed vpon the matter for the citie, for the people, and for the holy vessel. Wherfore, they of Tirus tokemdignacion, and buried them honorablye. And so throwe the couetousnesse of them that were in power, Menelaus remayned stil in auctoritie, increasinge in malice to the hurte of the citezins.

¶ Of the signes & tokens seneīn Jerusalē. Of the ende & offence of Jason. The pursute of Antiochus against the Jewes. The spoilynge of the temple.

A T the same tyme Antiochus made hī ready to go agayne into Egypte. Then were there sene at Jerusalē. xl. dayes longe, horsemen runninge to and fro in the ayre, which had raimēt of gold, & speares. There were sene also, whole hostes of mē weapened, & horses runninge in ordre, how they came together, how they held forthe their shildes, howe the harnessed mē drewe out their swerdes, & shote their dartes. The shine of the golde weapens was sene, & of al maner of armonre. Wherfore euery mā prayed, that those tokens myght turne to good. Now when ther was gone forth a false rumour, as though Antiochus had ben deed: Jason toke a.C. men, & came sodenly vpon the citie. The citezins ranne vnto the walles, at the laste was the cytye taken, and Menelaus fled into the castell. As for Jason, he spared not hys owne cytezins in the slaughter, neyther considzed he what greate euel it were, to destroye the prosperite of his owne kinsmen: but did as one that had gotten the victory of hys enemies, and not of his frendes. For all thys gat he not the superiorite, but at the laste receaued confusion for hys malyce: * And 2.Ma.4.c fled agayne like a bagabounde into the lād of the Ammonites. Finallye, for a reward of his wickednesse, he was accused before Aretha the kynge of the Arabians. In so muche that he was fayne to flé frome cytye to citie, beynge despysed of euery man as a forsaker of the lawes, and an abhominable personne. And at the laste (as an open enemie of his owne natural countre, and of the citezins) he was driuen into Egypte. Thus he that afore put many oute of their owne natiue lande, perysshed frome home hym selfe. He wente to Lacedemon, thynckynge there to haue gotten succoure by reason of kynred. And he that afore hadde caſten manye one out vnburied, was throwen oute hym selfe, no man mournynge for him, nor puttinge hym in his graue: so that he neyther enioyed the burialle of a C straūger, neither was he partaker of his fathers sepulchre. Nowe whē this was done, the kinge suspect, that the Jewes wold haue fallen frome him: Wherefore, he came in a greate displeasure oute of Egypte, * and 1.Mac.1.c toke the cytye by violence. He commaunded his men of warre also, that they shoulde kyll and not spare, but slaye downe suche as withstode them, or clymed vp vpon the houses. Thus was there a great slaughter of ponge men, olde men, women, children, & virgins. In.iii. dayes were there slayne lxxx.M. fourtye thousande put in prison, and no lesse solde. yet was he not contente with thys, but durst go into the most holy temple (Menelaus that traytoure to the lawes, and to hys owne naturall countre, beynge his gyde) and with his wicked hādes, toke the holy vessell, which other kynges and cities hadde geuen thither for the garnishynge and honor of the place: them tokē he in his handes vnworthely, and defiled them. So madde was Antiochus, that he consydred not, howe that GOD was a

Jud.b.d. came vpon that place. * And why? if it had not happened them to haue bene lapped in many synnes, thys Antiochus (as soone as he had come) had sodenly bene punished, & shut out for his presumption, * like as Heliodorus was, whome Seleucus the kyng

And then he commaunded his men to take them to their weapons (for the Jewes kepe holy day) and so he slewe al them that were gone forth to the open play, rūnynge here and there throwe the citie, with hys men weaponed, & murthered a greate numbre.
1.ma.1.f * But Judas Machabeus, which was the tenth, fled into the wyldernes, lead his life there with hys companye, amonge wylde beastes, & vpon the mountaynes, dwelling there, and eatynge grasse, lest they shoulde be partakers of the fylthynes.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

The Jewes are cōpelled to leaue the lawe of god. The tēple is defiled. The readers are admonished that they shal not abhorre the aduersite wherwith the lorde afflicteth thē. The greuous payne of Eleazarus.

NOt longe after this, sent the king a A messaunger of Antioche, for to compel the Jewes, to alter the ordinances of the fathers & the lawe of god, to defile the tēple at Jerusalē, & to call it the tēple of Jupiter Olympi⁹: & that they shuld be in Gazarim, as thole which dwell at the place of Jupiter the herberous. This wicked sedicion of the vngodly was heuy vpō all the people: For the temple was ful of voluptuousnes, bybbynge and boynge of the heathen, of rybaudes, and harlottes, together. The women went into the holye place, & bare in that was not lawful. The aulter also was full of vnlawfull thinges, whiche the lawe forbyddeth to laye vpon it, The Sabbothes were not kepte, the other

other solempne feastes of the land were not regarded. To be playne, there durst no mā be a knowen that he was a Iewe. In the daye of the kynges birthe they were cōpelled perforce to offre: and when the feaste of Bachus was kept, they were constrayned to weare garlandes of yuye, and so to goe aboute the honoure of Bachus. Moreouer, thorowe the councell of Ptolompye, there went oute a commaundement in the nexte Cytyes of the heathen, that they shoulde entreate the Iewes in like maner: namely, to compel them for to doe sacrifice after the lawes of the Gentiles: and whoso wolde not, to put them to death. A piteous thinge was it to see. There were.ii. women accused to haue circumcised their sonnes, whome when they had lead rounde about the citye (the babes hangynge at their breastes) they caste them downe headelynges ouer the walles. Some that were crept in dennes and had kept the Sabboth, were accused vnto Philippe, and brente in the fire: because that for the feare of God, they kepte the commaundemente so strayte, and wolde not defende them selues. Nowe I beseche all those whyche reade thys booke, that they refuse it not for these falles of aduersite: and iudge the thynges (that are happened) for no destruction, but for a chastenynge of oure people. And why? When God suffred not synners so longe to folowe their owne mynde, but shortely punisheth theym, * it is a tooken of hys greate lo-uynge kyndenes. For thys grace haue we of god, more thē other people, that he suffreth vs not longe to sin vnpunished lyke as other nacions, that when the daye of iudgement commeth, he may punish them in the fulnes of their sinnes. If we sinne, he correcteth vs, but he neuer withdraweth hys mercy from vs: and though he punysh with aduersitie, yet doeth he neuer forsake hys people. But lette thys that we haue spoken nowe with a fewe wordes, be for a warnynge and exhortacion for the heathen. Nowe wyll we come to the declarynge of the matter. Eleazar one of the pryncipal Scribes, an aged man, and of a wel fauoured countenaūce, was constrayned to gape with open mouth, * and to eate swynes fleach. But he desyrynge rather to dye gloriously, then to lyue wyth shame offered him selfe willyngly to the martyrdome. Nowe when he sawe that he must nedes go to it, he toke it paciently: For he was at apoynte with hym selfe, that he wolde consent to no vnlawfull thynge, for any pleasure of lyfe. They that stode by beyng moued with pitie (but not a ryght) for the olde frendshyppe of the man, toke him aside priuely, and prayed him, that he would let suche fleche be brought him as was lawefull to eate, and then to make a countenaunce, as thoughe he had eaten of the fleche of the sacrifyce lyke as the kynge commaunded, for so he might be delyuered from death, and so for the olde frendshyppe of the man, they shewed him this kindnes. But he began to consider his discrete, and honorable age, hys noble and worshipfull stocke, and how that from his youth vp, he had bene of an honeste and good conuersacion: yea, and howe constantly he had kept the ordinaunces and lawes commaunded by God, wherefore he gaue them thys aunswere, and sayde: yet had I rather strike be layed in my graue. * For it becommeth not myne age (sayde he) in any wyse to dissemble, wherby many yonge persons mighte thincke, that Eleazar beynge. lxxx. yeare olde and ten, were nowe gone to a straūge lyfe: and so thorowe myne yprocrisye (for a litle tyme of a transitorye lyfe) they myghte be deceaued: by thys meanes also shoulde I defyle myne age, and make it abhominable. For thoughe I were nowe delyuered from the tormentes of men, * yet should I not escape the hande of the allmighty god, neither alyue nor dead, wherfore, I wyl die manfully, and do as it becōmeth mine age. Whereby I maye peraduenture leaue an exāple of stedfastnes for such as be yonge, yf I with a ready mynde, and māfully, die an honest death, for the moste worthye and holye lawes. When he had sayde these wordes, immediatly he was drawen to the tormente. Nowe they that led him and were mylde a lytle before, beganne to take displeasure, because of the woordes that he sayd: for they thought he had spoken them of an hye mynde. But when he was in his martyrdome, he mourned, and sayd: Thou (O Lord) whiche hast the holy knowledge, knowest openlye: that where as I myghte be deliuered frō deathe, I suffre these sooze paynes of my bodye: But in my mynde I am well content to suffre them because I feare thee. Thus this man died, leauynge the memoriall of his death for an example, not onely vnto yonge men, but vnto al the people, to be stedfast and manly.

¶ The.viii. Chapter.

¶ The punishment of the seuen brethren, and of theyr mother.

IT happened also, that there were seuen brethren (with their mother) taken, and compelled by the kynge, * agaynste the lawe, to eate swynes flesshe: namelye with scourges and lethyen whyppes. And one of thē which was the eldest, sayd: What seekest thou, and what requirest thou of vs? As for vs, we are ready rather to suffre death, then to offende the lawes of God and the fathers. Then was the kynge angrye, and bad heate cauldrōs & brasen pottes. Which whē they were made hote, immediatlye he commaunded the tonge of hym that spake first, to be cut out, to pull the skin ouer his heade, to pare of the edges of his handes & fete: yea, & that in the sight of his mother & the other of his brethren. Nowe when he was cleane marred, he commaunded a fyre to be made, and so (while there was any breath in hym) to be fryed in the cauldron: In the which when he had bene longe pained, the other brethren with theyr mother exhorted hym to dye manfullye, sayinge:

The Lorde God shall regarde the trueth, and conforte vs, lyke as Moses teacheth Deu. 32. * and declareth in hys songe, sayinge: and he wyll haue compassion on hys seruaunts. So when the first was deade after this maner, they brought the seconde, to haue hym in derision, pulled the skinne with the heere ouer his heade, and asked hym, yf he would eate swynes flesshe, or he were payned in the other membres also throwoute hys bodye. But he answered boldely, and sayde: I wyll not do it. And so was he tormented lyke as the fyrste, and when he was euen at the geuynge vp the goost, he sayde: Thou moost vngracious personne puttest vs nowe to death, but the kynge of the worlde shall rayse vs vp (whyche dye for hys lawes) in the resurrection of euerlastynge lyfe. After hym, was the thyrde had in derision: and when he was requyred, he put out hys tonge, and that ryghte soone, holdynge forthe hys hande manfullye, and spake with stedfaste fayeth These haue I of heauen, but nowe for the lawe of God I despyse them: for my truste is, that I shall receaue them: of hym agayne. In so muche that the kynge and they whyche were with hym, marueled at the younge mans boldnesse, that he no-thynge regarded the paynes. Nowe when he was deade also, they vexed the fourthe with tormentes in lyke maner. So when he was nowe at hys death, he sayde. It is better that we be ynge put to death of men, John. 5. c. haue our hope and truste in God, for he shal rayse vs vp agayne. * As for the, thou shalte haue no resurrection to lyfe. And when they had spoken to the fyfthe, they tormented hym. Then loked he vnto the kynge. and sayd: thou haste power amonge men, for thou arte a mortall man also thy selfe, to do what thou wylte, but thynche not, that GOD hathe forsaken oure generacion. Abyde the, tary styll a whyle, and thou shalte se the greate power of GOD, howe he wyll punyshe the and thy sede.

6. After him they brought the syxte, whyche beynge at the poynte of deathe, sayde: Be not disceaued (O kynge) for this we suffre for oure owne sakes, because we haue offended oure God, and therefore marueilous thynges are shewed vpon vs. But thynche not thou, whyche takest in hande to stryue agaynste GOD, that thou shalte escape vnpunyshed. This excellent mother (worthy to be wel reported of, and had in remēbraunce) sawe her seuen sonnes dye in one daye, and suffred it pacientlye, because of the hope that she had in GOD: yea, she exhorted euerye one of them in especial, and that boldly and stedfastlye with parfyte wysedome, wahynge vp her wyt yche thoughte with a manlye stomacke, & sayde vnto them: I cannot tell howe ye came in my wōbe, for I nether gaue you brethe nor soule, no nor lyfe. It is not I that ioyned the membres of your bodyes together, but the maker of the worlde, whiche fashioned the birth of man, and beganne all thinges. Euen he also of his owne mercye shal geue you breath and lyfe agayne, lyke as ye now regarde not your own selues for his lawes sake. Nowe thoughte Antiochus that she had despysed hym, therefore he let her go with her reproues, and beganne to exhorte the yongest sonne (which yet was lefte) not only with wordes but swore vnto him with an oothe, that he shoulde make hym a ryche and welthye man (yf he would forsake the lawes of his fathers) yea, & that he should geue him, whatsoeuer were necessarye for hym. But whē the yonge mā would not be moued, for al these thinges, he called his mother, & conceled her to saue her sōnes lyfe. And when he had exhorted her with many wordes, she perswaded hym that she should speake vnto her sonne. So she turned her vnto him (laughynge the cruel tiraunte to scorne) and spake with a bolde voyce. O my sonne, haue pitie vpō me, that bare the. ix. monethes in my wombe, that gaue the sucke, nozished the & brought the vp vnto this age. I beseche the (my sonne) loke vpon heauen and earth and al that is therin, and consyder, that God made them and mans generacion of naughte: so shalte thou not feare this hangman, but suffre dearlye stedfastly, lyke as thy brethen haue done: that I may receaue the agayne in the same mercye with thy brethren. While she was yet speakynge these wordes, the yōge mā sayde whom loke ye for? Wherefore do ye tarye?

I wyll not obeye the kynges commaun de-Leui.xi.a ment, * but the lawe that God gaue vs by Deu.14.a. Moses. As for thou that ymagyneſt all F mischefe agaynſt the Iewes, thou shalt not escape the hande of God, for we ſuffre theſe thinges, because of our ſinnes. And though God be angry with vs a litle while (for our chastenyng and reformacyon) yet shall he be at one againe with his seruauntes. But thou, (O shamefull and most abhominable person.) Hyde not thy selfe thorow payne hope, in beynge so malicious vpon the ſer-nauntes of God: for thou halt not yet escaped the iudgement of the God which is al-mightie, and seith al thinges. My brethren that haue ſuffred a litle paine, are now vnder the couenaunt of euerlastynge life: but thorow the iudgement of God, thou shalte be punished righteously for thy pryde. As for me (lyke as my brethren haue done) I offre my soule & my bodye for the lawes of oure fathers, calling vpon God, that he wil 2.Ma.2.c soone be mercyfull vnto oure people: yea, and with paine & punishement * to make the graunt, that he onely is God. In me now & in my brethren the wrath of almigh-tie God is at an ende, which righteously is fallen vpon all our people: Then the kynge being kindled in anger, was more cruel vp on him then vpon al the other, and toke in-dignacion, that he was so lightely regarded.
So this yonge man dyed vndefyled, & put his truſt styl in the Lorde. Last of all after the sonnes, was the mother put to death al so. Let this nowe be ynoughe spoken, concernyng the offeringes, and extreme cruel-nesse.

¶ The.viii. Chapter.

¶ Iudas gathereth together his hoſt. Nicanor is sét against Iudas. Iudas exhor-teth his souldiars to cõstãcy. Nicanor is ouercome. The Iewes geue thanckes

THen Iudas Machabeus, & they that sande men. So they called vpon the Lord, that he wolde haue an eye vnto his people, whiche was troaden downe of euery man: to be gracyous vnto the Temple that was defiled of the vngodly: to haue compaſſion vpon the destruction of the cytye, whiche was shortely like to be layed waſte, to heare the voyce of the blonde that cryed vnto hym: to remembre the most vnryghteous deathes of yonge innocent childre, the blas-phemyes also done vnto hys name, and to punyshe them. * Nowe when Machabeus 1.Ma.2.d had gathered thys multytude togeather, he was to myghtye for the Heathen (for the wrath of the Lorde was turned into mer-

So when Philippe sawe that the man he wrote vnto Ptolomy (which was a cap tayne in Celosiria and Phenices) to helpe wrathe of almyghtye GOD, that was to come vpon hym. When Judas knewe of ¶ this, he tolde the Iewes that were wyth there some of them fearfull, not truſtynge

Throwe these wordes the men toke good hertes vnto them, readye to dye for the lawe and the countre. So he set vpon euerye company a captayne, one of his owne brethren: Simon, Joseph and Jonathas: geuynge eche one. xb. C. men. He caused Esdras also to reade the holye booke vnto them, and 1.mac.4.b to geue them a token of the helpe of God. * Then he hym selfe beynge captayne in the forefronte of the battayle, buckled with Nicanor. And God was theyr helpe, in so muche that they slewe aboue. ix. M. men, and compelled the more parte of Nicanors hoofte to flee, they were so wounded and feble. Thus they toke the moneye from those that came to lye them, and followed vpon them on euery syde. But when the time came vpon them, they returned, for it was the Sabboth, and therefore they folowed nomore vpon them. So they toke their weapons and spoyles, and kepte the Sabboth, geuynge thankes vnto the Lorde, whiche had delyuered them that

F when they had dyligentlye gathered theyr weapens togethyer, they layed them al in conuenyente places, and the remnaunte of the spoiles also brought they to Jerusalem. They slewe also Philarches that wycked personne, whiche was with Timotheus, and had vered manye Jewes. And when they helpe the thankesgeuynge at Jerusalem for the victorye, they brent those that had set fyre on the portes of the temple: namely Callisthenes, whiche was fled into an house: and so they gat a worthy reward for theyr wickednes. As for that most vngracious Nicanor, whiche had brought a thousande marchauntes, to bye the Jewes, he was throwe the helpe of the Lord brought downe euen of them whom he regarded not: in so muche that he put of hys glorious rayment, fled by sea, and came alone to Antioche, wyth greate shame and dyshonoure, which he gat throw the destruccion of his hoofte. Thus he that promysed the Romaynes to paye them theyr trybute, when he toke Jerusalem: beganne nowe to saye playnlye, that God was the defender of the Jewes, and therefore not possyble to wounde them, because they folowed the lawes whyche God had made.

And so after that flight, it happened that Antiochus came againe with dishonour. But when he came to Egbathana, he gat knowlege what was happened vnto Nicanor, and Timotheus. Nowe, as he was anauncinge hym selfe in his wrath, he thought he was able to auēge the iniurye that was done to them, vpon the Jewes: and therefore commaunded to make readye hys charet, hastynge on his iourney wythout ceassinge, the iudgement of GOD pronouncinge hym, because he had spoken so prowdely, that he woulde come to Jerusalem, and make it a graue of the Jewes. cion of man) & to weye the hie mountaynes in a payze of balaunce, was nowe brought downe to the grounde, and caryed vpon an hoselytter, knowledgynge the manifest po-Actes.12.d wer of God vpon hym: so that the wicked body of hys *was full of wormes, whych in hys payne fel quicke out of his fleach: in so muche that hys hoste was greued with the smel and stynche of hym. Thus he that a little afore, thought he might reach to the C starre of heauen, him might no man now abide nor beare, for the vehemēce of stinche.
Therfore, he beynge brought frome hys great pride, began for to come to the knowledge of hym selfe: for the punishmente of God warned him, and his payne increased euer more & more. And when he hym selfe might not abyde his owne stynch, he saide these wordes: It is reason to be obedyente vnto God, and that a man despise not to be lyke vnto hym. Thys wicked persone prayed also vnto the Lorde, of whome he shoulde haue optayned no mercye. And as for the citie that he came vnto so hastely, to brynge it downe to the grounde, and to make it a graue for dead men: Nowe he destreth to delyuer it free. And as touchynge the Jewes, whome he had iudged not wor-thye to be buryed, but would haue cast thē oute for to be deuoured of the fowles and wilde beastes, sayngeth that he would haue destroyed both olde and younge: Nowe he promysed to make them lyke the citesyns of Athens. And where as he had spoyled the holye temple afore, nowe he maketh promyse to garnysshe it with great gyftes, to increase the holye ornamentes, and of hys owne rentes to beare the costes, and charges belongyng to the offerynges: yea, and that he wolde also become a Jew him selfe, to go thorow euery place of the world and to preach the power of god. But when D his paynes would not cease (for the rightteous iudgemente of God was come vpon hym) out of a bery dispayre, he wrote vnto the Jewes a letter of intercession, conteynynge these wordes: The kynge and prynce Antiochus, wysheth vnto the ver-tuous citesins of the Jewes, muche health and good prosperite. If ye and youre chyldren fare well, and yf all thynges goe after your mynde: we geue greate rethankes. In my sycknesse also, doe I remembre you louyngly: For as I came oute of Persia, & was taken with sore disease: I thoughte it necessarye to care for the comen wealthe.
Neither dispayre I in my selfe, but haue a good hope to escape thys sickues. But consyderynge that my father led an hoste some tyme in the vpper places: and shewed who shulde raygne after him, that (if eyther happened any cōtrouersie, or any harde thing were declared) they in the lande myghte knowe it: lest eyther Lorde, that there shulde be no insurrection: Agayne, when I pondre by my selfe, howe that all the myghtye men and neighbourers rounde aboute are lyinge waite, and loke but for opportunite to doe harme: I haue ordeined that my sonne An-tiochus shall raygne after me, whome I ofte commended to many of you, when I E was in the vpper kyngdomes, & haue written vnto hi, as it foloweth herafter. Therefore I praye you and require you, to remembre the benefites that I haue done vnto you generallye, and in speciall (that euerye man wilbe faythfull to me and my sonne.) For I hope that he shall be of sober and louynge behaueour, & yf he folow my deuice, he shalbe indifferent vnto you.
* Thus that murtherer and blasphemer Dan.8.c of God was sore smitten: And lyke as he had intreated other men, so he dyed a miserable death in a straunge countrey vpon a mountaine. And his body did Philippe (that went with hym) carye awaye: whiche fea-rynge the sonne of Antiochus, went into Egypt to Ptolomy Philometor.

Howe Antiochus then (that was called the noble) died, it is sufficientlye tolde. Now will we speake of Eupator the sonne of that wycked Antiochus, how it happened with hym: and so with fewe wordes to comprehende the aduersytie that chaunced in the warres: When he had taken in the kyngedome, he made one Lisias (whiche had bene captayne of the host in Phenices & Siria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme. For Ptolompe that was called Macron, being a ruler for the Iewes (and specially, to syt in iudgemēt for suche wronge as was done vnto them) vndertoke to deale peaceablye with them. For the which cause he was accused of the frendes before Eupator: and when he was suspect to be a traytoure (because he had lefte Cypres that Philometor had committed vnto hym: & because he departed from noble Antyochus, that he was come vnto) he poysoned hym selfe, and C dyed. Nowewhen Gorgias, was gouernoure of the same places, he toke straungers: and vndertoke ofte tymes, to warre with the Iewes. Moreouer, the Idumeans that helde the stronge holdes, receaued those that were dryuen frome Jerusalem, Neuertheless some, no lesse then nyne thousande, were stedde into two stronge towres, haynge al maner of ordynaunce to withstande them. Then Machabeus leaynge Simon, Josephus, Zacheus, and those

But when it was tolde Machabeus what had happened, he called the Captaynes of the people together, accusynge those persones, that they had solde the brethren for money, & let their enemyes go. So he slewe those traytours, and immediatlye wente in hand with the.ii. towers. And whē they had ordred themselues māly with their weapens and handes, they slewe in the two castels mo then twentye thousande. * Nowe Timotheus, * whome the Iewes hadde ouercome afore, gathered a multytude of straūge people, brought an hoste also of horsemen of the Asians, to wynne Jewrye by strength. But when he drewe nie, Machabeus and they that were with him, * fell to their prayer, sprinckled ashes vpon their heades, beynge girded with hearrie clothe about their loynes, fell downe before the aultre, and besoughte the Lorde that he would be mercifull to them, but an enemie vnto their enemyes, and to take parte agaynste their aduersaries, * accordyng as it is prompted in the lawe. ¶ The. xii. Chapter.

¶ Timotheus troubleth the Jewes. The wicked vse of the Jepites against the Jewes. Judas is auoged of hȳ. He setteth fyre on the gate of Jamnia. The pursuite of the Jewes against Timothy. Timothy is taken and let go vnhurt. Judas pursueth Gorgias. Judas offerynge sacrifyce for the deade, sheweth the hope of the resurreccion.

WHen these couenaūtes wer made Lisias went vntothe king, & the Jewes tilled their grouȝd. But Timotheus, Apollonius the sone of Gemei, Jerome and Demophon the proude, Nicanor the capitaine of Cipers, and they that lay in those places: would not let them lyue in rest and peace. They of Joppa also dyd suche a shameful dede. They prayed the Jewes that dwelt amonge them, to go with their wyues & childrē into the shippes whiche they had prepared, anddid with thē, as thoughe they had oughte them no euyl wil. For so much then as there was gone forth a generall proclamaciō throȝow the citie because of peace, they consented therto, & suspecte nothing: but when they were gone forthe into the depe, they drowned no lesse then. ii. C. of thē. When Judas knewe of this cruelte shewed vnto his people, he cōmaūded those that were with him to make thē ready, exhortynge thē to cal vpō God the righteous iudge: wēt forth againste those murtherers of his brethrē, set fyre in the haus by night, brēt vp the shippes, and those that escaped frō the fire, he slewe with the swearde. And when he had done this, he departed as though he would come againe, & rode oute all them of Joppa. But when he had gotte worde, that the Jamnites were mynded to do in lyke maner vnto the Jewes whyche dwelt amōge them, he came vpon the Jamnites by nyght, and set fyre in the hauen with the shippes: so that the lyghte of the fyre was sene at Jerusalem, vpō a. ii. Judas thinckynge that they shoulde in dede be profitable concerninge many thinges, promysed them peace: whēre vpon they shoke handes, and so they departed to theyr tentes. Judas wente also vnto a citye, whiche was very faste kepte with brydges, fensed rounde aboute with walles, and dyuerse kyndes of people dwellynge therin, called Caspin. They that were within it, put suche trust in the strength of the walles, and in theyr stoare of vitayles: that they were the slacker in their doynges, cursynge and reuylynge Judas with blasphemyes, and speakynge suche wordes as it becommeth not. But Machabeus callynge vpon the great prince of the world (which without any battaile rāmes, or ordenaunce of war, did cast downe the walles of Jericho, in the tyme of Josue) fell mankully vpon the walles, toke the citie, (& throwe the helpe of the Lorde) made and exceadynge greate slaughter: In so muche that a lade of two fourlonges brode whiche laye thereby, semed, to flow with the blonde of the slayne. Then departed they from thēce. viii. C. and l. furlonges, and came to Taraca vnto the Jewes that are called Tubianii. But as for Timotheus, they coulde not get hym there: for (not one matter dispatched) he was departed from thence, and had lefte certaine men in a verye stronge holde. But whē the Jewes which were in the citie testified, that the cytezins dealt louingly with thē: yea, and intreated thē kyndely in the tyme of their aduersitie, Judas and his company gaue them thanckes, desyrynge them to be kyndely styll vnto them: and so they came to Jerusalem, the hye feaste of the weekes beynge at hande. And after the feast of pentecost they wente forthe agaynste Gorgias the gouernoure of Idumea, with three. M. men of fote, and. iiii. C. horsemen. Whyche whē they met together, it chaunsed a fewe of the Jewes to be slayne. And Dositheus F one of the Bachenors & myghtie horseman toke holde of Gorgias, and wolde haue taken him quick. But an horsemā of Thracia fell vpon him, and smote of his arme, so that Gorgias escaped and fled into Mozesa. When they nowe that were of Gorgias syde, had foughten longe and were weryed: Judas called vpon the Lord, that he would be their helper, and captayne of the felde: & with that, he began with a manlye voyce to take vp a songe of prayse, and a crye: In so muche that he made the enemyes afraied, & Gorgias men of warre toke their flight. So Judas gathered his hoost, and came into the citie of Odolla. And whē the seuenth day came vpon them, they clensed them selues (as the custome was) & kepte the Sabboth in the same place.

And vpon the daye folowyng, Judas and his companie came to take vp the bodies of them that were slayne, and to bury them in the fathers graues. Nowe vnder the cotes of certayne Jewes which wer slayne, they founde Jewels that they had taken oute of the temple, & from the Idols of the * Jamniters: whyche thynge is forbydden the Jewes by the lawe. Then euery man saw, that this was the cause, wherfore they wer slayne. And so euerye man gaue thankes G vnto the Lorde for hys ryghteous iudgemente, whyche had opened the thyng that was hyd. They fell downe also vnto their prayers, and besought God, that the fawte whiche was made, myght be put out of remembraunce. Besides that, Judas exhorted the people earnestly, to kepe thē selues from suche synne: for so much as they sawe before their eyes that these mē were slayne for the same offence. So he gathered of euerye one a certayne, in so muche that he brought together two thousāde drachmas of syluer, whych he sente vnto Jerusalem, that there might a sacrifice be offred for the misdeu. In the which place he did well and right: for he had some consideraciō, & pondryng of the lyfe that is after this tyme. For if he had not thought that they, which were slayne, did yet lyue, it had bene superfluous and vayne, to make any powe or sacrifice, for them that were dead. But for so muche as he sawe, that they whiche dye in the fauoure and beleue of God, are in good rest and loye, he thought it to be good and honourable for a reconcilyng, to do the same for those which wer slaine, that the offence myght be forgeuen.

B stroyed with asshes. But the kynge was wood in his mynde, & came to shewe hym selfe more cruel vnto the Jewes, then hys father was. Which whē Judas perceaued, 2 ma 19 c * he cōmaunded the people to call vpon the Lord nighte & day: that he would nowe helpe thē also, like as he had done alway: For they were afrayed to be put from their law, from their natural countrey, & from the holy tēple: and not to suffre the people (which a lytle while a fore began to reconer) to be subdued agayne of the blasphemous nacions.
C So when they had done this together, and besoughte the Lorde for mercye, wyth wepyng and fastynge thre dayes longe, flatte vpon the grounde: Judas exhorted theym, to make them selues readye. But he and the elders together deuysed, to go forthe fyrste with their people, afore the kynge brought hys hoofte into Jewry, and afore he besieged the cytie, and so to committe the matter vnto God. Wherefore he ascribed the power of all thynges vnto GOD the maker of the worlde, exhortynge hys people to fyghte manfully: (yea, euen vnto deathe) for the lawes, the Temple, the Cytye, theyr owne natyue countrey, and to defende the cytezyns: and sette hys hoofte before Modin. He gaue them also that were with hym, a token of the victory of God, choosyng oute of the manliest yong men, went by night into the kynges pauylion, slewe of the hoofte.

1.ma.6.f D when they had brought a greate feare and rumour among the tentes of their enemies, and all thynges went prosperously wyth theym, they departed in the breake of the daye, God beynge theyr helper and defender. Nowe when the kynge perceaued the manlynes of the Jewes, he went aboute to take the stronge places by craft, and remoued hys hoofte * vnto Bethsura, whyche
2.ma.xi.d was a well kepte house of defence of the Jewes: but they were chased awaye, hurte and discomfited. And Judas sent vnto thē that were in it suche thynges as were necessary. In the Jewes hoofte also there was one Rhodocus, whiche tolde the enemyes their secretes: but they sought him oute, & when they had gotten him, they put hym in prysō. After this dyd the kyng commen with thē that were in Bethsura, toke truce wyth theym, departed, and stroke a battail wyth Judas, whiche ouercame hym. But when he vnderstode, that Philippe (whom he had delyuered to be ouerseer of his busines-G ses at Antioche) beganne to rebell agaynste hym, he was astonnyed in hys mynde: so that he yelded hym selfe vnto the Jewes, & made them an othe, to do what so euer they thought ryght. Nowe when he was reconcyled wyth them, he offered, made much of the temple, gaue greate gyftes vnto it, embraced Machabeus, makyng hym captaine and gouernour from Ptolomays vnto the Gerrenes. Neuertheles, when he came to Ptolomays, the people of the cytye were not content wyth the bonde of frendeshyp: for they were afrayed, that he wold breake the couenaunt. Then went Lisias vp into the seate, and enfourmed the people, shewed them the cause why, and pacyfied thē. So he came againe to Antioche. This is nowe the matter concernynge the kynges iourney, and hys returne.

¶ By the mocyon of the Lorde, Demetrius sendeth Nicanor to kyll the Jewes. Nicanor maketh a compacte with the Jewes, which he yet breaketh through the mocion of the kinge. Nicanor cōmaundeth Razia to be taken. The boldnes of Razia.

A After thre yeares was Judas informed how that Demetrius the sonne of Seleucus was come by with a great power & shippes, thorowe the hauen of Tripolis, to take certaine commodious places and countreys, against Antiochus & his captaine Lisias. Now Alcimus (which had bene hie Priest, & wilfully defiled him self, in the tyme of the myrring) seyng, that by no meanes he could be helped, nor haue any more entraunce to the aultare: he came to kynge Demetrius, in the hundreth and one and fiftie yeare, presentynge vnto hym a crowne of golde, a Palme, and an Olyue tree: whiche (as men thought) belonged to the Temple, and that daye he helde hys tonge. But when he hadde gotten opportunitie for hys madnesse, Demetrius called him to counsel, and asked him, what thynges and counsels the Jewes leaned vnto? He aunswered: The Jewes that be called Assidei (whose captayne is Judas Machabeus) mayntayne warres, make insurrections, & will not let the realme be in peace. For I beynge deprayued of my fathers honour (I meane the hie Priesthode) am come hither: partely because I was faythfull vnto the kynge, and partely because I sought the profit of the citezins. And why? al oure people, thorowe the wickednesse of them, are not a litle troubled. Wherefore, I beseche thee (O kinge) consider all these thynges diligently, and then make some prouision for the lande and the people, according to the kyndnesse that thou hast offred vnto them. For as longe as Judas hath the hyperhande, it is not possyble that men can lyue in peace. When he hadde spoken these wordes, other frendes also haupnge cuyll wyll at Judas sette the kynge Demetrius on fyre agaynste hym. * Whiche immediatlye sente Nicanor (ruler of the Elephantes) a captayne, into Jewry, cōmaundynge him, to take Judas him selfe alyue, but to slaye thē that were with hym, and to make Alcimus hye Priest of the greate Temple. 1.ma.7.c

C Thē the heathen whiche fled out of Jewry frome Judas, came to Nicanor by flockes, thynckynge the harme and decaye of the Jewes to be their welfare. Now when the Jewes herde of Nicanors commynge, and the gatherynge together of the heathen, they syprynckled theym selues with earthe, 2.ma,5.e * and besought him, whiche made thē hys people, and euer defended hys owne porcyon with euydent tokens, that he would preserue them styl. So at the commaundement of the captayne, they remoued frome thence, and came to a towne called Dessan. And Simon, Judas brother fell in hande with Nicanor, but thorowe the sodayne commynge of the enemyes, he was afrayed. Neuertheles, Nicanor hearynge the manlynes of theim that were with Judas, and the bolde stomaches that they hadde to fyghte for their naturall countre, durst not proue the matter with bloudshedynge. Wherefore he sente Posidomus, Theodocius and Mathias before, to geue and to take peace. So when they had taken longe aduysement there vpon, and the captayne shewed it vnto the multytude, they were agreed in one mynde: to haue peace. And they appoynted a daye to sytte vpon these matters quietlye amonge theym selues, the Stoles also were brought and sette forth.

Neuertheless, Judas commaunded certayne men of armes to wayte in conuenyent places, lest there should sodenly aryse anye cuyl thorowe the enemyes. And so they commoned reasonablye together. Nicanor, D while he abode at Jerusale, ordred hi selfe not vnreasonably, but sent awaye the people that were gathered together. He loued Judas euer wyth hys herte, and fauoured him. He prayed him also to take a wyfe, and to bryng forth children. So he maried, lyued in rest, and they led a common lyfe. But Alcimus perceauing the loue that was betwyxte them, and howe they were agreed together, came to Demetrius, and tolde him that Nicanor had taken straunge maners in hande, and ordened Judas (an enemye of the realme) to be the kynges successoure. Then the kynge was sore displeased, and thorowe the wycked accusacyons, whiche Alcimus made of Nicanor, he was so prouoked, that he wrote vnto Nicanor, sayinge: that he was verye angrye for the frendshippe and agrement, whiche he had made with Machabeus. Neuertheless, he commaunded hym in all the haste, that he shoulde take Machabeus prysoner, and sende hym to Antioche. Whiche letters E when Nicanor hadde sene, he was at hys wittes ende, & sore greued, that he shoulde breake the thynges wherein they hadde agreed: specyallye, seynge Machabeus was the manne, that neuer did hym harme. But because he myght not withstand the king, he soughte opportunitie to fulfill hys commaundemente. Notwythstandynge when Machabeus sawe that Nicanor beganne to be churlyshe vnto hym, and that he intreated hym more roughlye then he was wonte, he perceaued that suche vnkindnesse came not of good, and therefore he gathered a fewe of hys men, and wythdrewe hym selfe frome Nicanor. Whyche when he knewe that Machabeus had manfully preuented hym, he came into the greate and most

most holy temple: and cõmaunded the priestes (which were doyng their vsual offerin-ges) to deliuer him the man. And whē they ware that they could not tel where the mā was whō he soughte, he stretched oute hys not delyuer me Judas captiue, I shall remoue this tẽple of god into the playne feld, I shal breake downe the alter, & consecrate F this temple vnto Bachus. After these wor-des he departed. Thē the priestes lyfte vp their handes towarde heauen, & besoughte him that was euer the defender of their peo ple, saying: Thou O Lord of al which hast thy habitacyon should be among vs. Ther fore now O most holy Lord, kepe this house 1.Ma.4.c euer vndefiled, whiche lately was clensed.

2.ma.3.a Now was there accused vnto Nicanor, one Razis an Alderman of Jerusalē, a louer of the whole citie, & a mā of good report: whiche for the kinde hert that he bare vnto the people, was called a father of the Jewes.
This mā ofte tymes, when the Jewes wer mynded to kepe them selues vndefiled, refē-ded & deliuered thē, beyng content stedfast-lye to spende his body & his life for his people. So Nicanor wyllynge to declare the G hate that he bare to the Jewes, sent fiue hũdredmē of war to take him: for he thought, yf he gat him, he should bringe the Jew-es in great decay. Now whē the people began to ruffle in at his house, to breake the dores, and to set fire on it: he being now taken, wold haue defended him self wyth his sword: chosyng rather to die manfully, then to yelde him selfe to those wicked doers: & because of his noble stocke, he hadde rather haue bene put to extreme cruelte. Notwith standynge, what tyme as he myssed of hys stroke for haste, & the multitude fell in violently betwixte the dores, he ranne boldely to the wal, & cast him selfe downe manfully among the heape of thē, which gaue soone place to his fal, so that he fel vpō his bely.
Neuertheles, while there was yet breathe within him, he was kyndled in his minde, & whyle his bloud gushed out exceadingly (for he was very sore wounded) he ran thorrow the myddest of the people, & gat him to the toppe of a rocke. So when his blod was nowe gone, he toke oute hys owne bowels with both his handes, and threw thē vpon the people, callynge vpon the Lorde of lyfe and spyrite, to rewarde him this againe, and so he dyed.

¶ The. xv. Chapter.

¶ Nicanor goeth about to come vpon Ju das on the Sabboth day. The blasphe-mie of Nicanor. Machabeus expoundyng vnto the Jewes the vision, boldeneth their hertes. The prayer of Machabeus.
After the hoaste of Nicanor is once ouer-come, Machabeus commaundeth his head and his handes to be cut of, & his tõg to be geuen vnto foules.

he thought with al his power to strike a felde with him vpon a Sabboth daye.
Neuertheleſſe, the Jewes that were cõpel-led to go with him, said: O do not so cruelly and vnkindly, but halowe the Sabboth day, & worshyp him that seyth al thynges.
For al this, yet said the vngracious perso:

mightie vpon earth, to cõmaunde them for to arme thē selues, & to perfourme the kinges busines. Notwithstanding, he myghte B not haue his purpose, Nicanor had deuised with great pryde to ouercome Judas, & to bring away the victory: But Machabeus had euer a fast confidence, & a perfecte hope in God, that he would helpe him, & exhorted his people, not to be afraied at the commynge of the Heathen: but alwaye to remembre the helpe that had bene shewed vn to them frō heauen: yea, & to be sure nowe also, that almightie God would geue them the victory. He spake vnto them out of the lawe and Prophetes, puttynge them in re-membraunce of the battails, that they had stycken afore, & made them to be of a good corage. So when their hertes were pluckt vp, he shewed them also the disceatfulnesse of the Heathen, & howe they would kepe no couenaunte nor othe. Thus he weapened thē not with the armoure of shilde & speare, but with holsome wordes & exhortacions.
He shewed thē a dreame also, wher thorow he made them all glad, which was this: he C thought that he sawe Onias (whiche had bene hye priest, a vertuous & louyng man, sad and of honest conuersacion, wel spoken, and one that had bene exercised in godlines frō a childe) holdyng vp his handes toward heauen, & praying for his people. After this there appeared vnto him another mā, which was aged, honorable & glorious. And Onias said: This is a louer of the brethren, and of the people of Israel. This is he that praieth much for the people, and for all the holy citie: Jeremye the prophete of God. He thoughte also that Jeremye helde oute his right hande, & gaue vnto Judas a sword of golde, saying: Take this holy sword, a gift from God, wherwith thou shalt smit down the enemies of the people of Israel. And so they

they were wel comforted thorowe the wor-des of Judas, & toke courage vnto them, so that the yong men were determined in their myndes to fyght, & to byde stiffy at it: In so much that in the thinges which they toke in hand, their boldnes shewed the same, because of the holy citie, & the temple were in parell: for the whiche they toke more care, then for theyr wiues, childzen, brethzē and kinfolckes. Agayne, they that were in the cytie, were moost carefull for those whyche were to fyght. Nowe, when they were al in a hope that the iudgemēt of the matter was at hande, & the enemies drew nye, the hoste beyng set in aray, the Elephantes and hors men, euery one standyng in his place: Ma-chabeus consydered the cōming of the multitude, the ordenaunce of diuerse weapens, his wordes. The Nicanor & they that were with him, drew nye with shawmes & songes:

a great shoute & a cry, praising the almigh tie Lorde with a loude voice. And Judas (which was euer ready to spende his body & life for his citezins) commaunded to smit of Nicanors head, with his arme & hande, and to be brought to Jerusalem. When he came there, he called al the people, & the pre stes at hym: after with those that were in the castel, & shewed them Nicanors head, & his wycked hande, whiche he had presumptu-ously holden vp agaynste the temple of god.
He caused the tounge also of that vngodlye Nicanor to be cut in lytle peces, and to be cast to the foules, and the cruell mans hāde to be hanged vp before the temple. So euer-ged it vp vpon the hie castel, for an euydent and playne token of the helpe of God. And so they agreed altogether, to kepe that day holye, namely the. xiij. daye of the monethe Adar, whiche in the Sirians language is called the nexte daye before Mardocheus day. Thus was Nicanor slayne, and frome that tyme forth the Jewes had the cityte in possession: And here wyll I nowe make an

¶ The fyrste Chapter. ✠

THis is the booke of the generacion of Jesus Christ the sonne of Dauid, the sonne of Abraham. * Abrahā begat Isaac, * Isaac begat Jacob, * Jacob begat Judas and hys brethren. * Judas begat Phares and Zaram of Thamar: * Phares begat Esrom: * Esrom begat Aram, * Arā begat Aminadab, * Aminadab begat Naason, * Naasō begat Salmon, * Salmon begat Boos of Rahab. * Boos begat Obed of Ruth, * Obed begat Jesse, * Jesse begat Dauid the kynge. * Dauid the kynge begat Salomon, of her that was the wyfe of Vri, * Salomon begat Roboam. * Roboā begat Abia, * Abia begat Asa, * Asa begat Josaphat: * Josaphat begat Joram, * Joram begat Ozias: * Ozias begat Joatham: * Joatham begat Achas, * Achas begat Ezechias: * Ezechias begat Manasses, * Manasses begat Amon, * Amon begat Josias, * Josias begat Jechonias and hys brethren about the tyme they were caryed away to Babilon. And after they were brought to Babilon, * Jeconias begat Salathiel, * Salathiel begat Zorobabel: * Zorobabel begat Abiud, * Abiud begat Eliachim, Eliachim begat Azor, Azor begat Sadoc, Sadoc begat Achim, Achim begat Eliud, Eliud begat Eliazar: Eliazar begat Matthan, * Matthan begat Jacob: Jacob begat Joseph the husbāde of Mari: of whō was borne Jesus, euen he that is called Christe. And so all the generacions frō Abraham to Dauid, are fourtene generacions. And from Dauid vnto the captyuyte of Babilon, are fourtene generacions. And from the captyuite of Babylon vnto Christ, are fourtene generacions. The birthe of Jesus Christe was on thys wyse.

When hys mother Mary was maryed to Joseph (before they came to dwell together) she was founde with childe by the holy goost. Then Joseph her husbande (because he was a righteous mā, & would not put her to shame) he was mynded preuely to departe from her. But whyle he thus thought, beholde, the Aungell of the Lorde appeared vnto him in slepe, sayinge: Joseph thou sonne of Dauid: feare not to take vnto the Mary thy wyfe. For that whiche is conceaued in her, commeth of the holy goost. She shal bringe forth a sonne, and thou shalte call his name * Jesus. For he shall saue his people from their synnes. Al this was done that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken of the Lorde by the prophet, sayig: * Beholde, a mayde shalbe with childe, & shal bring forth a sonne, & they shal cal his name Emanuel, which is a mā interpreted, is as much to say as god with vs. And Joseph as soone as he awoke oute of slepe, did as the aungel of the Lord had bidden him: & he toke his wyfe vnto hym, and knewe her not, till she had brought forth * her first begotte sōne, & called his name Jesus.

WHen ✠ Jesus was borne at Bethlee a citye of Jewry, in the tyme of Herode the kinge: Beholde, there came wise mē frō the east to Jerusalem, sayinge: Where is he that is borne king of Jewes? For we haue sene his * starre in the east, & are come to worship him. Whē Herode the king had herde these thinges, he was troubled, & al the citie of Jerusalem with hym. And whā he had gathered al the chefe priestes and Scribes of the people together, he demaūded of thē, where Christ shoulde be borne. And they saied vnto him: At Beethleem in Jewry. For thus it is writte by the prophet: * And thou Bethleem in the lāde of Juda, art not the leest amōge the princes of Juda. For * out of the shal ther come vnto me the captayne, that shall gouerne my people Israel. Then Herode (when he had preuely called the wise men) he enquired of them diligently what tyme the starre appered, and he bad thē go to Beethlee, & said: Go your way thither, & serche diligently for the childe. And when ye haue foūd him, bring me word again that I may come and worship him also. ✠ When they had heard the kynge, they departed: and lo, the starre which they sawe in the east, wēt before thē, til it came, and stode ouer the place, wherin the childe was. When they saw the starre, they wer exceding glade: & went into the house, & founde the childe with Mary hys mother * & fell downe flat and worshipped hym, & opened their treasures, and offered vnto him giftes, golde, frankynsence, and myrre. And after they were warned of God in slepe (that they shoulde not go agayne to Herode) they returned into their owne cōtre another way. ✠ When they were departed, beholde, the aungel of the Lorde appeared to Joseph in slepe, sayinge: aryse, and take the childe and his mother and flye into Egipt: and be thou there, tyll I bring the worde. For it wyll come to passe that Herode shall seke the childe, to destroye hym. So whē he awoke, he toke the childe and his mother by nyghte, & departed into Egypte, and was there vnto the deathe of

A Mark.i.a. Luke.3.a John. 3.d a mar.1.d * Joh. 1.b a Es.40 a

In those dayes came John the * Baptist, preachinge in the wilderues of Jewry, & sayinge: a Repent of the life that is paste, for the kyngedome of heauen is at hande. * For this is he, of whō the Prophete Esay spake, which sayeth: a The voice of a crier in the wyldernesse, prepare ye the waye of the Lorde: and make his pathes strayghte. This John had hys rayment of camels heere. * And a girdel of a skynne aboute hys loynes. a His meate was locustes and * wilde hony. Then wente out to hym Jerusalem and all Jewry, and all the region rounde aboute Jordane, and were baptised of hym in Jordā, cōfessinge their synnes. ✠

B But when he sawe many of the Pharyses and Saduces come to his baptyme, he sayde vnto them. * O generacion of vipers, who hathe taughte you to fle from the vengeaunce to come? Bryngе forth therfore the frutes that belonge to repentaunce. And be not of such mynde that ye wonld say within youre selues: we haue Abraham to oure father. For I saye vnto you, that God is able to bryngе of these stones there shal ryse vp chyldren vnto Abraham. Euen now is the axe also put vnto the rote of the trees: so that * euery tree whyche bryngeth not forthe goodfrute, is hewen downe, and cast into the fire. I baptise you with water * vnto repentaūce: but he that shall come after me is myghtyer then I, whose shoes I am not worthye to beare: He shall baptyse you with the holy goost and with fyre: * whose fan is in his hande, and he wil purge his flooze, and gather his wheate into the barne, but wyll burne the chaffe with vnquencheable fyre. ✠ Thē commeth Jesus from Galile to Jordane vnto John * to be baptysed of hym. But John forbad hym, saynge: I haue nede to be baptised of the: and comeste thou to me? Jesus answered and sayde vnto hym: Let it be so nowe. For thus it becommeth vs to fulfil al righteousnes. Then he suffred him. And Jesus when he was baptysed, came straight way out of the water. And lo * heuen was open vnto him: and he saw the spirite of God descendynge lyke a doue, and lightinge vpon him. And lo, there came a voyce from heauen, saynge: * This is my beloued sonne, in whō I am wel pleased. ✠

The.iiii. Chapter. ✠

Then was Jesus * led away of the spyrite, into wyldernesse: to be tempted of the deuel. And when he had fasted forty dayes & fourty nightes, he was at the last an hongred. And when the tēpter came to him, he said: if thou be the sonne of God, cōmaūde, that these stones be made breade. But he answered and sayde: it is wrytten, * man shall not lyue by breade onely, but by euery woorde that procedeth oute of the mouthe of GOD. Then the deuell taketh him by into the holy citye, and setteth him on a pinacle of the temple, and sayeth vnto hym: yf thou be the sonne of God, caste thy selfe downe hedlynge. For it is wrytten, * he shall geue hys aungels charge oure the, and with their handes they shal holde the vp, lest at any tyme thou dash thy foote agaynst the stone. And Jesus said to him, it is wrytten againe: * Thou shalt not tēpt the Lord thy God. Again, the deuel taketh hym vp into an exceadynge hie mountayne, and sheweth him al the kyngdomes of the worlde, and the glorye of them, and sayeth vnto hym: all these will I geue the, yf thou wylt fal downe, and worshyp me. Then sayeth Jesus vnto him: Auoyde Satan. For it is written: * Thou shalte worship the Lord thy God, & him onely shalte thou serue. Then the deuell leaueth hym,

For better it is vnto the, that one of thy members perish, thē that thy whole body shoulde be caste into hell. And yf thy right hande hinder the, cut him of, and cast him from the. For better it is vnto the, that one of thy members perysche then that all thy bodye shoulde be caste into hell.

It is sayde, whosoeuer putteth awaye hys wife, * let him geue her a letter of deuorcement. * But I saye vnto you: that whosoeuer doth put awaye hys wyfe (except it be for fornication) causeth her to breake matrimonye. And whoso euer maryeth her that is deuorsed commytteth aduoutrye.

Agayne, ye haue beарde howe it was sayde to them of olde tyme: * thou shalte not forswеare thy selfe, but shalte perfourme vnto the LORD those thynges that thou swearest. * But I saye vnto you: sweare not at all: neither by heauē, * for it is Goddes seate, nor by the earth, for it is his fote stole: neither by Jerusalem, for it is the citie of the great king: neither shalt thou sweare by thy heade, because thou canste not make one heere white or blacke. Geue to him that asketh the, and from him that woulde borowe, turne not thou away.

Ye haue beарde that it is sayde, * thou shalt loue thyne neighbour, and hate thyne enemye. But I saye vnto you: loue youre enemyes. * Blesse them that curse you. * Do good to them that hate you. Praye for them whiche hurte you and persecute you, that ye maye be the chyldren of youre father whiche is in heauen for he maketh his Sunne to aryse on the euell, and on the good, and sendeth rayne on the iuste and on the vniuste. For yf ye loue them which loue you: what rewarde haue ye? Do not the publicans also euen the same? And yf ye make much of your brethren only, what synguler thing do ye? Do not also the publicans lykewyse? * Ye shall therfore be perfyte, euen as youre father whiche is in heauen, is perfyte.

Take hede, that ye geue not youre almoste in the sight of mē, to the intente that ye would be sene of them. Or elles ye haue no rewarde with youre father whyche is in heauen. Therfore whan thou geuest thyne almes, let no trompettes be blowen before the, as the ypocrytes doo the synagoges and in the stretes: for to be praysed of men. Verelye, I saye vnto you: they haue their rewarde. But when thou wylt geue almes, let not thy left hāde knowe what thy ryght hande doeth, that thyne almes maye be in secrete, and thy father whyche seeth in secrete, shal rewarde the openly. ¶ And whē thou prayest * thou shalt not be as the ypocrites are. For they lyke to stande prayinge in the synagoges, & in the corners of the stretes, that they may be sene of men. Verelye, I saye vnto you: they haue theyr rewarde. But when thou prayest * enter into thy chamber, and when thou haste shut thy doze praye to thy father whiche is in secret, & thy father which seeth in secrete, shal rewarde the openlye. But whē ye praye * bable not much, as the heathē do: for they thynche it wyll come to passe, that they shalbe herde for their much bablige sake. Be not ye therfore lyke vnto thē. * For your father knoweth what thinges ye haue nede of before ye aske of hym: after this maner therefore praye ye. * Our father whiche arte in heauen, halowed be thy name. Let thy kyngedome come. Thy wyl be fulfylled, as wel in earth, as it is in heauen. Geue vs thys daye oure daylye breade. And forgeue vs oure detres, as we forgeue oure detters. And leade vs not into temptation: but deliuer vs from cuyll. For thyne is the kyngedome & the power, and the glorye for euer. Amen. Therfore, * yf ye forgeue other men their trespalles, youre heuenlye father shall forgeue you. (your trespalles.) But yf ye wil not forgeue men their trespalles, nomore shal youre father forgeue you your trespalles. ¶ Moreouer * when ye fast, be not sad as the ypocrytes are. For they dysfigure theyr faces, that it maye appeare vnto men, howe that they faste. Verelye, I saye vnto you: they haue theyr rewarde. But thou, when thou fastest, anoynte thyne heade, and wasshe thy face, that it appeare not vnto mē, how that thou fastest: but vnto thy father, whyche is in secrete: and thy father which seeth in secrete, shal rewarde the openly. laye vp for you treasures in heauen, where neither rust nor mothe doeth corrupte, and where theues doe not breake thorowe nor steale. For where youre treasure is, there wyl your hearte be also. ✠ * The lyghte of the bodye is the eye. Wherefore, yf the eye be single al the bodye shalbe full of lyght. But and yf thyne eye be wycked, all thy body shalbe full of darckenes. Wherefore, if the light that is in the be darkenes, how great is that darckenes? ✠ * No man can serue two maisters. For either he shal hate the one and loue the other, or els leane to the one, and despyse the other: ye can not serue God and Mammon. Therefore, I say vnto you: * be not carefull for youre lyfe, what ye shall eate or drynche, nor yet for your body, what raymente ye shal put on. Is not the lyfe more worthy the meate: and the body more of value then rayment? Beholde, the foules of the ayre: for they sowe not, neither do they reape, nor cary into the barnes: and your heauenlye father fedeth them. Are ye not muche better then they? * Whyche of you (by takynge carefull thought) can adde one cubite vnto hys stature? And why care ye for rayment? Consider the lilyes of the felde, howe they grow. They labour not, neyther do they spynne. And yet I saye vnto you, that euen Salomō in all hys royalte was not arayed lyke vnto one of these. Wherefore, yf God so cloth the grasse of the felde (whiche thoughe it stande to daye, is to morowe caste into the fornalle) shall he not muche more doe the same for you, O ye of lytle faythe? Therefore, take no thoughte, sayinge: what shal we eate, or what shal we drynke, or wherwith shall we be clothed? After all these thynges do the gentils seke. For your heauenly father knoweth, that ye haue nede of all these thynges. But rather seke ye first the kyngdome of God, and the righteousnes therof, & al these thynges sh all be mynistred vnto you. Care not then for the morowe, for to morowe daye shall care for it selfe: sufficiente vnto the day, is the trauayle therof. ✠

I * Wdge not, that ye be not iudged: condempne not, & ye shal not be condepned. * For as ye iudge, so shal ye be iudged. * And with what measure ye meate, with the same shall other men measure to you. * Why seest thou a mote in thy brothers eye, but considrest not the beame that is in thyne owne eye? or how sayst thou to thy brother (brother) suffre me, I wil pluck out a mote out of thyne eye, & behold, a beame is in thine owne eye. Thou ypocrite, first cast out the beame out of thyne owne eye, & then shalte thou se clerely to pluck out the moate out of thy brothers eye. Geue not ye that which is holy vnto dogges, neyther caste ye youre pearles before swyne, lest they treade them vnder their fete, & the other turne agayne you, and all to rent you. Aske, and it shalbe geuen you: * Seke, & ye shal finde: knocke, and it shall be opened vnto you. For whosoeuer asketh, receaueth, and whosoeuer seketh, findeth: and to him that knocketh, it shalbe opened. Is ther any man amonge you (whiche yf his sonne aske breade) wyll offer hym a stone? Or yf he aske fiche, wyl he proffer hym a serpent? If ye then (when ye are euell) can geue youre chyldren good gyftes, howe much more shall your father which is in heauen, giue good thynges, yf ye aske of him. Therefore, * whatsoeuer ye woulde that men shoulde do to you: doe ye euen so to them also. For this is the law & the prophetes. * Entre in at the strayte gate: for wyde is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction: and many there be whyche go in there at. For strayte is the gate, and narowe is the waye, which leadeth vnto lyfe, and fewe there be that findeit. ✠ * Beware of false prophetes, whiche come to you in sheapes clothynge, but inwardly they are rauenynge wolues. Ye shal knowe them by their fruites. * Do men gather grapes of thornes? Or figges of thistles? Euen so euerye good tre bryngeth forth good fruites. But a corrupte tre bringeth forthe euyll fruites. * A good tre can not bringe forth bad fruite: neyther can a bad tree bryngе forth good fruites. * Euerye tre that bryngeth not forth good fruit, is hewen downe, & cast into the fyre. Wherfore, by their frutes, ye shall knowe them. Not euerye one that sayth vnto me: * Lorde, Lorde, shall entre into the kyngdome of heauen: but he that doth the wyll of my father, which is in heauen. (Ye shal entre into the kyngdom of heauē). ✠ Many wyll saye to me in that daye: Lorde Lord, haue we not prophecied thorow thy name? * And thorowe thy name haue caste out deuils? And done many miracles, thorow thy name? And then wil I knowledge vnto them: I neuer knewe you. * Departe fro me, ye that worcke iniquite. For whosoeuer heareth of me these wordes, & doeth the same, I wyl lyken him vnto a wise mā, whiche * builte his house vpō a rocke: and a shower of rayne discended, & the stoudes came, and the windes blewe, and bette vpon that house, and it fel not, because it was grounded on the rocke. And euerye one that heareth of me these wordes, * and doeth them not, shalbe lykened vnto a foolishe man, whiche builte hys house vpon sande: and a shower of rayne descended, mar.2.a. sycke of the palsye, lyyng in a bedde.

Luk.5.d. And whē Jesus sawe the fayth of them, he sayd vnto the sicke of the palsy: sonne, be of good cheare, thy synnes be forgeuen thee.
And beholde, certayne of the Scribes sayd within thē selues, this man blaspheneth.

And

And when Jesus sawe theyr thoughtes, he sayde: Wherefore thynche you yuell in youre heartes? Whether is easyer to saye: thy synnes be forgeuen the, or to say, aryse, and walcke? But that ye maye knowe, that the sonne of man hathe power to forgeue synnes in earth. Then sayde he vnto the sicke of the palsye: * aryse, take vp thy bed, and go vnto thine house. And he arose and departed to hys house. But the people that sawe it, marueyled, and glorified God, which had geuen suche power vnto men.  And as Jesus passed forth from thence, he sawe a man (named Mathewe) sittinge at the receate of custome, and he sayth vnto hym: folowe me. And he arose, and folowed hym. And it came to passe, as Jesus sat at meate in hys house: beholde, many Publicās also, & synners that came, sat downe with Jesus and hys disciples. And when the Pharises sawe it, they sayd vnto his disciples: whyeateth your master with publicans and synners? But when Jesus heard that, he sayde vnto theym. They that be stronge, nede not the Phisition, but they that are sycke, goe ye rather & learne what that meaneth, * I wyl haue mercye, & not sacrifice. For I am not come to call the righteous, but synners to repentaunce.  Then came the disciples of John vnto hym, sayinge: * Why doe we and the Pharises fast, for the moste parte: but thy disciples fast not. And Jesus sayde vnto them: can the brydegromes chyldren mourne, as lōge as the bridgrome is with them? But the dayes wyll come, when the brydegrome shalbe taken from them, and then shal they fast. No man putteth a pece of newe clothe in an olde garmēt. For the taketh, he awaye the pece fro the garment, and the rent is made worse. Neither do men put new wine into olde bottels: els the bottels breake, and the wine runneth out, and the botels perisshe. But they put new wine into newe bottels, and bothe are saued together.  Whyle he thus spake vnto thē: * beholde, ther came a certayne ruler, and worshipped him, saying: my doughter is euen nowe diseased. but come, & laye thy hande vpon her, and she shal liue. And Jesus arose, and folowed him, and (so did) his disciples: * & beholde, a womā whiche was diseased wyth an yssue of bloude twelue yeres, came behinde hym, and touched the hemme of hys vesture. For she said within her selfe: yf I may touche but euen hys vesture onely, I shalbe safe. But Jesus turned him about, and when he sawe her, he sayde: Doughter, be of good comforte, thy fayth hath made the safe. And the woman was made whole, euen that same tyme, * And when Jesus came in to the rulers house, and sawe the minstrels, and the people makyng noyse, he sayd vnto them: get you hence, for the mayde is not deade, * but sleepeth. And they laughed hym to scorne. But when the people were put forthe, he went in, & toke her by the hand (and sayde: damsell, aryse), and the damsell arose. And this noyse went abroade into al that lande. And whē Jesus departed thēce, two blynde men folowed hym, cryinge, and sayinge: O thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercye on vs! And when he was come into the house, the blynde came to hym. And Jesus sayeth vnto thē: beleue ye, that I am able to do this? They saye vnto hym: Lorde, we beleue. Then touched he theyr eyes, sayinge: * according to your fayth be it vnto you. And their eyes were opened. And Jesus charged them, sayinge: see that no man knowe of it. But they, when they were departed, spred abroade hys name in all that lande. As they went out: beholde * they broughte to hym a domme man possessed of a deuyll. And whē the deuil was cast out, the domme spake. And the people marueyled, saying: it was neuer so sene in Israel. But the pharises sayd: * he casteth out deuyls thorowe the prynce of deuyls. * And Jesus went about all cities and townes, teachynge in their synagoges, and preachynge the glad tydynges of the kyngdome, and healynge euery sickenes, & euery disease awonge the people. But when he sawe the people: * he was moued with compassion on them, because they were destitute, and scattered abroade, euen as theye hauynge no sheperde. Then sayeth he vnto his disciples, the * harueste truely is plenteous, but the labourers are fewe. Praye ye therefore the Lorde of the harueste, that he wyl sende labourers into his harueste.

AND it came to passe, that whē Jesus had made an ende of cōmaūding his twelue disciples, he departed thēce, to teache & to preach in their cities. ✝ Whē John being in prison heard the workes of

AT that time Jesus went on the sabboth dayes * thorow the corne, and his disciples were an hongred, & began to * pluche the eares of the corne, & to eate. But when the Pharasies sawe it, they sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy disciples doe that whyche is not lawefull (for them) to do vpon the Sabboth daye. But he sayde vnto thē. Haue ye not reade what Dauid did, when he was an hongred, and they that were with him? * Howe he entred into the house of God, and dyd eate the shewe bradeb, whiche were not lawefull for hym to eate, neither for them whiche were with hym, but onelye for the Prystes: Or haue ye not reade in the lawe, how that (on the Sabboth dayes) the Prystes in the temple breake the Sabboth, and are blameleese? But I saye vnto you: that in thys place is one greater then the Temple. Wherefore, yf ye wist what thys meaneth, * I require mercy, and not sacrifyce: ye wold not haue condemned innocētes. ✠
For the sonne of man also, is Lorde euen of the Sabboth daye. And he departed thence, * and went into theyr Synagoge: and beholde, there was a man whyche had hys hande dryed vp. And they asked hym, sayinge: * is it lawful to heale vpon the Sabboth dayes? that they myghte accuse hym. tares amonge the wheat, & went his way.
But whē the blade was sprong vp, & had brought forthe fruite, there appeared the tares also. So the seruauntes of the housholder came, and sayd vnto him: Syr, dyd-dest not thou sowe good sede in thy fel-frome whence then hathe it tares? He sayde vnto them: the enuious mā hath done this.
The seruauntes sayd vnto hym: wilt thou then that we goe, and wede them vp? But he sayde: naye, lest whyle ye gather vp the tares, ye pluche vp also the wheate wyth them, let bothe growe together, vntyll the harueste, and in tyme of haruest, I wyll say to the reapers: gather ye first the tares, and binde them together in sheues, to be brent: but gather the wheate into my barne. *
* Another parable put he forthe vnto thē, sayinge: * The kyngedome of heauen is like vnto a graine of mustard sede, which a man toke, and sowed in hys felde, which is the leste of all sedes. But when it is gro-wen, it is the greatest amonge herbes, and is a tree: so that the byrdes of the ayre come, and make their nestes in the braunches thereof: Another similitude spake he vnto them: * The kyngdome of heauen is like vnto leuē, which a womā taketh, & hideth in thre peckes of meale, tyll all be leuened. * All these thynges spake Jesus vnto the people, by similitudes, and without a parable spake he nothynge vnto thē: that it might be fulfylled, which was spokē by the prophete, that sayeth: * I wyll open my mouth in parables: I wyll speake forthe thynges, which haue bene kepte secrete frō the begynnynge of the worlde. * When the people were sente awaye, then came Jesus vnto him, sayinge: declare vnto vs the parable of the tares of the felde. He aunswe-red, and sayde vnto theym: he that soweth the good sede, is the sonne of man. The felde is the worlde. And the children of the kyngdome, they are the good sede: the ta-res are the children of the wycked: the ene-myе that soweth them, is the deuyll. The haruest is the ende of the worlde: the reapers be the Angels. Euē as the tares therfore, are gathered and brent in the fyre: So shal it be in the ende of this world. * The sonne of man shal sende forth hys angels, and they shall gather out of hys kyngdom all thynges that offende, and them whiche do iniquite: and shall cast them into a fur-nes of fyre. There shal be wayling & gnasshyng of teeth. * Then shall the righteous

Jesus sayde vnto them: haue ye vnderstand al these thinges? They saye vnto him: yea Lorde. Then sayde he vnto them: Therfore euery Scribe which is taught vnto the kingdome of heauen is like vnto a mā that is an housholder, which bringeth forth out of hys treasure, thynges newe and olde. ¶ And it came to passe that when Jesus had finished these similitudes, * departed thence: And whan he came into his owne countre, he taught thē in their synagoges, in so muche, that * they were astonied and sayde: whence commeth this wisedome and powers vnto hym? * is not this the carpenters sonne? Is not hys mother called Mary? And hys brethren, James and Joses and Simon, and Judas? And are not all his sisters with vs: whēce hathe he then al these thynges? And they were offended at hym. AT that time * Herod the Tetrarcha heard of the fame of Jesu, & sayd vnto his seruauntes: this is John the Baptist. He is risē frō the made, & therfore are miracles wrought by hym. For Herode * had take John, & bounde hi, & put hym in prison because of Herodias, his brother Philips wife. For John said vnto hi: * it is not lawful for the to haue her. And whē he wolde haue put hym to deathe, he feared the people, * because they coūted himas a prophet. But whē Herodes birth daye was kepte, the doughter of Herodias daunsed before them, and pleased Herode. * Wherfore he promised with an othe, that he wolde geue her what soeuer she wold aske. And she beynge instructe of her mother before, sayde: Geue me here John Baptistes head in a platter. And the kinge was sory. Neuertheles, for the othes sake, and them which sat also at the table, he commaunded it to be geuen her: and sente tormentours, and beheaded John in the prison, and hys head was brought in a platter, and geuen to the dāsel, & she brought it to her mother. And his disciples came & toke vp his body, & buried it, went, & tolde Jesus. When Jesus heard of it, * he departed thence in a shippe vnto a desert place out of the waye. And whē the people had heard therof, they folowed him on fote and lefte the cytyes. And Jesus went forth, and sawe muche people, and was moued with mercy toward them, and he healed of them, those that were sicke. And when the euen drewe, on his disciples came to him, saying: this is a desert place, and the houre is nowe paste, let the people departe, that they maye go into the townes, and bye them victuales. But Jesus sayd vnto them. They haue no nede to go awaye. Geue ye them to eate. They sayd vnto him: we haue here but fiue loues and two fishes. He sayde: bryngе them hyther to me. And he commaunded the people to sit downe on the grasse, and he toke the fiue loues & the two fishes, & lyfte vp hys eyes towarde heauen and blessed. And whē he had broken them, he gaue the loues to his disciples, and his disciples gaue thē to the people. And they dyd all eate, and were sufficed. M. men, besyde women and chyldren. * And streyght waye Jesus made hys disciples to get vp into a shippe, and to go before him vnto the other side, while he sent the people awaye. And when the people wer set awaye he * went vp into a mountayne to praye alone. And when nyght was come, he was there him selfe alone. But the shippe was nowe in the middest of the sea, and was tost with waues, for it was a contrary wynd. And i the fourth watch of the night, Jesus went vnto thē walkig on the sea. And whē the disciples sawe him walking on the sea, they were troubled, saying: it is some spyte, and they cryed out for feare. But streyghte waye, Jesus spake vnto them, sayinge: be of good cheare, it is I, be not afrayde. Peter aunswered him, and sayde: Lorde, yf it be thou, bydde me come vnto thee on the water. And he sayde: Come. And when Peter was come downe out of the shippe, he walked on the water, to goe to Jesus. But whē he sawe a myghty winde, he was afrayed. And when he beganne to synche, he cried, sayinge: Lorde saue me. And immediatlye Jesus stretched forth his hande, and caughte hym, and sayde vnto hym: O thou of litle fayth, wherfore dyddest thou dout? * And when they were come into the shippe, the wynde ceased. Then they that were in the shippe, came and worshipped hym hym, saying: of a treuth thou art the sonne of God. And when they were gone ouer, they came into the land of Genesareth. And when the men of the place had knowledge of hym, they sent out messengers into all that countre rounde about the coast, & brought vnto hym all that were sicke, and besought him, that they myght touche the hem of his vesture onely. But he answered and said vnto thē: why do ye also trangresse the commaundement of God, because of your owne tradycion: For God commaunded, saying: * honour father and mother, and he that curseth father & mother: let him die the death. But ye saye: euery one shal say to his father and mother: * what gyfte so euer shoulde haue come of me, the same is turned vnto thy profyte: & so shall he not honoure his father or his mother. And he called the people to him, & said vnto them: heare & vnderstande. That whiche goeth into the mouth, defileth not the mā: but that which cōmeth out of the mouth, defileth the man. Then came his disciples, & said vnto hym: knowest thou not, that the Pharisies were offended at this sayinge? But he answered & said. Euery plante which my heuenly father hath not plāted, shalbe plucked vp by the rotes. Let them alone, they be the blind leaders of the blynde. If the blynde leade the blind, both shall fall into the dich. Thē answered Peter, and sayde vnto hym: Declare vnto vs this parable. Jesus saide: Are ye also yet wythout vnderstanding? Do not ye yet vnderstande, that what so euer entreth in at the mouth, goeth into the belye, and is cast out into the draught? But those thynges whiche proceade out of the mouth, come forth from the hearte, and they defile the man. For out of the herte proceade euil thoughtes, murders, breaking of wedlocke, whore domes, theftes, false witnesse, blasphemies. These are the thynges, which defile a mā. But to take meate with vnwasshen handes, defileth not a man.

The Pharises also came vnto hym repring him, & saying vnto him: Is it lawfull for a mā to make a deuorcement with his wyfe for any maner of cause? Let not mā therfore put asūder, that which god hath coupled togeether. They saye vnto hym: why dyd Moses then commaūde to geue a testimoniall of deuorsemēt, and to put her away? He sayde vnto them: * Moses (because of the hardnesse of your heartes) suffered you to put awaye youre wyues: But from the begynnynge it was not so. + I saye vnto you: whosoeuer putteth awaye hys wyfe (except it be for fornication) and marieth another, breaketh wedlocke. And who so maryeth her which is deuorced, doth commit aduoutrye. Hys disciples say vnto hym: yf the matter be so betwene man and wyfe, then is it not good to marry. He said vnto them: al men can not comprehende this sayinge: * sāue they to whome it is genen: for there are some chast whiche are so borne oute of their mothers wombe. And there are some chaste, whiche be made chaste of men. And there be chaste, whyche haue made them selues chaste for the kyngedō of heauens sake. He that can comprehēde it, let him cōprehende it. * Thē were there brought vnto hym yonge chyldren, that he should put his handes on thē, and praye. And the disciples rebuked them. But Jesus said vnto them: suffre the chyldren and forbid them not to come vnto me: for of suche is the kingdom of heauen. And when he had put his hādes on them, he departed thence. And beholde, one came, and sayd vnto hym: * good master, what good thynge shall I do that I may haue eternal lyfe? He sayde vnto hym: why callest thou me good? * there is none good but one, and that is God. But yf thou wylt enter into lyfe, kepe the cōmaundementes. He sayeth vnto hym. Whiche? Jesus sayde. * Thou shalte not commyt manslaughter. Thou shalt not steale: thou shalte not beare false wytnes: honoure father and mother: + and thou shalte loue thyne neyghboure as thy selfe. The yonge man sayeth vnto him. Al these thinges haue I kept frō my youth vp: what lacke I yet? Jesus sayde vnto him, yf thou wylt be perfecte + go and sel (all) that thou hast, & gyue to the poore, & thou shalt haue treasure in heauē, & come & folowe me. But when the yonge man hearde that saying, he wente awaye sory. For he had great possessions. Then Jesus sayd vnto his disciples: verely, I saye vnto you: + it shalbe harde for the ryche to enter into the kingdome of heauē. And againe I say vnto you: it is easyer for a camel to go throughe the eye of a nedle, then for the ryche to enter into the kingdom of God, when the disciples heard this, they were exceedingly amased, saying: who than can be saued? But Jesus beheld thē, & said vnto thē: with mē this is vnpossible * but with God all thinges are possible. + Then answered Peter, & sayde vnto him. Behold, * we haue forsaken al, and followed the, what shall we haue therefore? Jesus sayde vnto them, verely, I saye vnto you: that when the sonne of man shal sit in the seate of his maiestye, ye that haue followed me in the regeneration * shall sye also vpon xii. seates, and iudge the xii. trybes of Israell. * And euery one that forsaketh house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wyfe, or childrē, or landes, for

Then shal the kyngedõ of heauen be grome tarried, they all slombred and slepte.

And euen at mydnyght, there was a crye made: beholde, the brydegrome cõmeth, go oute to mete him. Then all those virgins arose, and prepared their lampes. So the foolysshe sayde vnto the wyse: geue vs of youre oyle: for oure lampes are gone oute.
But the wyse answered, saying: not so, lest there be not ynough for vs and you, but go ye rather to them that sel, and bie for youre selues. And whyle they wente to bye, the brydegrome came: and they that were rea-dye, went in with hym to the mariage, and the gate was shute vp. Afterwarde came also the other virgins, sayinge: ✳ Lorde, Lorde, open to vs. But he answered and sayde: verely I saye vnto you: I know you not. ✳ Watch therfore, for ye knowe neither the daye, nor yet the houre wherein the sonne of man shall come. ✠ ✳ Lykewyse as a certaine man ready to take his iorney

VPō an euening of the ✶sabbothes, which dawneth the first day of the sabbothes, came Mary Magdalene & the other Mary, to see the sepulchre. And beholde, there was a great earthquake, for the angel of the lord descended frō heauē, and came, & rouled backe the stone frō the doore, & sat vpō it. His countenāce was like lightening, & his rayment white as snow. And for feare of hī the keepers were astonied, and became as deade men. ✶ The aungell answered, and sayd vnto the women: feare ye not. For I knowe, that ye seke Jesus which was crucified: he is not here. He is risen, as he sayde: Come see the place where that the Lorde was layed: & goe quickelye, & tell hys disciples, that he is risen agayne frome the deade. And beholde, he goeth before you into Galile, there ye shall se hym. Lo, I haue told you. ✠✶ And they departed quickely from the sepulchre with feare, and greate ioye, and dyd runne, to bringe his disciples worde. And as they wente to tell his disciples: beholde, Jesus met them, sayinge: All hayle. And they came, & held hym by the feete, and worshipped him. Then sayde Jesus vnto them: be not afrayed. Go, tell my brethren, that they go into Galile, and there shal they se me. When they were gone: beholde some of the keepers came into the cyetye, and shewed vnto the hye Priestes, all the thinges that had happened. And they gathered the together with the elders, and toke councel, & gaue large money vnto the souldiers, sayinge: Say ye, that his disciples came by nyght, & stole hym away while ye slept. And yf this come to the rulers eares, we wyl perswade hym, and saue you harmeles. So they tooke the money, & did as they were taught. And this saiynge is noysed among the Jewes vnto this day.

✠✶ Then the eleuen disciples wēt away into Galile, into a mountayne where Jesus had appoynted them. And when they sawe him, they worshipped him. But some doubted. And Jesus came, and spake vnto them, sayinge: ✶ All power is geuen vnto me in heauē, and in earth. ✶ Go ye therfore, & teach al nacions, baptising thē, in the name of the father, & of the son, & of the holye ghost: Teaching thē to obserue al thinges, whatsoeuer I haue cōmaunded you. ¶ The. iiij. Chapter.

A AND he began agayne, to teache by the ſea ſyde. And there gathered together vnto him muche people, ſo Mat.13.a greatly that he entred into a ſhippe, * and ſat in the ſea, & all the people was by the ſea ſyde, on the ſhoore. And he taught them many thinges by parables, & ſaid vnto Luk.8.a him in his doctrine: Herken to, beholde, * there went out a ſower to ſowe. And it fortuned as he ſowed, that ſome fel by the way ſyde, and the foules of the ayre came, and deuoured it vp: Some fell on ſtonye grounde where it had not muche earthe: and immediatly ſprange vp, because it had not depthe of earth: but as ſone as the ſunne was vp, it caught heate: and becauſe it had not rotynge, it widdred awaye. And ſome fell amonge thornes, and the thornes grew vp, and choked it, & it gaue no frute. And ſome fel vpon good grounde, and dyd yelde frute that ſpronge vp, and grewe, and bronghte forth, ſome thirty folde, and ſome ſyxtye folde, and ſome an hundred folde, & he ſayde vnto them: he that hathe eares to heare let him heare.

B And whē he was alone, they that were aboute him with the twelue, aſked him of the parable. And he ſayde vnto Mat.13 b them: * To you it is geuen to knowe the Luc.8.b miſtery of the kyngdome of God. But vnto them that are without, al thynges happen by parables: that when they ſee, they may ſee, and not diſcerne, and when they heare, * they maye heare, and not vnderſtande: leſt at any tyme they ſhould turne, and their ſynnes ſhoulde be forgeuen the. And he ſayde vnto them: know ye not this parable? and howe then wyll ye knowe all other parables? * The ſower ſoweth the worde. And they (whereof ſome be rehearſed to be by the way ſyde) are thoſe, where the worde is ſowen: And when they heare, Sathan commeth immediatly, and taketh awaye the worde that was ſowen in their hearttes. And likwiſe the other that receyue ſede into the ſtonye grounde, are they: which when they heare the worde, at once receaue it with gladnes, yet haue no rote in them ſelues, and ſo endure but a time: And anone, when trouble & perſecution aryſeth for the wordes ſake, they fall immediatlye. There be other alſo, that receaue ſede into thornes, and thoſe are ſuche as heare the worde, and the cares of thys worlde, & the diſceytfulnes of ryches, and the luſtes of other thynges, entre in, & choke the word, and it is made vnfruitfull: and other there be, that haue receaued ſede into a good grounde: they are ſuche as heare the worde & receaue it, ſo that one cozne doeth bryngе forth thirty, ſome ſyxtye, ſomean hundred. And he ſayde vnto them: * Is the candle lighted, to be put vnder a buſhel, or vnder the table? Is it not lighted to be put on a candelſticke? * For there is nothing ſo preuy, that ſhal not be opened: nether hathe it ben ſo ſecret, but that it ſhal come abrode: If anye man haue eares to heare, let hym heare. And he ſayde vnto them: take hede what ye heare: * With what meaſure ye meate, with the ſame ſhall other men meaſure vnto you agayne. And vnto you that heare, ſhall more be geuen. For vnto him that hath, ſhal it be geuen, and from him that hath not, ſhall be taken awaye, euen that whiche he hath. And he ſayd: ſo is the kyngdom of god, euen as * if a man ſhulde ſowe ſede in the grounde, and ſhulde ſlepe, and ryſe vp nyghte and daye: and the ſede ſhould ſpringe, and growe vp, whyle he is not aware. For the earth bryngeth forth the frupte of her ſelfe: fyrſte the blade, then the eare, after that the full cozne in the eare. But whē the fruite is brought forth, anone he thruſteth in the ſyckle, becauſe the haruеſt is come. A.pa.25.b Jacharias. THere was in the dayes of Herode the kinge of Jewrye, a certayne priest named zacharias, * of the course of Abia And his wife was of the doughters of Aaron: & her name was Elizabeth: they were both righteous before God, & walked in all the lawes and ordinaũces of the Lord, that no man could finde faute with them. And they had no childe, because that Elizabeth was barren, & they bothe were nowe well stricken in age. And it came to passe, that whẽ zachary executed the Prieستes office before God, as his course came: accordynge to the Ex. 30.b custome of the priestes office) his lot fell to Pcb. ix. b burne incense, And he * went into the tẽple of the Lorde, & the wholemultytude of the people were without in prayer, while the incense was a burning. And there appeared vnto him an angel of the Lord, standing on the right side of the aultare of incense. And 13 when zacharias saw him, he was abashed, and feare came on him. But the angel sayde vnto hi: feare not zachary, for thy prayer is heard. And thy wife Elizabeth shall beare the a sonne, and thou shalte call his name John, & thou shalt haue ioy & gladnes, & many shal reioyce at his byrth. For he shalbe great in the sighte of the Lorde, and shall nether drynke wyne nor stronge dryncke. And he shall be fylled wyth the holy goste, even from hys mothers wombe: and many of the chyldren of Israell shall he tourne to theyr LORDE GOD. And he shall mat. xi. b goe before hym in the spirite and power of * Helias, to tourne the hearres of the fathers to the children, and the vnbeleuers to the wisedome of the iust menne, to make readye a perfecte people for the Lord. And Ge. 17. c. zacharias saied vnto the aungell: by what and. 18. b. token shall I knowe this? For * I am olde, and my wife well stryken in yeares. And the aungell answered, and sayde vnto him: I am Gabriel, that stande in the presence of God, and am sent to speake vnto thee: & to shewe the these glad tidinges. And beholde, it shal come to passe, that thou shalt be dome, and not be able to speake, vntyll the day that these thinges be performed, because thou beleuedeste not my woordes, which shalbe fulfilled in their season. And the people wayted for zacharias: and merueyled that he tarred in the temple. And when he came out, he could not speake vnto them. And they perceaued, that he had sene a vision in the tẽple. And he beckened vnto them, and remayned speachelesse. ✣ And it ¶ fortuned, that as sone as the dayes of hys office were out, he departed into his owne house. And after those dayes, his wife Elizabeth conceaued, & hid her selfe fyue monethes, sayinge: This wise hath God dealte wyth me, in the dayes wherin he hath looked on me, to take fro me my rebuke amonge men. And in the first moneth the angell Gabriell was sente from GOD vnto a cytye of Galile named Nazareth, to a virgin, spoused to a man, whose name was Joseph, of the house of Dauid, and the virgins name was Mary. And the angel wẽt in vnto her, & saide: Hayle ful of grace, the Lorde is wyth thee: blessed art thou amõge wemen: When she sawe hym, she was abashed at his sayinge: and caste in her mynde, what maner of salutacyon that shoulde be. foꝛ for vnto yon is borne this daye in the cytye of Dauid, a Sauiour, which is CHRIST the Lord. And take this for a signe: ye shall finde the childe wrapped in swadlynge clothes, and layed in a maunger. And streight waye there was with the aungell a multytude of heauenlye souldyers, praysynge God: and sayinge: Glorye to GOD on hye, and peace on the earthe, and vnto men a good will. ✠ And it fortuned, as sone as the aungels were gone away from them in to heauen. The shepherdes said one to another: let vs go nowe euen vnto Bethleem: and se this thinge that we heare say is happened, whiche the Lorde hath shewed vnto vs. And they came with hast, and founde Mary and Joseph, and the babe layed in a maunger. And when they had seene it, they published abrode the sayinge: whych was tolde theym of that chylde. And all they that hearde it, wondred at those thynges whiche were tolde them of the shepherdes. But Marye kepte all those sayinges, and pondered them in her herte.

And the shepherdes returned, praysing & laudinge God for all the thinges that they had hearde and sene, euen as it was tolde vnto them. And when the eyghte daye was come that the childe shoulde be * circumcised * his name was called Jesus * whiche was named of the Aungell, before he was conceaued in the wombe. ✠ And when the time of their purificacion * (after the law of Moses) was come, they * brought him to Jerusalem, to presente hym to the Lorde (as it is wrytten in the lawe of the Lorde: * euery manchild that first openeth the matrix, shalbe called holy to the Lorde:) and to offer (as it is saide in the lawe of the Lorde) a payre of turtle doues, or two yong pygions. And beholde, there was a man in Jerusalem, whose name was Simeon. And the same man was iuste and godly, and looked for the consolacion of Israell, and the holy goste was in him. And an answere had he receaued of the holy goste, that he shoulde not se death, excepte he sawe firste the Lordes Christe. And he came by inspiracion into the temple. And when the father and mother brought in the childe Jesus: to do for him after the custome of the * lawe, then toke he him vp in his armes, and praysed God and sayde: Lorde, nowe lettest thou thy seruaunte departe in peace, accordynge to thy promis. For mine eies haue sene thy saluacion: whiche thou hast prepared before the face of all people. * A lyghte to lyghten the Gentils, and the glorye of thy people Israell. * * And hys father and mother marueiled at those thynges, which were spoken of hym. And Simeon blessed them, and saide vnto Marye hys mother: beholde, this childe is set to be the fall and vprysynge againe of many in Israell, and for a sygne whiche is spoken agaynst. And moreouer, the swearde shall pearce thy soule, that the thoughtes of manye heartes maye be opened. And there was a prophetisse, one Anna, the doughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aser: why she was of a great age, and had lyued with an husbande vii. yeares from her virginitie. And she had bene a wydow about foure score and foure yeare, whiche departed not from the temple, but serued GOD with fastynges and prayers night and day. And she came forth that same houre, and praysed the Lorde, and spake of hym, to all them that looked for redempcyon in Jerusalem. And when they had perfourmed all thynges accordynge to the lawe of the Lorde, they returned into Galile, to their owne cytye Nazareth. And * the chylde grewe, and waxed stronge in spirite, and was filled with wisdome, & the grace of God was vpon him. ✠ And his father and mother wente to Jerusalem euerye yeare * at the feaste of Easter. And when he was twelue yeare olde, they wente vp to Jerusalem after the custome of the feast daye. And when they had fulfilled the dayes: as they returned home, the chylde Jesus abode styll in Jerusalem, and his father and mother knewe not of it: but they suppolynge hym to haue bene in the companye, came a dayes iourneye, and sought him among their kynsfolke and acquayntaunce. And when they founde him not, they wente backe agayne to Jerusalem, and soughte him. And it fortuned that after. iii. dayes, they founde hym in the temple syttinge in the middes of the doctoures, hearynge them, and posynge theym. * And all that hearde hym, were astonyed at hys vnderstandynge and aunswers. And when they sawe hym, they marueyled. And his mother sayde vnto hym: sonne, why haste thou thus dealte with vs? Behold, thy father and I haue sought the, sorowynge. And he saide vnto them: howe is it that ye sought me? Wiste ye not, that I muste go about my fathers busines? And * they vnderstoode not that sayinge whiche he spake vnto them. And he went downe with them, and came to Nazareth, and was obedient vnto them. But his mother kepte all these sayinges together in her heart. And Jesus prospered in wysedome and age, and in fauoure, with God and men.

IT came to passe that (when the people preassed vpon hym to heare the word of God) he stode by the lake of Genezareth: * & saw two shyppes stãde by the lake side, but the fi shermẽ were gone out of thẽ, and were washynge their nettes. And he entred into one of the shyppes, (whiche pertayned to Simon) and prayed him that he would thrust out a litle from the lande. And he sat downe, & taught the people out of the shyp. When he had left speakynge, he sayde vnto Simon: Launche oute into the depe, & let slip your nettes to make a draughte. And Simõ answered & said vnto him: Master, we haue laboured al nyght, and haue take nothynge. Neuertheles, at thy cõmaundemente I wyl lose forthe the nette. And whẽ they had this done, they inclosed a great multitude of fyshes. But their net brake, and they beckened to their felowes (which were in the other shyppe) that they should come, and helpe them. And they came: and fylled both the shyppes, that they sonche agayne. When Simon Peter sawe thys, he fell downe at Jesus knees, saying: Lord go from me, for I am a sinfull man. For he was astonyed, and al that were with hym, at the draught of fyshes, which they had taken: and so was also James and John the sonnes of Zebede, whyche were parteners with Simon. And Jesus sayde vnto Symon: feare not, from hence forth thou shalte catche men. And they brought the shippes to lande, * and forsoke all, and followed hym. ✠ And it fortuned that when he was in a certayne citie: behold, ther was a man ful of leprosye, and when he had spied Jesus, he fel flat on his face, and besoughte him, saying: Lord, yf thou wilte thou canst make me cleane. And he stretched forth hys hande, and touched hym, saying: I wyl, be thou cleane. And immedyatlye the leprosye departed from hym. And he charged hym, that he shoulde tell no man: but go (sayeth he) * and shewe thy selfe to the priest, and offre for thy clensynge accordynge as Moses commaunded, for a witnesse vnto them. But so muche the more wente there a fame abroade of hym, and muche people came together to heare, & to be healed of him from their infirmities. And he kepte him oute of the waye in the wyldernesse, and gaue him selfe to praier. ✠ And it happened on a certayne daye, that he taught: and there sate the Pharises and doctoures of the lawe, whiche were come oute of all the townes of Galyle and Jewrye, and Jerusalem. And the power of the Lorde was presente, to heale thẽ. * And behold, men broughte in a bed, a man which was take with a palsey: and they sought meanes to bring hym in, and to laye hym before hym. And whẽ they coulde not fynde on what syde they myght bringe hym in (because of the preasse) they wente vpon the coppe of the house, and let hym downe thorowe the tylynge, bed and all, euen in the myddes before Jesus. When he sawe their fayth, he said vnto him: man thy synnes are forgeuen the. And the Scribes and the Pharyses beganne to thinke, saying: What felowe is this, whiche speaketh blasphemye? * who can forgeue sinnes, but God onely? But when Jesus perceyued their thoughtes, he answered, and sayde vnto them: What thinde ye in youre hertes? Whether is easyer to saye, thy sinnes be forgeuen the, or to saye ryse vp, and walke? * But that ye maye knowe that the sonne of man hath power to forgeue sinnes on earth, he sayde vnto the sycke of the palsey: I saye vnto the: aryse, take vp thy bed, and go vnto thy house. And immediatly he rose vp before them, and toke vp his bed (wheron he laye) and departed to hys owne house, praisynge God. And they were al amased, and they gaue the glorye vnto God. And were filled with feare, saynge: We haue sene straunge thinges to daye. ✠ * And after this, he wente forthe, and sawe a Publican named Leui, sittynge at the receipte of custome, and he sayde vnto hym: folowe me. And he left al, and rose vp, and folowed hym: And Leuy made hym a greate feaste in hys owne house. And they ſayde vnto hym: * Why do the diſcyples of John faſte often, and praye, and the diſcyples of the phariſes alſo: but thyne eate and drincke? He ſaid vnto them. * Can ye make the chyldren of the weddynge faſt, while the bridegrome is with them? The dayes wyll come, when the bydegrome alſo ſhalbe taken awaye from them: then ſhal they faſte in thoſe dayes. He ſpake alſo vnto the a ſymylitude. No man putteth a pece of a newe garmente, into an olde veſture, for yf he do, the breaketh he the new, and the pece that was taken out of the new agreeth not with the olde. And no mā poureth newe wyne into olde bottels. For yf he do, the newe wine wyll burſt the bottels and runne out it ſelfe, & the bottels ſhal peryſh. But new wyne muſt be put into new bottels, & both are preſerued. No man alſo that drinketh olde wine, ſtraight way can awaye with newe: for he ſayeth: the olde is better.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

It happened on an after principal Sabboth, that he wēt * thorow the corne feld: and his diſcyples pluckt the eares of corne, & dyd eate, & rubbed them in theyr handes. And certayne of the Phariſes ſayd vnto them: Why do ye that whiche is not lawfull to do on the Sabboth daies? And Jeſus anſwered them, & ſaid. * Haue ye not redde what Dauid did, whē he him ſelfe was an hongred, and they whiche were wyth hym: howe he went into the houſe of God, and dyd take and eate the ſhewe * bredde and gaue alſo to them that were with him: which are not lawfull to eate, but for the * prieſtes onelye? And he ſayd vnto them: The ſonne of man is Lorde alſo of the Sabboth daye. ✠ * And it fortuned in another Sabboth alſo, that he entred into the Synagoge, and taught. And there was a man, whoſe eyght hande was dryed vp. And the Scribes and Phariſes watched hym, whether he would heale on the Sabboth daye, that they myghte fynde how to accuſe hym. But he knew theyr thoughtes, and ſaid to the man which had the wythred hande: Ryſe vp, and ſtande forth in the middes. And he aroſe and ſtode forthe. Then ſayde Jeſus vnto them: I wyll aſke you a queſtion: Whether is it lawfull on the Sabboth dayes to do good, or to do euyll? to ſaue ones life, or to deſtroy it? And he beholde them all in compaſſe, and ſayde vnto the man: Stretche forth thy hande. And he dyd ſo: * and hys hande was reſtored agayne as hole as the other. And they were fylled with madneſſe, and communed together amonge them ſelues, what they myght do to Jeſu. ✠ And it fortuned in thoſe daies * that he wente oute into a mounteyne for to praye, and contynued al nyghe in praier to God. And aſſone as it was daye, he called hys diſcyples, * and of them he choſe, xii. whome alſo he called Apoſtles. Simon whome he alſo named Peter, and Andrew his brother. James and John, Philyppe and Bartholmewe, Mathewe and Thomas, James the ſonne of Alpheus, and Simon whiche is called Zelotes, and Judas James ſonne, and Judas Iſcarioth, the ſame that was the traytoure. ✠ And he came downe wyth them, and ſtode in the playne felde, and the company of hys diſcyples + and a greate multytude of people (out of all Jewrye and Jeruſalē, and from the ſea coaſt * of Tyre and Sidon) whyche came to heare hym, & to be healed of theyr diſeaſes, & they that were vexed wyth foule ſpirites and they were healed. And all the people preaſed to touche hym, for there wente vertue oute of hym, and healed them al. And he lyfte vp his eyes vpon the diſcyples and ſayde: * Bleſſed be ye poore, for yours is the kyngedome of God. Bleſſed are ye that honger now, for ye ſhalbe ſatyſfied. Bleſſed are ye that wepe nowe, for ye ſhall laughe. Bleſſed ſhall ye be when men hate you, and thruſte you out of their companye, and rayle on you, and abhorre your names as an euell thynge, for the ſonne of mans ſake. Reioyſe ye in that daye, and be glade: for beholde, youre rewarde is greate in heauen. ✠ For thus dyd their fathers vnto the prophetes. * But wo vnto you that are ryche: for ye haue youre conſolacion. Wo vnto you that are full: for ye ſhall honger. Wo vnto you that nowe laughe: for ye ſhall wayle and wepe. Wo vnto you when all men prayſe you: for ſo dyd theyr fathers to the falſe Prophetes. But I ſaye vnto you whyche heare: Loue youre enemyes. Do good to them whyche hate you. Bleſſe them that curſe you. And praye for them which wrongefully trouble you. And vnto hym that ſmyteth the on the one cheke, offer alſo the other. * And hym that taketh awaye thy gowne, forbyde not to take thy coate alſo. Gyue to euerye man that aſketh of the. And of hym that taketh awaye thy goodes, aſke them not agayne. * And as ye would that men ſhould do to you, do ye alſo to them lykewyſe. : And yf ye loue them whiche loue you, what thanke haue ye? For ſinners alſo loue their louers.

And ykye do good for them which do good for you, what thanke haue ye? For sinners also do euen the same. And if ye lende to thē of whome ye hope to receyue: what thanke haue ye? for sinners also lende to sinners, to receyue suche lyke agayne. But loue ye your enemyes, and do good, and lende, lokynge for nothige agayne: and your rewarde shal be greate, and ye shalbe the chyldren of the hiest: for he is kinde vnto the vnkynde and to the euel. ✠ Be ye therfore mercifull, as your father also is mercyful. * Iudge not, and ye shall not be iudged: Condemne not, and ye shall not be condemned. Forgyue, and ye shall be forgyuen. * Gyue, and it shalbe gyuen vnto you: good measure and pressed downe, and shaken together, and runninge ouer shal men geue into your bosomes. * For wyth the same measure that ye mete withal, shal other men mete to you agayne. And he put forth a similitude vnto them: * Can the blynde leade the blynde? Do they not bothe fal into the dyche. * The disciple is not aboue his master. Euery mā shalbe perfyte, euē as his master is. * Why seest thou a moote in thy brothers eye, but consyderest not the beame that is in thyne owne eye? Eyther howe canste thou saye to thy brother: Brother, let me pul oute the moote that is in thyne eye, when thou seest not the beame that is in thyne owne eye. Thou ypocrite, cast out the beame that is in thyne own eye fyrst, & then shalt thou se parfitlye, to pull out the moote that is in thy brothers eye ✠ * For it is not a good tree, that bryngeth forth euel frute: neither is that an euel tree that bryngeth forthe good frute. For euery tree is knowen by hys feute. For of thornes do not men gather figges, nor of bushes gather they grapes. A good man oute of the good treasure of hys heart, bringeth forthe that which is good. And an euell man, oute of the euell treasure of hys hearte bryngeth forthe that whiche is euell. * For of the aboundaunce of the hearte, his mouth speaketh. Why call ye me * Lorde Lorde, and do not as I bid you: whosoeuer commeth to me and heareth my sayinges, and dothe the same. I wyll shewe you to whom he is like. * He is like a man whyche buylte an house, and digged depe, and layde the foundacion on a rocke. When the waters arose the floude bet vpon that house and coulde not moue it. For it was grounded vpon a rocke. But he that heareth and dothe not, is lyke a man that without foundacion buylte an house vpon the earthe agaynste whyche the floude dyd beate: and it fell immediatlye. And the fall of that house was greate.

When he had ended al his sayinges in the audience of the people * he entred into Capernaū. And a certaine Centuriōs seruaūt which was deare vnto him, laie sicke, & was in parel of death. And whē he hearde of Iesu, he sente vnto hym the elders of the Iewes, besechinge hym that he would come, & heale his seruaūt. And when they came to Iesus they besought hym instantlye, sayinge: He is worthye that thou shouldest do this for him. For he loueth our natiō, & hath builte vs a synagoge. And Iesus went with thē. And whē he was nowe, not far frō the house, the Centurion sēt frendes to him saying vnto him: * lord, trouble not thy selfe: for I am not worthye, that thou shouldest enter vnder my roofe. Wherfore, I thought not my selfe worthye to come vnto the: but say thou the worde, & my seruaunt shalbe hole. For I also am a man set vnder power, & haue vnder me souldiers, & I saye vnto one go, and he goeth, and to another, come, and he commeth: & to my seruaunte, do this, and he doth it. When Iesus hearde this, he marueyled at him, and turned him about, and said to the people that folowed hym: I saye vnto you, I haue not founde so greate fayth, no, not in Israell. And they that were sente, turned backe home agayne and founde the seruaūte hole that had bene sycke. ✠ And it fortuned after this, that he wente into a cytie which is called Naim, & many of his disciples went with him, and much people. When he came nie to the gate of the cytie: beholde, there was a deade man caryed oute, whyche was the onely sonne of hys mother, and she was a wyddowe, and much people of the cyte was with her. And when the Lorde sawe her, he had compassyon on her, and sayde vnto her: wepe not. And he came nye, and touched the coffyn: and they that bare hym stode styll. And he sayde: Yonge man, I saye vnto the, aryse. And he that was deade sat vp, and began to speake. * And he delyuered hym to hys mother. And there came a feare on them al. And they gaue the glory vnto God saying: * A great Prophet is rysen vp among vs. and God hath visyted his people. And this rumore of him went forth throwoute all Iewrye, and throwoue out al the regions which lie roūde about. ✠ And the disciples of John shewed hym of all these thynges. * And John called vnto hym two of hys disciples, and sent them to Iesus sayinge: Art thou he that should come: or shall we loke for another? asked hym, sayinge: what maner of symylitude is this? And he sayde: vnto you is it geuen to knowe the secretes of the kyngedome of GOD: but to other by parables: that when they se, they should not se: * and when they heare, they should not vnderstande. The parable is this. ¶ The sede is the worde of GOD. Those that are beside the waye, are they that heare, then cometh the deuill, & taketh awaye the worde oute of their hertes, lest they should beleue and be saued. They on the stones, are they which when they heare, receaue the worde with ioy, & these haue no rotes: which for a while beleue, & in time of temptation go awaye. And that which fell among thornes, are they which when they haue herde, go forth, and are choked with cares & riches, & voluptuous lyuinge, & bringe forth no fruite. That which fel in the good grounde, are they which with a pure & good hert heare the worde and kepe it, & bring forth fruite thorow pacyence. [+ No man, when he lighteth a candell, couereth it with a vessell, or putteth it vnder a table, but setteth it on a candelsticke, that they which the enter in, may se the lyghte. * Nothynge is in secrete, that shal not come abrode. Neither any thyng hyd, that shal not be knowē, and come to light. Take hede therfore, howe ye heare. For whosoeuer hathe, to him shall be * geuen: And whosoeuer hathe not, from him shalbe taken: euen that same which he supposeth that he hathe. ¶ Then came to him his mother and his brethren, and couldē not come at hym for preasle. And it was told him, and saide: Thy mother and thy brethren stande without, and woulde se the. He answered & sayde vnto them: my mother and my brethren are these, whiche heare the worde of GOD, and do it. ✠ And it chanced on a certayne daye, that he went into a shyppe, and hys disciples also, and he sayde vnto them: Let vs go ouer vnto the other syde of the lake. And they launched forth. But as they sayled, he fell a slepe, * and there arose a storme of winde in the lake, and they were filled with water, and were in ieopardie. And they came to him, and awoke him, sayinge: Master, Master, we are lost: Then he arose, and rebuked the wynde, and the tempest of water, and they ceassed, and it waxed calme. And he said vnto them: wher is your fayth? They feared and wondred among them selues, saying: What (thynche ye) is this? for he commaundeth both the windes and water, and they obey hym. [+ * And they sayled vnto the regyon of the Gadarenites, which is ouer against Galile. And when he went out to land, there mette hym out of the citie a certaine man, whyche had a deuyll longe time, and ware no clothes, neither abode in any house: but in graues. When he saw Jesus, & had cryed, he fell downe before him, and with a loude voyce, saide: ¶ What haue I to do with the Jesus, thou son of the God most hiest? I beseech the tozment me not: for he cōmaūded the foule spirite to come out of the man. For ofte tymes he had caught him, & he was bounde with chaines, & kept with fetters, and he brake the bandes, & was caried of the fende into wyldernes. And Jesus asked him, saying: What is thy name? And he sayd: Legion, because manye deuils were entred into him. And they besought him, that he would not cōmaūde them, to go out into the pyt. And there was there, an heerde of manye swyne, fedynge on an hyll: & they besought him, that he wolde suffre them to enter into them. And he suffered them. Then went the deuyls oute of the man, and entred into the swine. And the heerd ranne headlong with violence into the lake, and were choked. When the heerdmen sawe what had chaunced, they fled, and told it in the citie, and in the billages. And they came out to se what was done, and came to Jesus, and founde the man (out of whome the diuels were departed) sitting at the fete of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mynde, and they were afrayed. They also whiche sawe it, tolde them by what meanes he (that was possessed of the deuill) was healed. And all the multitude of the Gadarenites, besoughte him, that he woulde departe from them, for they were taken with greate feare. * And he gat him vp into the shippe, and returned backe agayne. Thō the mā (oute of whō the diuels were departed,) besought him that he might be with him. But Jesus sēt hi away, sayinge: Go home agayne to thyne owne house, & shewe what thynges soeuer God hathe done for the. And he went his way, and preached thorowoute all the cytye, what thynges soeuer Jesus had done vnto him. And it fortuned that when Jesus was come agayne, the people receyued him. For they all waytes for hym. * And beholde, there came a mā named Jairus (and he was a ruler of the Sinagoge) and he fell downe at Jesus fete, prayinge him, that he would come into hys house, for he hadde but one doughter onely, vpon a. xii. yeare of age, & she laye a dyinge. But as he went, the people thronged him. + And a woman, hauing an issue of blonde. xii. yeares (whiche hadde spente all her substaunce vpon Phisitions, neyther coulde be holpen of anye) came behynde him, and touched the hem of his raiment: and immedyately her issue of blonde staunched. For from hence forthe there shalbe fyue in one house deuided, three againste two, and two agaynste three. The father shalbe deuyded agaynste the sonne, and the sonne against the father. The mother against the doughter, and the doughter against the mother. The mother in lawe agaynste the doughter in law, and the doughter in lawe agaynste her mother in lawe. He said also to the people: * when ye se a cloude ryse out of the west, strayght waye ye saye: there commeth a shower, and so it is. And when ye se the southe wynde blowe, ye saye: it wil be hote, and it cōmeth to passe. Ye ypocrytes, ye can dyscerne the ourwarde appearaunce of the skye, and of the earth: but how happeneth it, that ye cā not skyll of this tyme? Yea, and why iudge ye not of youre selues what is ryghte? * When thou goest with thyne aduersarye to the ruler, as thou arte in the waye, geue diligence that thou mayest be delyuered frō him, leste he drynge the to the iudge, & the iudge delyuer the to the sayler, and the sayler caste the into pryſō. sawe he, he called her to hym, and sayde vnto her: woman, thou art delyuered from thy disease. And he layed his hãdes on her, and immediatly, she was made straight, & glorified God. And the ruler of the Synagoge answered with indignacion (because that Jesus hadde healed on the Sabboth daye) and sayde vnto the people: There are .vi. dayes, in whych mẽ ought to worke, in them come, that ye maye be healed, and not on the Sabboth daye. But the Lorde answered him, and sayde: Thou ypocryte, doeth not eche one of you on the Sabboth daye * loose hys oxe, or hys asse frome the stall, & leade hym to the water? And oughte not this doughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bounde (lo. xviii. yeares) be loosed from this bonde on the Sabboth daye? And when he thus sayd, al his aduersaries were ashamed; and al the people reioyced on al the excellent dedes, that were done by hi. ¶ Then sayde he: what is the kyngedome of God lyke? or whereto shall I compare it? * Je is like a grayne of mustarde seed which e a man toke, and sowed in hys garden: and it grewe and waxed a greate tree, and the fowles of the ayre made nestes in the braunches of it. Then shal ye begyn to saye: we haue eaten and dronken in thy presence, and thou hast caught in our stretes. And he shall saye: I tel you, I knowe you not whence ye are: depart from me, al ye that worke iniquite. There shalbe weppynge, and gnachynge of teeth, when ye shal see Abraham, and Jsaac, and Jacob, and all the Prophetes in the kyngdome of God, and ye youre selues thrust out. * And they shal come frome the east, and frome the weste, & from the nozth, and frome the south, and shall sit downe in the kyngdom of God. And beholde, * there are laste, whyche shall be firste. And there are firste, which shalbe laste. The same daye came there certayne of the Pharyses, and sayde vnto hym: get the out of thy waye, and depart hence: for Herode wyll kyl the. And he sayde vnto theym: Goe, ye, and tell that foxe, beholde, I caste oute deuels, and heale the people to daye, and to mozowe, and the thyrde daye I make an ende. Neuertheles, I muste walcke to daye, and to mozowe, and the day folowynge: for it can not be that a Prophete perysche anye other where, saue at Jerusalem. * O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, whyche kyllest Prophetes, and stonest them that are sente vnto thee: howe ofte wolde I haue gathered thy chyldren together, as a byrde doth gather her yonge vnder her wynges, and ye would not? AND it chaũced, that he wẽt into the house of one of the chiefe pharises to eate bread on the sabboth daye, and they watched him. And beholde, there was a certayne mã before him, whiche had the dropsy. And Jesus answered, & spake vnto the lawiers & pharises, saying: * is it lawful to heale on the saboth daye? & they held their peace. And he toke him, & healed him: and let him go, & answered them, sayinge: whiche of you shal haue * an asse or an oxe fallen into a pit, and wyl not straight way pul him oute on the Sabboth daye? And they coulde not aunswere hym agayne to these thynges. He put forth also a similitude to the gestes when he marcked, howe they preased to the hyest rowmes, & sayde vnto them: When thou arte bydden of anye man to a weddynge, syt not downe in the hyest rowme, lest a more honorable man then thou be bydden of hym, and he (that bad hym and thee) come, & saye to the: gene thys man rowme, and thou then begynne with shame to take the lowest rowme. But rather when thou arte bydden, goe and syt in the lowest rowme: that when he that bad thee, commeth: Ye maye saye vnto thee: * frend, syt vp hyer. Then shalt thou haue worshyppe in the presence of them that syt at meate with thee. * For whosoeuer exalteth him selfe shall be brought lowe. And he that hũbleth him selfe, shalbe exalted. ✠ Then sayde he also to hym, that hadde desired him to dinner: ✠ When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy frendes, nor thy brethren, neyther thy kynsmen, nor thy ryche neyghbours, lest they also byd the agayne, and a recompence be made the. When one of them (that sate at meate also) hearde these thynges, he sayde vnto him: happy is he that eateth breade in the kyngdome of God. ✠ Then sayde he vnto hym. ✠ ❧ A certayne man ordeyned a great supper, and bad many, and sent hys seruaunt at supper tyme, to saye to them that were bidden, come: for al thynges are nowe ready. And they all at once beganne to make excuse. The first sayd vnto hym: I haue bought a farme, and I muste nedes goe and see it, I praye thee, haue me excused. And another sayde: I haue boughte fyue yoke of oxen, and I goe to proue them, I praye the, haue me excused. And another sayd: I haue maryed a wyfe, and therefore I can not come. And the seruaute returned & broughte his master worde agayne therof. Then was the good man of the house displeased, and sayd to hys seruaunt: Go out quickly into the stretes and quarters of the citye, and bringe in hyther the poore, and the feable, & the halte, and the blinde. And the seruaunt sayde: Lorde, it is done as thou haste commaunded, and yet there is rowme. And the Lorde sayd vnto the seruaunt: go out vnto the hye wayes, and hedges, and ❧ compell them to come in, that my house may be fylled. For I saye vnto you, that none of those men whych were bydden, shal taste of my supper. ✠ There wēt a great cōpany with him, and he tourned, and sayd vnto them: ❧ If a man come to me, and hate not hys father and mother, and wyfe, and children, and brethren and sisters: yea, and his owne life also, he can not be my disciple. And who soeuer doeth not beare hys crosse, and come after me, can not be my disciple. Whiche of you disposed to buylde a towre, sitteth not downe before, and counteth the cost, whether he haue sufficiente to performe it: lest after he hath layde the foundation, and is not able to performe it, all that beholde it, begynne to mocke him, saying: this man beganne to buylde, and was not able to make an ende? Or what kynge goynge to make battayle agaynst another kinge, sitteth not downe firste, and casteth in hys mynde, whether he be able with ten thousande, to mete hym, that commeth agaynst hym with .xx. thousande? Or els whyle the other is yet a greate waye of, he sendeth ambassitours, and desyreth peace. So likewyse, whosoeuer he be of you, that forsaketh not all that he hath, he can not be my disciple. ✠ ❧ Salt is good, but yf salt haue lost the saltnes, what shalbe seasoned therwith? But he put forth this parable vnto thē saying: ❧ what mā amonge you hauing an hundred sheepe (if he lose one of thē) doth not leaue nineye & nine in the wildernes, and go after that which is lost, vntyll he finde it? And when he hathe founde it, he layeth it on hys shoulders with ioye. And assoone as he commeth home, he calleth together hys louers and neyghbours, sayinge vnto them: Reioyse with me, for I haue founde my sheepe, which was lost. I say vnto you, that lyke wyse ioye shall be in heauen ouer one synner that repenteth, more then ouer nynety and nyne iust persons, which nede no repentaunce. Either what woman (hauynge ten groates, yf she lose one) doeth not lighte a candle, and swepe the house, and seke diligently tyll she fynde it? And when she hathe founde it, she calleth her louers and her neyghbours together, sayinge: reioyce wyth me, for I haue founde the grote whiche I had lost. Lykewyse I saye vnto you shall there be ioye in the presence of the angels of God, ouer one sinner ✠ that repenteth. ✠ ❧ And he sayde: A certayne mā had two sonnes, and the younger of them sayde vnto the father: father, gene me the portion of the goodes, that to me belongeth. AND he sayd also vnto his disciples. ✠ There was a certayne riche mā, which had a stewarde, and the same was accused vnto him that he had wasted hys goodes. And he called hym, & said vnto him: How is it, that I heare this of the? Gene accoptes of thy stewardshyppe, for thou maiest be no longer steward. The stewarde sayd within him selfe: what shall I do? for my master taketh away from me the stewardshyp. I can not digge, & to begge I am ashamed. I wot what to do, that when I am put out of the stewardshyp, they may receaue me into their houses. So when he had called al his masters detters together, he said vnto the first: how much owest thou vnto my master? And he said: an hundred tonnes of oyle. And he saide vnto him: take thy bil: & sit downe quickly, and writ fifty. Then saide he to another: howe muche owest thou? And he sayd: an hundred quarters of wheate. He sayde vnto hym: Take thy bill, and wryte foure score. And the Lorde commended the vniuste stewarde, because he had done wisely. For the children of this worlde are in their nacyon, wyser then the children of lyghte. And I saye vnto you: make you frendes of the vnryghteous Mammon, that when ye shall haue nede, they maye receaue you into euerlastynge habitacyons. ✠ He that is faythfull in that whiche is least, is faythfull also in muche. And he that is vnrighteous in the least: is vnryghteous also in much. So then, if ye haue not bene faythfull in the vnrighteous Mamon, who will beleue you in that whiche is true? And yf ye haue not bene faithfull in another mannes busynes, who shall gyue you that whyche is youre owne? * No seruaunte can serue two masters: for eyther he shall hate the one, and loue the other, or els he shall leane to the one, and despyse the other. Ye can not serue God and Mamon. All these thinges hearde the Pharises also, whiche were couetous, and they mocked hym. And he sayde vnto them: ye are they whiche iustifie youre selues before me: but God knoweth your heartes. For that whiche is highly esteemed amonge men, is abhominable in the syght of God. ✠ * The lawe and the Prophetes raygned vntyll John: and sence that time, the kyngdome of God is preached, and euery man stryueth to go in. * Easyer is it for heauen and earth to perysshe, then one tytle of the lawe to fayle. * Who so euer forsaketh his wyfe, and maryeth another, committeth aduoutrye. And he whiche maryeth her, that is deuorsed frome her husbande, commytteth aduoutrye also. ✠ There was a certayne ryche man, whiche was clothed in purple and fyne white, and fared deliciously euery daye. And there was a certayne begger, named Lazarus, whiche lay at his gate, full of sores, desyringe to be refreshed with the cromes, whiche fell from the riche mans borde. (And no man gaue vnto him) The dogges came also, and lycked his sores. And it fortuned, that the begger dyed, and was caryed by the aungels into abrahams bosome. The ryche man also dyed, and was buryed. And beinge in hell in tormentes, he lift vp his eyes, and sawe Abraham a farre of, and Lazarus in his bosome, and he cryed, and sayde: father Abraham, haue mercy on me, and sende Lazarus, that he maye dyppe the typpe of hys fynger in water, and cole my tonge: for I am tormented in this flame. But Abraham said: Son, * remembre that thou in thy life tyme, receauedst thy pleasure, and contrarye wyse, Lazarus receaued payne. But nowe is he comforted, and thou art punished. Beyonde al this, betwen vs and you there is a great space set, so that they which wolde go frō hence to you, can not: neyther maye come from thence to vs. Then he sayde: I praye the therefore father, send him to my fathers house. But afterwarde he said within hym selfe: thoughe I feare not God, nor care for man, yet because this widowis importune vpon me, I wyl auenge her, lest she come at the last, and raile on me. And the Lorde sayd: heare what the vnrighteous iudge sayeth. And shall not God auenge hys electe, which crye daie and night vnto hym? yea, thoughe he deferre them. I tell you, that he wil auenge them, & that quickly. ✠ Neuertheles, when the sonne of man commeth, shal he fynde fayth on the earth? ✠ And he tolde this parable vnto certayne whiche trusted in them selues, that they were perfyte, and despised other. Two men wente vp into the temple to praye: the one a Pharise, and the other a Publican. The Pharise stode and prayed thus with hym selfe: God, I thancke the, that I am not as other men are, extorcioners, vniust, aduoutrers, or as this Publican. And this sayinge was hydde from them, so that they perceaued not the thynges whyche were spoken. * And it came to passe, that as he was come nie vnto Hiericho, a certaine blynde man, sate by the way side, begginge. And when he hearde the people passe by, he asked what it meante. And they sayde vnto hym, that Iesus of Nazareth passed by. And he cryed, sayinge: Iesu thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercy on me. And they which went before, rebuked hym, that he shoulde holde his peace. But he cryed so muche the more: * thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercye on me. And Iesus stode stil, and commaunded hym to be brought vnto hym. And whē he was come neare, he asked him, sayinge: what wilt thou that I do vnto the? And he said: lord, that I may receaue my sight. And Iesus said vnto hym: receaue thy sight: thy faith haue saued the. And immediatly he receaued his sight, & folowed hym, praising God. And al the people, when they sawe it, gaue prayse vnto God. ✠

And Zache stode forth, and sayde vnto the Lorde: B beholde Lorde, the halfe of my goodes I geue to the poore: and yf I haue done anye man wronge, I restore hym foure fold. Jesus sayd vnto him: this day is health happened vnto thys house, because that he also Mat.15 c is become the childe of Abraham. * For the sonne of man is come to seke, and to saue that which was lost. ¶ And as they heard these thynges, he added thereto a parable, because he was nye to Jerusalem, and because they thoughte that the kyngdome of God shoulde shortelye appeare. He sayde Mat.25 b therfore: ✠ * A certayne noble man wente Mar.13 b into a farre countre, to receaue him a kingdome, & to come agayne. And he called his ten seruauntes, & deliuered the ten pound, saynge vnto theym: Occupye, tyl I come. But his citezins hated him, and sent a message after him, saynge: we wyl not haue C this man to raigne ouer vs. And it came to passe, that whē he had receaued hys kyngdome, he returned, and commaunded these seruauntes to be called vnto him, to whom he hadde geuen the money, to wete howe much euery man had done. Then came the first, saying: Lorde, thy pounde hath gayned ten pounde. And he sayde vnto hym: Mat.25 b * wel thou good seruaūt: because thou hast bene faythful in a verye litle thynge, haue thou auctorite ouer ten cities. And another came, saynge: Lord, thy pounde hath made fyue pounde. And to the same he sayde: be thou ruler also ouer fyue cytyes. And another came, saynge: Lorde, beholde, here is thy pounde, whiche I haue kepte in a napkyn: for I feared thee, because thou arte a straite mā: thou takest vp that thou laydest D not downe, and reapest that thou dyddest not sowe. He sayeth vnto hym: * Of thyne 2.reg.1.c owne mouth, wyl I iudge the, thou euil seruaunte. Knewest thou that I am a straite man, takynge vp, that I layed not downe, and reapinge that I dyd not sowe? And wherefore gauest thou not my money into the banke, and at my comminge I myght haue required mine owne with vauntage? And he sayde vnto them, that stode by: take from him that pound, and geue it him that hath ten pounde. And they sayd vnto him: Lorde, he hath ten pounde. For I saye vnto you, that * vnto euery one that hath, shalbe geuē & he shall haue aboūdaunce: & from him that hath not, shalbe taken away, euē that whiche he hath. Moreouer, those mine enemies, (which wolde not that I shoulde raygne ouer them) bringe hither, and slee them before me. * And when he had thus spoken, he proceaded forth, takīg his iorney, to go vp to Jerusalem. ¶ * And it fortuned, when he was come nie to Bethphage and Bethany, beside the mount which is called Oliuete, he sente two of his disciples, saynge: goe ye into the towne, whiche is ouer agaynst you. Into the which assone as ye are come, ye shall fynde an asse colte tyed, wherō yet neuer man sat. Lose him, and bryng him hyther. And if any mā aske you, why do ye loose him? thus shal ye saye vnto hym: the lord hath nede therof. They that were sent, wente their waye, & founde euen as he had sayde vnto them. And as they were a loosynge the colte the owners thereof sayde vnto them: why loose ye the colte? And they sayde: for the Lorde hathe nede of him. And they brought hym to Jesus, and cast their raymēt on the colte, and set Jesus thereon. And as he wente, they spredde their clothes in the way. And when he was now come nie to the goyng downe of the mount Oliuete, the whole multytude of the disciples, began to reioyce, and to prayse God with a loude voyce, for all the miracles that they had sene, saynge: * Blessed be the kynge that commeth in the name of the Lorde: Peace in heauen, & glory in the hiest. And some of the Pharises, of the cōpany, sayd vnto hym: Master rebuke thy disciples. He sayde vnto them: I tell you, that yf these holde their peace, * then shall the stones crye. ¶ And when he was come neare, he beheld the cytye, and * wepte on it, saynge: If thou haddest knowen those thynges, whiche belong vnto thy peace, euen in this thy day, thou wouldest take hede. But now are they hyde from thyne eyes. Jesus answered & sayd vnto hi: verely, verely, I say vnto the, except a mā be borne frō aboue, he can not see the kingdō of god. Nicodem⁹ sayth vnto him: how can a mā be borne when he is old? can he enter into his mothers wōbe & be borne agayne? Jesus answered: * verely, verely, John.4.b I saye vnto thee, except a man be borne of and.7.d. water and of the spirite, he can not entre Tit.3.a. into the kyngdome of God. * That which is borne of the fleache, is fleache, and that Rom.8.a which is borne of the spirite is spirite. Marueyle not thou that I sayde to the, ye muste be borne frome aboue. The wynde bloweth where it lusteth, and thou heareste the sounde therof * but canst not tel whēce Ecc.xi.a it commeth and whither it goeth. So is B euerye one that is borne of the spirete. Nicodemus answered, and sayde vnto him: howe can these thynges be? Jesus answered, and sayd vnto hym: Arte thou a maister in Israell, and knowest not these thynges? Verely, verely, I saye vnto thee: we speake that we do knowe, and testifye Ephe.4.a that we haue sene: and ye receyue not oure witnes. He that beleueth on hym, is not condemned. But he that beleueth not, is cōdemned al readye, John.1.a because he hath not beleued in the name of and.xii.b the onelye begotten sonne of God. And this is the condempnation: * that lyght is Eph.5.b come into the worlde, & men loued darknes more then lighte, because their dedes were euel. And there was Jacobs wel. Jesus then beyng werye of his iourney, sat thus on the well. And it was aboute the fifte houre: and there came a woman of Samaria to drawe water. Jesus sayeth vnto her: geue me drynke. For hys dysciples were gone awaye vnto the towne, to bye meate. Then sayeth the womā of Samaria vnto hym: howe is it, that thou beynge a Jewe, askest drynche of me, which am a Samaritane? * For the Jewes medle not with the Samaritans. Jesus answered, and said vnto her: yf thou knewest the gyfte of God, and who it is that sayeth to thee, geue me drynck, thou wouldest haue asked of him, & he would haue genen * thee water of lyfe. But whosoeuer drynketh of the water that I shall geue hym, shall neuer be more a thyrste: but the water that I shall geue hym, shalbe in him a well of water, spryngynge vp into euerlastyng lyfe. The woman sayeth vnto him: Syr, geue me of that water, that I thyrste not, neyther come hyther to drawe. Jesus saith vnto her: Goe, call thy husbande, and come hither. For thou hast had fyue husbandes, and he whome thou nowe haste, is not thy husbande. In that saidest thou truelye.

The womā saieth vnto hym: * Syr, I perceaue that thou arte a Prophete. Oure fathers worshypped in this mountayne, * & ye say that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worshippe. Jesus sayeth vnto her: woman, beleue me, the houre commeth, when ye shall (neither in thys mountayne, nor yet at Jerusalem) worshyp the father. ye worshippe ye wote not what: we knowe what we worshippe. * For saluacyon commeth of the Jewes. But the houre commeth and nowe is, whē the true worshippers shal worshippe the father * in spirite, and in the trueth. Then they went out of the citie, & came vnto him. In the meane while his disciples prayed him, saying: Master, eate. He said vnto thē: I haue meate to eate, that ye know not of. Therfore said the disciples amonge them selues: hath any mā brought him ought to eate? Jesus saith vnto thē: my meat is to do the wil of him that sent me, & to finish his worke. Jesus sayeth vnto him: * Arise, take vp thy bed, & walke. And immediatlye the mā was made whole, and toke vp his bed, and walked. And the same daye was the Sabboth. The Jewes therefore sayde vnto him that was made whole: It is the sabboth daye, it is not lawfull for the to carye thy bed. He aunswered them: he that made me whole, sayde vnto me: take vp thy bed, and walke. Thē asked they him: what mā is that, whiche sayde vnto the: take vp thy bed, and walcke? And he that was healed, wyst not who it was. For Jesus had gotte him selfe awaye, because that there was preasse of people in that place. * Afterward, Jesus founde him in the temple, and sayde vnto him: beholde, thou arte made whole: synne no more, lest a worse thinge happen vnto the? haue heārde of God: this did not Abrahā. ye do the dedes of your father. Then sayde they to him: we were not borne of fornicacion. We haue one father, euen God. Jesus sayde vnto them: yf God were your father, truely ye wouldē lone me. For I proceaded forth, and came from God. Neyther came I of my selfe, but he sente me: Why do ye not knowe my speach? Euen because ye cannot abide the hearynge of my word. ye are of youre father the deuyll, & the lustes of your father wyl ye serue. He was a murtherer from the begynnyng, & abode not in the trueth, because ther is no trueth in hym. Whē he speaketh a lye, he speaketh of hys owne: For he is a lyar, & the father of the same lynge. And because I tell you the trueth, therefore ye beleue me not.

Which of you rebuketh me of sinne? If I saye the trueth, why do ye not beleue me? He that is of God, heareth godes wordes. Ye therefore, heare them not, because ye are not of God. Then answered the Jewes, and sayde vnto hym: Saye we not wel that thou arte a Samaritan, & haste the deuyl? Jesus answered: I haue not the deuyll: but I honoure my father, & ye haue dishonored me. I seke not mine owne prayse: there is one that seketh, and iudgeth. Verely, verely, I saye vnto you: yf a man kepe my sayinge, he shall neuer see death. Then sayde the Jewes vnto hym: Nowe knowe we, that thou hast the deuyl. Abraham is deade, and the prophetes, and thou sayest yf a man kepe my sayinge: He shall neuer taste of death. Arte thou greater thē our father Abraham, which is deade? And the prophetes are deade. Whome madest thou thy selfe? Jesus answered: If I honoure my selfe, myne honoure is nothing. Je is my father that honoureth me, whiche ye say, is youre God, & yet ye haue not knowē hym: but I knowe hym. And if I saye, I knowe hym not, I shall be a liar lyke vnto you. But I know him, & kepe hys sayinge: youre father Abraham was glad to see my day: and he sawe it, and reioyced. Then sayde the Jewes vnto hym: thou arte not yet. l. yere old, & hast thou sene Abraham? Jesus sayde vnto them: Verely, verely, I saye vnto you: yer Abraham was borne, I am. Then toke they vp stones to cast at him: But Jesus hid hi selfe, & went out of the tēple.

The. ix. Chapter.

And as Jesus passed by, he saw a mā which was blinde frō his birth. And his disciples asked him, saying: master, who did sinne, this mā, or his father & mother, that he was borne blynde? Jesus answered: Neyther hathe this man synned, nor yet his father and mother: But that the workes of God shulde be shewed in hym. I muste worcke the workes of hym that sent me, while it is daye. The nighte commeth, when no man can worke. As log as I am in the worlde, I am the lyghte of the worlde. Assone as he had thus spoken, he spate on the grounde, and made claye of the spetle, and rubbed the clay on the eyes of the blynde, and sayde vnto hym: Goe, wasche the in the pole of Siloe, whyche (by interpretacion) is as much to say, as sent. He went hys waye therefore, and washed, and came agayne, seing: So the neighbours and they that had sene him before (how that he was a begger) sayde: is not this he that sat and begged? Some sayde: this is he. Agayne, other sayd: (No, but) he is like hym. He hym selfe sayde: I am euen he. Therefore sayde they vnto hym: Howe are thyne eyes opened? he answered and sayd: The man that is called Jesus, made claye, and annoynted myne eyes, and sayde vnto me: Go to the pole Siloe, and washe. And when I wente and washed, I receaued my syght. Then sayd they vnto hym: where is hee? He sayde: I can not tel. They brought to the pharises, him that a litle before was blynde: and it was the Sabboth daye whē Jesus made the claye, and opened hys eyes. Then agayne the pharises also asked hym, howe he had receaued hys syghte. He sayde vnto them: he put claye vpon myne eyes, and I washed, and doe see. Therefore sayde some of the phariles: this mā is not of God, because he kepeth not the Sabboth day. Other sayde: howe can a man that is a synner do such miracles? And ther was a stryfe among them. They spake vnto the blynde man agayne: What sayest thou of hym, because he hathe opened thyne eyes? He sayd: He is a prophet. But the Jewes dyd not beleue of the man (howe that he had bene blynde, and receaued hys syght) vntyl they called the father and mother of hym that had receaued his syght. And they asked them, sayinge: is thys youre sonne, whome ye saye was borne blynde? Howe doeth he now see then? hys father and mother answered them, and sayde: we knowe that thys is our sonne, and that he was borne blynde: but by what meanes he now seeth, we can not tell. Or who hath opened hys eyes, cannot we tel. He is old ynough, aske hym, let hym answere for hym selfe. Suche wordes spake hys father and mother, because they feared the Jewes. For the Jewes had conspired all ready, that yf any man dyd confesse that he was Christ, he shulde be excommunicate out of the Synagoge. Therefore sayde hys father & mother: he is olde ynoughe, aske hym. Then

agayne called they the mā that was blinde, and sayde vnto hym: Geue God the prayse: we know, that this man is a sinner. He answered therefore, and sayde: Whether he be a sinner or no, I cannot tell. One thynge I am sure of: that where as I was blynde, nowe I se. Then sayde they to him agayne: F What dyd he to the? Howe opened he thine eyes? He aunswered them: I tolde you yer while, and ye did not heare. Wherefore wold ye heare it agayne? Wyll ye also be his disciples? then rated they him, & said: Be thou his disciple. We are Moses dysciples. We are sure, that God spake vnto Moses. As for this felow, we know not from whēce he is. The man answered, and said vnto thē: this is a maruelous thing, that ye wote not frō whence he is, & yet hath he opened myne eyes. For we be sure, that god heareth not sinners. But if anye man be a worshipper of God, & obedient vnto his wil, him heareth he. Sence the world began was it not herd, that anye man opened the eyes of one that was borne blinde. If this man were not of God, he could haue done nothyng. They answered, & said vnto him: thou arte altogether borne in sinne, & doest thou teache vs? And they caste him oute. Jesus hearde that they had excōmunicate him: & when he had G founde him, he saide vnto hym: doest thou beleue on the sonne of God? He answered, & saide: Who is he Lord that I myghte beleue on him? And Jesus saide vnto him: Thou John. 4. c hast sene him, * & he it is that talketh with the. And he said: Lord, I beleue, and he worshipped him. ✠ And Jesus saide vnto hym: I am come vnto iudgemēt into this worlde: that they which se not, might se: and that they which se, might be made blynde. And some of the pharises which were with him: Joh. 15. d herde these wordes, and said vnto him: are we blinde also? Jesus said vnto thē: * If ye were blind, ye shold haue no sin. But now ye saye: we se, therefore youre synne remayneth.

A VErely, verely, I saye vnto you: he that entreth not in by the doze into the shepefold, but clymeth by some other waye, the same is a theefe & a murtherer. But he that entreth in by the dooze, is the shepherd of the shepe: to him the porter openeth, & the shepe heare his voyce, & * he Joh. 10. d calleth his owne shepe by name, & leadeth thē out. And when he hathe sente forth hys owne shepe, he goeth before thē, & the shepe folow him: for they knowe his voice. A straunger wil they not folowe, but will flee from him, for they knowe not the voice of straungers. This prouerbe spake Jesus vnto thē. But they vnderstode not what thinges they were, whyche he spake vnto them. Then sayd Jesus vnto them agayne: Verelye, verelye, I saye vnto you: * I am the dooze of the shepe. All (euen as many as came before me) are theues & murtherers: but the shepe did not heare them. I am the doze: by me yf any man enter in, he shall be safe, and shall go in and oute, and fynde pasture. A theefe commeth not but for to steale, kyll, and to destroye. No man taketh it from me: but I put it awaye of my selfe. I haue power to put it frō me, and I haue power to take it agayne. This commaundement haue I receaued of my father. There was a dissencō therfore againe amonge the Jewes for these sayinges, and many of them sayde: * He hathe the deuyll, and is mad: why heare ye him? Other sayd, * these are not the wordes of him that hath the deuyll. Can the deuyll open the eyes of the blynde? ✠ And it was at Jerusalem, the feast of the dedycacyon, and it was winter: and Jesus walked in the temple, euen in * Salomons porche. Then came the Jewes rounde aboute hym, and sayde vnto hym: Howe longe doest thou make vs doubte? yf thou be Christe, tell vs playnly. Jesus answered them: I tolde you, and ye beleue not. But ye beleue not, because ye are not of my shepe. A woman when she trauayleth, hath sorowe, because her houre is come: but assone as she is deliuered of the childe, she remembreth nomore the angwishe, for ioye that a man is borne into the world. And ye nowe therfore haue sorow: but I will se you againe, & your hertes shal reioyse, & your ioy shal no man take frō you. ✠ And in that day shal ye aske me no question. ✠ Verely verelye, I saye vnto you: * whatsoeuer ye shal aske the father in my name, he wil geue it you. Hitherto haue ye asked nothinge in my name. Aske, & ye shal receaue: that your ioye maye be full. These thinges haue I spoken vnto you by prouerbes. The tyme wil come, when I shall nomore speake vnto you by prouerbes: but I shall shewe you playnely from my father. At that dayȝ shall ye aske in my name, And I saye not vnto you that I will speake vnto my father for you. For the father hym selfe loueth you, because ye haue loued me, and haue beleued, that I came oute from God. I wente oute frome the father, and came into the worlde. Agayne, I leaue the worlde, and * go to the father. His disciples sayde vnto him: lo, nowe talkest thou playnelye, and speakest no prouerbe. Now are we sure, that * thou knowest all thinges, and nedest not, that any mā should aske the any questiō. A IN the former treatise (deare Theophilus) we haue spoken of all that Jesus began to do & teache, vntyll the day in which he was taken vp, after that he, thorow the holy goost, had geuen cõmaundementes vnto the Apostles, whom he had chosen: to whom also he • shewed him selfe alyue after hys passion, (and that by many tokens) appearyng vnto thẽ fourtie daies, & speakyng of the kingdom of God, & gathered them together, • & commaunded them, that they shoulde not departe from Jerusalem) but to wayte for the promyse of the father * wherof, sayeth he) ye haue hearde of me. For • John truely Baptised with water, but ye shall be Baptised with the holye gooste after these fewe daies. When they therfore were come together, they asked of him, saying: Lorde, wilt thou at this tyme, restore agayne the kingdom of Israel? And he said vnto them: * It is not for you to knowe the tymes, or the seasons, which the father hathe put in his own power: but • ye shall receaue power after that the holy goost is come vpon you. And • ye shalbe witnesses vnto me, not onlye in Jerusalẽ, but also in al Jewry, and in Samary, and euen vnto the worldes ende.

And when he had spoken these thynges, while they beheld, * he was taken vp an hye, and a cloude receaued him vp out of their sight. And while they loked stedfastly vp towarde heauen, as he went: behold, two men stode by them in white apparel, which also sayde: ye men of Galile, why stande ye gasyng vp into heauen? This same Jesus which is taken vp from you into heauen, * shal so come, euen as ye haue sene hym go into heauen. ✝ Then returned they vnto Jerusalem from the mounte (that is called Oliuete) which is from Jerusalem a Sabboth daies iourney. And when they were come in, they went vp into a parler, where abode both • Peter and James, and John, and Andrewe, Philippe, and Thomas, Barthelemew, and Mathewe, James the sonne of Alphrus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James. These al contynued with one accorde in prayer and supplicacion with the women, and Marye the mother of Jesu, & with hys brethren. ✝ And in those dayes Peter stode vp in the middes of the disciples, and sayd (the nũbre of names that were together, were aboute and hundred and twentie.) ye men and brethren, this scripture must nedes haue bene fulfilled, whiche the holy goost, thorowe the mouthe of Dauid spake before of Judas, * which was gyde to the that take Jesus. • For he was numbred with vs, & had obtayned felowshippe in this ministracyon. And the same hath now possessed a platte of grounde with the rewarde of iniquitie: and whẽ he was * hanged, he burst a sonder in the middes, & all his bowels gussched oute. And it is knowen vnto al the inhabiters of Jerusalẽ, in so muche that the same felde is called in their mother tounge, Acheldama, that is to say, the blond felde. For it is written in the booke of Psalmes: * his habitaciõ be voyde, and no man de dwellynge therin: • and his Bishoprycke let another take. Wherefore of these men whiche haue companied with vs (all the time that the Lorde Jesus had al his conuersation amonge vs, begynnynge at the Baptime of John, vnto that same day that he was take vp frõ vs) must one be ordeined, to be a wytnes wyth vs of his resurrection. And they appointed two, Joseph whiche is called Barsabas, (whose surname was Justus) and Mathias. And when they prayed, they said: thou lorde, whiche * knowest the heartes of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chose: that he may take the rowme of this ministracion and Apostleship, from whiche Judas by transgression fell, that he might goe to his owne place. And they gaue forthe their lottes, and the lot fell on Mathias, & he was counted with the eleuẽ Apostles. • ✝ selues: beholde, are not all these whyche speake of Galyle? and howe heare we eueis beside Syren, and straungers of Rome, Iewes and * prselytes. Grekes and Ara-bians: we haue heard them speake in oure owne tonges the greate workes of God. ✠ They were all amased, and woundred, saying one to another: what meaneth this?

Other mocked, sayinge: these men are full of newe wyne. ✠But Peter stepped forthe with the eleuen, and lyft vp hys voyce, and sayde vnto them: Ye men of Iewrye, and all ye that dwell at Ierusalem, be thys knowen vnto you, and wyth youre eares heare my wordes. For these are not droncken, as ye suppose, seinge it is but the thyrde houre of the daye. But this is that whyche was spoken by the prophet Iohel: And it shalbe in the last dayes, sayeth God: of my spirite I wil powre out vpon al flesh. * And youre sonnes & youre doughters shall prophesye, & youre yonge men shal se visyons, and youre olde men shall dreame dreames.
And on my seruauntes, and on my hande-maydens I wyll powre out of my spyrite in those dayes, and they shall prophesye.
And * I wyll shewe wonders in heauen a-bowe, and tokens in the erth beneth, bloud and fyre, and the vapoure of smoke. The sunne shalbe turned into darcknes, and the moone into bloude, before that greate and notable day of the Lorde come. And it shall come to passe, that * whosoeuer shal call on the name of the Lorde, shalbe saued. ✠Ye men of Israell, heare these wordes: Iesus of Nazareth a man approued of god amonge you wyth myracles, wondres and sygnes, whyche God dyd by hym in the myddes of you, (as ye youre selues knowe) hym haue ye taken by the handes of vnryghte-ous persones, after he was delyuered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, & haue crucified & slaine him: whō God hath raised vp, & loosed the sorowes of deathe, because it was vnpossyble, that he should be holden of it. For Dauid speaketh of him. * A fore hāde I saw god alwayes before me: for he is on my right hande, that I should not be moued. Therfore did my hert reioyce, & my tōge was glad, Moreouer also my flesche shal rest in hope, because thou wilt not leaue my soule in hel, neither wylte thou suffre thine holi to se corrupcīō. Thou hast shewed me the wayes of lyfe, thou shalt make me ful of ioye with thy countenaūce. ✠ ye men and brethren, let me freely speake vnto you of the patriarke Dauid: * For he is both deade and buried, & his sepulchre remaineth with vs vnto this day. Therfore, seynge he was a prophet, & knew that God had swoine with an oth to him, that Christ (as cōcernige the flesh) should come of the frute of his loines, & should sit on his seate: he knowinge this before, spake of the reserreccīō of Christ, that his soule should not be left in hel: neither his flesh should se corrupcīō.
This Iesus hathe God rayled vp, * wherof we al are witnesses. Sence now that he by the right hande of God is exalted, and hath receaued of the father the promyse of the holy ghoste, he hath sheed forthe this (gyfte) which ye nowe se and heare. For Dauid is not ascended into heauē: but he saieth: * The Lord said to my Lord: sit thou on my righthāde, vntil I make thy foes thy fote stole.
So therfore, let al the house of Israel know for a suerye, that god hath made that same Iesus (whō ye haue crucified) lord & Christ. whē they heard this, they were pricked in their hertes, & sayd vnto Peter, & vnto the other Apostles: ye mē & brethrē * what shal we do? Peter sayde vnto them, repente of your sinnes, & be baptised euery one of you in the name of Iesus Christe for the remys-sion of synnes, and ye shal receaue the gift of the holy goost. For the promyse was made vnto you and youre chyldren, and to all that are a farre of, euen as manye as the Lorde oure God shall call. And wyth many other wordes, bare he wytnes, and exhorted them, sayinge: Saue youre selues they that gladly receaued his preachynge, were baptysed: & the same daye, there were added vnto them, aboute thre thousande soules. And they continued in the Apostles doctryne and felowshyp, and in breakynge of breade, and in prayers. And feare came ouer euery soule. And manye wonders and sygnes were shewed by the Apostles (at Ie-rusalem. And great feare came vpō al mē.) And al that beleued, kept them selues together, and had al thinges common, and solde their possessions and goodes, and parted them to all men, as euerye man had nede.

And they contynued daily with one accorde in the temple, and brake breade from house to house, and dyd eate their meate together with gladnes and singlenes of heart, prays-

There came also a multitude out of the cyties rounde about, vnto Ieruſalem, bryngynge syeke folckes, and thē which wer vexed with vncleane spyrites. And they were healed euery one. * Thē the chiefe preſt rose vp, and all they that were with him (whiche is the secte of the Saduces) and were full of indignacyon, and laide handes on the Apoſtles, and put them in the commen pryſon. * But the Aungell of the LORDE by nyghte opened the pryſone doꝛes, and brought theym forth, and sayde: go, and stande, and speake in the temple to the people all the wordes of this life. When they hearde that, they entred into the Temple early in the mornyng, and taught. But the chiefe Prieſte came, and they that were with him, and called a counſell together, and all the Elders of the chyldren of Israell, and sente men to the pryſone, to fetche them. When the ministers came, and foūde theym not in pryſon, they retourned and tolde, saying: the pryſon truely founde we shutte wyt.) all dyligence, and the keepers standynge without before the doꝛes. But when we hadde opened, we founde no man within. When the chefe preſt, and the ruler of the Temple, and the hye Prieſtes hearde theſe thynges, they douted of them, whereunto this would growe. Then came one and shewed them: beholde, the men that ye put into pryſon, stande in the temple, & teach the people. Then went the ruler of the temple, with ministers, and brought thē without violence. For they feared the people, leſt they should haue bene stoned. And whē they had brought them, they set thē before the counſel. And the chiefe preſt asked thē, saynge: * dyd not we straytely commaunde you: that ye should not teach in this name? And behold, ye haue filled Ieruſalem with youre doctryne, and intende to * bryngе this mannes bloud vpon vs. Peter and the other Apoſtles aunswered, and sayde: * we ought more to obey God then men. The God of our fathers raised vp Jesus, whom ye slewe and hanged on tre. Hym hath God lyfte vp with his right hande, to be a ruler and a sauioure, for to geue repentaunce to Israel, and forgeuenes of sinnes. And we are recordes of these thinges which we say, and so is also the holye gooste, whome God hathe geuen to them that obey him. When they hearde that, they clane asunder, and sought meanes to slee theym. Then stoode there vp one in the counſell, a Pharisei, named * Gamaliel, a doctoure of lawe, (had in reputacion amonge all the people) and commaunded the Apoſtles to go aside a lytle space, and sayde vnto them: ye men of Israell, take hede to your selues, what ye entende to do, as touching these men.

For before these dayes rose vp one Thudas, boastyng him selfe, to whome resorted a numbre of men, aboute a foure hundred, whiche was slayne: and they al which beleued him, were scattred abroode, & brought to nought. After this man, was ther one Judas of * Galile, in the dayes of the tribute, & drewe awaye muche people after him. He also perished, and al euen (as many as harkened to hym) were scattered abroade. And nowe I say vnto you, refrayne your selues from these men, and let them alone.

For if this counſell, or this worck be of mē, it will come to nought. But and if it be of God, ye cannot destroye it, leſt happlye ye be founde to stryue agaynste GOD. And to hym agreed the other: and when they had called the Apoſtles, they bet them, * and commaunded that they should not speake in the name of Jesu, and let them goe. And they departed frō the counſel, * reioyſynge that they were coūted worthy, to suffre rebuke for his name. And daylye in the temple, & in euery house they ceased not, to teech and preach Jesus Chriſt.

muche by, because that of longe tyme he had bewytched them wyth sorceries. But allone as they gaue credence to Philipps preachynge of the kyngedome of God, and of the name of Jesus Christe, they were baptysed both the men and wemē. Then Simon hym selfe beleued also. And whan he was baptised, he continued with Philip, and wondred, beholdynge the myracles and signes, whyche were shewed. ✠ When the Apostles whyche were at Jerusalem heard saye, that Samaria had receaued the worde of God, they sente vnto them Peter & John. Which whā they were come downe, prayed for thē, that they myght receaue the holy goost. For as yet he was come on none of them: but they were baptised only in the name of Christ Jesu. * Thē layed they their handes on thē, and they receaued the holy goost. Whē Simō saw that thorow layynge on of the apostles handes, the holy goost was geuen, he offered thē money, sayīg: geue me also this power, that on whō soeuer I put the handes, he may receaue the holy goost. But Peter said vnto him: thy money perysche wyth the, because thou haste thoughte * that the gyfte of God maye be obtayned with money. Thou haste nether parte, nor felowshyp in thys busynes. For thy heert is not ryghte in the syghte of God. Repente therfore of thys thy wyckednesse, and praye God, that the thoughte of thyne heart may be forgeuen the. For I perceaue that thou art ful of bitter gal, & wrapped in iniquitie. Then answered Simon & said: * praye ye to the Lorde for me, that none of these thynges whyche ye haue spoken, fall on me. And they whē they had testified and preached the word of God, returned toward Jerusalē, & preached the Gospel in many cytyes of the Samaritans. ✠ The aungel of the Lord spake vnto Philip, sayynge: aryse, & go toward the south, vnto the waye that goeth downe frō Jerusalem vnto the cytye of Gaza, which is in the desert. And he arose, & went on. And beholde, a mā of Ethiopia (a chamberlayne) and of great auctoritie with Candace quene of the Ethopians, and had the rule of al her treasure: * cāe to Jerusalem for to worship. And as he returned home againe sittinge in his charet, he red Esay the Prophet. Then the spirit said vnto Philip: go neare and ioyne thy selfe to yonder charet. And Philip ran to him, & heard him reade the prophet Esay, & said: Vnderstandest thou what thou readest? And he said: How can I, except I had a guyde? And he desired Philip, that he would come vp, & sit with him. The tenoure of the scripture which he red, was this: * he was led as a shep to be slaine: & like a lābe dōbe before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth: Beeause of his humblenes, he was not esteemed. But who shal declare his generatiō? for his lyfe is taken from the earthe. The chamberlayne answered Philip, and said: I praye the of whome speaketh the prophet thys? of hym selfe, or of some other man? Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same scripture, and preached vnto him Jesus. And as they went on their waye, they came vnto a certayne water, and the chamberlayne sayd: Se, here is water * what dothe let me to be baptysed? Philip sayde vnto hym: If thou beleue wyth all thine heart, thou maiest. And he answered, & said: I beleue that Jesus Christe is the sonne of God. And he cōmaūded the charet to stande styll. And they wente downe both into the water: both Philip & also the chāberlaine, and he baptysed him. And assone as they were come oute of the water, the spyrite of the Lorde caughte awaye Philip, & the chāberlayne sawe hym nomore. And he wēt on his waye reioysynge: but Philip was foūde at Azotus. Whē they therfore were departed, they came to Antioche, and gathered the multitude together, and deliuered the epistle. Whiche whē they had red, they reioyced of the conso-lacion. And Judas & Silas being Prophetes, exhorted the brethren with much pre-ching, & strēgthed thē. And after they hadde tarried there a space, they were let go in peace of the brethren vnto the Apostles. Notwith-

Paul & Barnabas cōtinued in Antioch, teachynge and preachyng the woorde of the lord with other many. But after a certaine space, Paule said vnto Barnabas: Let vs go againe, & visite our brethren in euery ci-tie where we haue shewed the word of the lord, & se how they do. And Barnabas gaue counsel to take with thē John, whose surname was Marke. But Paul would not take hi vnto their cōpany, + whiche departed from Acte.13.c thē at Pamphilia, & went not with them to the worcke. And the contencion was so sharpe betwene thē, that they departed asunder, one frō the other, & so Barnabas take Marke, and sailed vnto Cipers. And Paul chose Silas, and departed, beyng cōmitted of the brethrē vnto the grace of God. And he went thorow Cyria and Cilicia, stablysshing the congregacions: (cōmaunding to kepe the precepces of the Apostles & elders)

¶ The. xvi. Chapter.

Then came he to Derba & Listra. And A beholde, a certaine disciple was there named Timotheus, a womans sonne, which was a Jewesse & beleued: but his father was a Greke. Of whō reported wel the brethren that were at Listra & Iconiū. Him wold Paul that he should go forth with hī, and take and circumcyled hym, because of the Jewes whiche were in those quarters: for they knewe all, that hys father was a Greke. As they wēt thorow the cities, they delyuered them the writings for to kepe, that were + ordeyned of the Apostles and El- Acte.xv.c ders, whyche were at Jerusalem. And so were the congregacions stablyshed in the fayth, and encreased in numbre dayly.
When they had gone thorowout Phrygia: B and the region of Galacia, and + were for- Roma.i.c bidden of the holye Ghoste to preache the word in Asia, they came to Mysia, & sought to go into Bethunia. But the spirite suffred them not: but when they had gone thorow Mysia, they came downe to + Troada. And Acte.18.c a vision appeared to paul in the night. Ther stode a man of Macedonia, and praied him, sayinge: come into Macedonia, & helpe vs.
After he had sene the vision, immediatly we prepared to go into Macedonia, beyng certified that the Lorde had called vs, for to preach the gospel vnto thē. Whō we loosed forth thē frō Troada, we came with a strait course to Samothracia, & the nexte daye to Neapolim, & frō thence to Philippos, which is the cheefe citie in the parties of Macedonia, and a free citye. We were in that cytye C abiding certaine daies. And on the sabboth dayes we went out of the cytye beside a ryuer, where men were wont to praye. And we sat downe, & spake vnto the wemen which resorted thither. And a certayne woman (named

wed Lidia) a seller of purple, of the cytye of Thiatira, which worshipped God, gaue vs audience. Whose hert the Lorde opened, that she attended vnto the thynges, whiche Paul spake. When she was baptised, & her housholde, she besought vs, sayinge: If ye thinke that I beleue on the Lord, come into my house, & abide there. And she + constrained vs. And it foretuned as we went to prayer, a certaine damsell possessed with a spirit that prophesied, met vs, which brought her master, & masters much gaine with prophesying. The same folowed Paul & vs, & cryed, sayinge: + these men are the seruauntes of the most hye God, which shew vnto vs the waye of saluacyon. And this did she many daies. But Paul not content, turned aboute, and sayd to the spirite: I commaunde the + in the name of Jesu Christe, that thou come oute of her. And he came out the same houre. And when her master & maistres saw that + the hope of their gaynes was gone, they caught Paul and Silas, & drue them into the market place vnto the rulars, and brought them to the officers, saying: These men trouble our citie, seyng they are Jewes, & preache ordynaunces, which are not lawfull for vs to receaue, nether to obserue, seynge we are Romaynes. And the people ran against them, & the officers rent their clothes, & commaunded the + be beate with roddes. And whē they had beaten thē sore, they cast thē into prison, commaūding the tayler of the prison to kepe thē diligently. Which when he had receaued such cōmaundement, thrust thē into the inner prisō, and made their fete fast in the stockes. At midnight Paul & Silas prayed, & lauded God. And the prisoners heard thē. And sodenlye there was a greate earthquake, so that the foundacion of the prison was shaken, and + immediatly al the dores opened, & euery mans bandes were loosed. When the keper of the prison waked oute of his slepe, and sawe the prison dores open, he drue out his swearde, and would haue kylled hym selfe, supposing that the prisoners had bene fled. But Paul cried with a loude voice, saying: do thy selfe no harme, for we are all here. Then he called for a lyghte, and sprang in, & came trembling vnto Paul, & fell downe at the fete of Paule and Silas, & broughte theym oute, and sayde: Syrs + what must I do to be saued? And they sayde: + beleue on the Lorde Jesus, and thou shalte be saued and thy housholde. And they preached vnto him the worde of the Lorde, and to all that were in his house. And he toke them the same houre of the nyghte, and washed theyr woundes, and was baptysed & all they of his housholde straight waye. And when he had brought theym into his house, he set meate before thē, and + ioyed that he with all his household beleued on God. And when it was daye, the officers sente the ministers, sayinge: let those men go. The keper of the prison told this saying to Paul, the officers haue sente worde to lose you. Nowe therefore, get you hence, and go in peace. Then sayde Paule vnto them: they haue beaten vs openly uncontemned, for al that we are Romains, and haue cast vs into prison: & now would they sende vs away prively? Nay verely, but let them come thē selues, and fet vs oute. When the ministers tolde these wordes vnto the officers, they feared whē they heard, that they were Romaines + they came and besought thē: and brought thē out, and desired thē to departe out of the citie. And they wente oute of the prison, & entred into the house of Lidia, and when they had sene the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

AS they made their iourney throwe Amphipolis and Appolonia, they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagoge of the Jewes. And Paule (as his maner was) went in vnto them, & thre sabboth daies, declared out of the scripture vnto thē, openyng and allegyng, that + Christ muste nedes haue suffered, and rise againe from death, and that this Jesus was Christ, whō (said he) I preache to you. And + some of thē beleued, & came and cōpanied with Paule and Silas, and of the deuoute Grekes a great multitude, and of the chefe wemen, not a fewe. But the Jewes whiche beleued not, had indignacis, and toke vnto them cupll men, whiche were vagabundes, and gathered a companye, and set al the citye on a roare, and made assaute vnto the house of Jason, and soughte to bryng them out to the people. And when they founde thē not, they drue Jason, & certain brethrē vnto the heades of the cytie, crying: these that trouble the worlde, are come hyther also, whome Jason hath receaued priuely. + And these all do contrarye to the decrees of Cesar, affyrmynge another kynge, one Jesus. And they troubled the people, and the officers of the cytye, when they heard these thynges. And when they were sufficyently answered of Jason, & of the other, they let them go. And the brethren immediatly sent away Paule & Silas by nyght vnto Beerea. Whyche when they were come thyther, they entred into the Synagoge of the Jewes. These were the noblest of byrthe amonge theym of Thessalonis, whiche receaued the word with all diligēce of mynde, and searched + the Scriptures daylye, dayly, whether thoſe thinges wer euen ſo. And manye of them beleued: alſo of worſhypful women, whiche were Grekes, & of mē not a fewe. When the Jewes of Theſſaloniā had knowledge, that the worde of God was preached of Paule at Berrea, & they came and moued the people ther. And then immediatlye, the brethren ſent awaye Paule to go as it wer to the ſea: but * Syllas & Timothe⁹ abode ther ſtill. And they that guided Paule, brought hi to Athens and receaued a commaundement vnto Sillas & Timotheus, for to come to him with ſpede: and came their waye. While Paule wayted for thē at Athens, his ſpirite was moued in hym, when he ſawe the cite geuē to worſhyppinge of ymages. Then diſputed he in the ſinagoge wyth the Jewes, & with the deuoute perſons: & in the market daylye with theym that came vnto him by chaunce: Certayne philoſophers of the Epicures, and of the Stoyckes, diſputed with him. And ſome there wer which ſayd: what will thys babler ſaye? Other ſayde: he ſemeth to be a tidynges bringer of newe deuils, becauſe he preached vnto them Jeſus & the reſurrection. And they toke hym and brought hym into Marce ſtrete, ſaynge: maye we not knowe what thys newe doctrine whereof thou ſpeakeſt is? For thou bringe ſtraunge tydynges to oure eares. We wonlde knowe therefore, what theſe thinges meane. For all the Athenians and ſtraungers whyche were there, gaue them ſelues to nothyng elſ, but ether to tell, or to heare ſome newe thynge.

Paule ſtode in the middes of Marce ſtrete, & ſayd: ye men of Athens, I perceaue that in all thinges ye are to ſuperſticious. For as I paſſed by, and beholde the maner how ye worſhyp your goddes, I founde an aulter, wherin was writte: vnto the vnknowē God. Whome ye then ignorauntelye worſhippe, him ſhewe I vnto you: * God that made the worlde, & al that are in it (ſeynge that he is lorde of heauen & earthe) * dwelleth not in temples made with handes, as though he neded of anye thynge, ſeynge he him ſelfe * geueth lyfe and breth to all men euery where, and hath made of one blonde al nacions of men, for to dwel on all the face of the earth, and hathe aſſigned before howe longe tyme, and alſo the endes of their inhabitacion, that they ſhoulde ſeke God, yf they might fele and fynde hym, though he be not farre from euerye one of vs. For in him, we liue, mone and haue our beyng, as certayne of your owne Poetes ſayd: For we are alſo hys generation. For as muche then, as we are the generation of God, we ought not to thynke that the godhead is lyke vnto golde, ſiluer or ſtone, grauen by crafte and ymagination of man. * And the tyme of thys ignorauce God regarded not. * But nowe byddeth all men euery wher repēt, becauſe he hath appoynted a daye, in the whyche he wyll iudge the world with rightcouſnes, by that man by whom he hath appoynted, and hath offred fayth to all men, after that he hadde rayſed him from deathe. When they hearde of the reſurrection from death, ſome mocked, and othre ſayde: We wyll heare the agayne of thys matter. So Paule departed frō amōg them. Howe be it, certayne men claue vnto hym, and beleued, amonge the whiche was Dionilius an ſenatour, and a womā named Damaris, and other with them.

AFter this, Paule departed from Athens, & came to Cozinthū, & founde a certē Jewe named * Aquila, borne in Ponthus lately come frō Italy with his wife Priſcilla (becauſe that the emperoure Claudi⁹ had cōmaūded all the Jewes to departe frō Rome) & he drewe vnto thē, becauſe he was of the ſame crafte, he abode with thē, & wrought: their crafte was to make tentes. And he preached in the ſinagoge euery ſabboth day (ſetting forth in the meane while the name of the LORDE Jeſus) and exhorted the Jewes & the gentils. When * Silas & Timothe⁹ wer come frō Macedonia, Paule was conſtrayned by the ſpirite, to teſtifie to the Jewes that Jeſus was very Chriſt. And whē they ſayd cōtrarye & blaſphemed, * he ſhoke hys raymēt, & ſayd vnto them: your bloud be vpon your owne heades: from hence forth wyll I go blamelelle vnto the gētils. And he departed thēce, and entred into a certayne mannes houſe, named Juſte⁹, a worſhypper of God, whoſe houſe ioyned harde to the ſinagoge. Howebe it, one Chriſpus the chiefe ruler of the ſinagoge, * beleued on the Lorde, with all hys houſhold, & manye of the Cozinthians when they gaue audiaunce, beleued, & wer baptiſed. Then ſpake the Lorde to Paule in the nyght, * by a viſion: be not afrayed, but ſpake, and holde not thy peace: For I am with the, and no man ſhall inuade the: for that ſhal hurte the. For I haue much people in this citye. And he continued there a yeare and ſixe monethes, and taught them the worde of God. When Gallio was ruler of the cōtre of Achaia, the Jewes made inſurrectiō with one accorde agaīſt Paul, and broughte him to the iudgement ſeate, ſayeng: this felow counſelleth men to worſhyp God contrary to the lawe. And when Paule was nowe about to opē his mouth,

Gallio

Gallio sayde vnto the Jewes: If it were a matter of wronge, or an euyll dede (O ye Jewes) reason wouldе that I should beare you: But yf it be a question of wordes, or of names, or of youre lawe, looke ye to it youre selues. For I wyll be no iudge of suche matters, and he dyaue them from the seate. Then all the Grekes toke Sosthenes the chiefe ruler of the Synagoge, & smote hym before the iudges seate. And Gallio cared for none of those thynges. Paule after this, taried there yet a good whyle, and then toke his leaue of the brethren, and sayled thence into Syria, Priscilla & Aquila accompanyinge hym. And he + shaue his heade in Cenchrea, for he had a vowe. And he came to Ephesus, and lefte them there, but he hym selfe entred into the Synagoge, and reasoned with the Jewes. When they desyred him to tary longer time with them, he consented not, but bad them farewel, sayinge: I muste nedes (at this feaste that commeth) be in Jerusalem: But I wyll returne agayne vnto you * yf God wyll. And he departed from Ephesus: and when he was come vnto Cesarea, and ascended vp, and saluted the congregacion he departed vnto Antioche: and whē he had taryed there a while, he departed: and went ouer all the countreye of Galacia and Phrygia, by order, strengthyng al the disciples. And a certayne Jewe named + Apollos, borne at Alexandria, came to Ephesus, an eloquēt man, & mighty in the scriptures. The same was instourmed in the waye of the Lorde, & spake feruently in the spirite, and taughte diligently the thynges of the Lorde, and knewe but the baptyme of John onelye.

And the same beganne to speake boldly in the Synagoge. Whome when Priscilla & Aquila had heard, they toke him vnto thē, and expounded vnto hym the way of god more perfectly. And when he was disposed to go into Achaia the brethren wrote, exhortinge the disciples to receaue him. Whiche when he was come, helped thē muche which had beleued throw grace. For he ouercame the Jewes mightely, & that openly, shewynge by the scriptures, that Jesus was Christ.

IT fortuned, that whyle Apollo was at Corinthū, Paul passed throw the vpper coastes, & came to Ephesus, & founde certen disciples, and sayd vnto them: haue ye receaued the holy goste, sence ye beleued? & they sayd vnto him: no, we haue not heard whether ther be any holy ghost or no. And he sayde vnto them, wherevnto wer ye then baptised? & they sayd, vnto Johns baptim. Then sayd Paule: * John verely baptysed with the baptime of repentaunce, sayinge vnto the people that they shoulde beleue on hym, which should come after him: that is, on Christ Jesus. Whē they heard this, they were baptised in the name of the lorde Jesu. And whē Paule * layed hys handes vpon them, + the holy ghost came on them, and they + spake with tonges, and prophesied, and al the men were aboute twelue. And he went into the Synagoge, and behaued him selfe boldely for the space of thre monethes, disputing and genyng thē exhortacion of the kyngdome of GOD. + When diuers waxed harde hearted, & beleued not, but spake euyll of the waye of the Lorde (and that before the multitude) he departed frō them, and separated the disciples, and he disputed daylye in the scole of one called Tyrannus. And this cōtinued by the space of two yeres: so that all they whiche dwelte in Asia, hearde the worde of the Lorde Jesu, boothe Jewes and Grekes. And God * wrought especial miracles by the handes of Paule: so that frō his body, were brought vnto the sicke, napkins & partelettes, & the diseases departed frō them, and + the euyll spirites went oute of them. Then certayne of the bagabunde Jewes exorcistes, tooke vpon thē to cal ouer them (which had euyll spirites) the name of the Lorde Jesus, sayinge: We adiure you by + Jesu, whom Paule preacheth. And there were seuen sonnes of one Sceua a Jewe, and chiefe of the priestes, whiche dyd so. And the euyll spirite answered, & sayd: Jesus I knowe, & Paule I knowe: But who are ye? And the man in whome the euyll spirite was, ranne on them, and ouercame them, and preuayled agaynst them, so that they fled out of that house naked, & wounded. And this was knowē to al the Jewes, and Grekes also, which dwelt at Ephesus, and feare came on them all, and the name of the lorde Jesus was magnified. And many that beleued, came and + confessed, and shewed their workes. Many of thē whiche vsed curius craftes: brought their bokes, and burned them before all men, and they counted the price of them, and founde it fyftye thousande syluerlynges. So mightely grewe the word of God, and preuayled. After these thinges were ended, Paule purposed in the spirite (when he hadde passed ouer Macedonia and Achaia) to goe to Jerusalem, sayinge: After I haue bene there, I must also see Rome. So sent he into Macedonia, two of them that ministred vnto him, euen Timotheus and Erastus: but he him selfe remayned in Asia for a season.

AND whē it chaūced that we had lāched foꝛth, & were departed frō them, we came with a ſtraight courſe vnto Choon, and the day folowynge vnto the Rhoꝛes, & from thence vnto Patara. And whē we had gotten a ſhip that would paſſe vnto Phenices, we wente abooꝛde into it, and ſet foꝛth. But whē Cipꝛus begāne to appeare vnto vs, we left it on the left hand, and ſayled vnto Sirria, & came vnto Tire. Foꝛ there the ſhippe vnladed the burthen. And when we had founde brethren, we taryed there ſeuē daies. And they told Paule thoꝛow the ſpirite ✶ that he ſhoulde no goe vp to Jeruſalē. And whē the daies were ended we departed, & went our way, and they bꝛought vs on oure waye, with wiues and childꝛen, tyl we were come out of the cytie. And we kneled downe in the ſhoꝛe, ✶ and prayed. And when we had taken our leaue one of another, we toke ſhyppe, and they returned home agayne. When we had full ended the courſe frō Tyre, we went downe to Ptolomaida, and ſaluted the brethren, & abode with them one daye. The nexte daye, we that were of Pauls company departed, and came vnto Ceſarea. And we entred into the houſe of ✶ Philippe the Euangeliſt, which was one of the ſeuen, & abode with hym. The ſame man had foure doughters virgins, which dyd ✶ pꝛophecie. And as we taried there a good manye of dayes, there came a certaine pꝛophete from Jewry, named Agabus. When he was come vnto vs, he toke Pauls girdel, and bounde his fete and handes, & ſayde: Thus ſayeth the holy Ghoſte, ✶ ſo ſhall the Jewes at Jeruſalem, bynde the man that owerth this girdel, and ſhall delyuer hym vnto the handes of the Gentyls. When we heaꝛde this, bothe we & other whyche were of the ſame place, beſought him that he would not go vp to Jeruſalem. Then Paul anſwered, and ſayde: what do ye weping and bexing mine herte? I am readye, not to be bounde onelye, but alſo to dye at Jeruſalem, foꝛ the name of the Lorde Jeſu. Whē we couldē not tourne hys mynde, we ceaſed, ſaying: ✶ the will of the Lorde be fulfylled. After thoſe dayes we toke vp our burthens, and wente vp to Jeruſalem. ✶ There wente wyth vs alſo certaine of the diſciples of Ceſarea, & bꝛought with them one Mnaſon of Cyprus, an olde diſciple, with whom we ſhould lodge. And when we were come to Jeruſalem, the brethren receaued vs gladely. And on the moꝛowe, Paul went in with vs vnto James. And al the elders came together. And whē he had ſaluted them, he tolde by oꝛder all thynges, that God had wꝛoughte amonge the Gentils by his miniſtracion. And when they heaꝛde it, they glooꝛyfyed the Lorde, & ſayde vnto him: Thou ſeeſt brother, howe manye thouſande Jewes there are whyche beleue, & they are all earneſt folowers ouer the lawe. G coũcel house, with the captaynes & chiefe men of the citie, at Festus commaundemẽt was Paul brought forth. And Festꝰ sayd: kyng Agrippa, and all ye men which are here pꝛesent with vs, ye se this man about whom al the multitude of the Jewes haue entreated me, both at Jerusalem and also here: crying, that he ought not to liue any lenger. Yet founde I nothynge worthye of death, that he had cõmitted. Neuertheles, seynge that he hathe appealed to Cesar, I haue determined to sende hym. Of whome

I haue no certen thynge to write vnto my lord. Wherfore I haue brought him vnto you, & specially vnto the, O kyng Agrippa, that after examinacion had, I might haue sōwhat to write. For me thinketh it vnreasonable, for to sēd a prisoner, & not to shew the causes which are layed agaynst him.

A Agrippa sayd vnto Paule: thou arte permitted to speake for thy selfe. Thō Paule stretched forth the hād, & answered for him selfe, I thinke my selfe happy kyng Agrippa, because I shall answere this day before the, of all the thinges wherof I am accused of the Iewes: namely, because thou art expert in al customes & questions, which are amōg the Iewes. Wherfore I beseche the, to heare me patiently. My liuing that I haue led of a child (which was at the fyrste amōge mine owne naciō at Ierusalē) know al the Iewes, which knew me frō the B Philli. 3 a beginning, if they would testifie. For * after the most straytest secte of our religiō, I lyued a pharisei. And now I stande, & * am Act. 23. b. 24. 28. c iudged for the hope of the promes made of god vnto our fathers, vnto whyche promes our .xii. tribes (instantly seruyng god day and night) hope to come. For which hopes sake, kynge Agrippa, I am accused of the Iewes. Why should it be thought a thing incredible vnto you, that God should rayse agayne the dead? I also verely thought in my selfe, that I ought to do many cōtrary C thynges, cleane agaynst the name of Iesus Actes. 8. a 9. 8. 22. a 1. cor 15 b Gala. 2 c of Nazareth: * which thynge I also did in Ierusalē. And many of the sayntes did I shut vp in prison, & had receaued auctorite of the hie priestes. And whē they were put to death, I gaue the sōtēce. And I punished thē oft in euerye synagoge, & cōpelled them to blaspheme: & was yet more mad vpō thē, & persecuted thō, euē vnto straunge cities. About which thynges as I went to Damasco with auctorite, & licēce of the hye priestes: euen at mydday (O kyng) I sawe in

When we were al fallen to the earthe, I hearde a Acte, ix. a and. 22. c voyce speakynge vnto me, & sayinge in the Hebrue tōge: * Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is harde for thee to kycke agaynst the pricke. And I sayde: who art thou Lorde? And he sayd: I am Iesus whō thou persecutest, but ryse and stande vpon thy fete. For I haue appeared vnto the for thys purpose, to make the a minister, and a witnes, both of those thinges which thou haste sene, & of those thinges in the whyche I wyll appeare vnto the, delyuerynge thee from the people, & from the Gentils: vnto whome now I sende the, to open their eyes. that they may be turned from darknes to light, & frō the power of Satan vnto god, that they maye receaue forgeuenes of synnes, & inheritaunce amōge them which are E sanctified by faith that is toward me. Wherfore (O kinge Agrippa) I was not disobedient vnto the heauenly vision: but shewed firste vnto them of Damasco, and at Ierusalem, and throwe out all the coastes of Iewrye: and then to the Gentils, that they shulde repent, & tourne to god, and do such workes as become thē that repēt. For this cause the Iewes caughte me in the temple, and went about to kyll me. Seynge therfore that I haue obtayned helpe of God: I cōtinue vnto this daye, witnessynge bothe to smale and greate, sayinge none other thinges, then those which the prophetes & Moses dyd saye shoulde come: that Christe F shoulde suffre, & that he shoulde be the first that shoulde rise frō death, & shulde shewe lyght vnto the people, and to the gentyls. As he thus spake for him selfe, Festus sayd with a loude voyce: Paule, thou arte beside thy selfe. Much learnynge doeth make the mad. And Paule sayd: I am not mad (most deare Festus) but speake forthe the wordes of crueth & sobernes. For the kynge knoweth of these thinges, before whome also I speake freely: neither thincke I that anye of these thinges are hidden frō him. For this thyng was not done in a corner. King Agrippa, beleuest thou the prophetes? I wot wel G that thou beleuest. Agrippa sayde vnto Paule: lyttle what thou bringest me in mynde for to become Christen. And Paule sayde: I woulde to god that not only thou: but also al that heare me to day, were not somwhat onely, but al together, such as I am, except these bondes. And when he had thus spoken, the kynge rose vp, and the debite, and Bernice, and they that sat with them. And when they were gone aparte, they talked betwene theym selues, sayinge. This man doeth nothinge worthy of death, or of bondes. Then sayd Agrippa vnto Festus: this man might haue ben let lose, yf he had not appealed vnto Cesar.

When it was cōcluded, that we shuld sayle into Italie, they deliuered both A Paule, & certayne other prisoners, vnto one named Iuli⁹, an vnder captayn of Cesars souldiers. And we entred into a ship of Adramicij, & losed frō lande, a ppoynted to sayle by the coastes of Asia, one * Aristarcus out of Macedonia, of the countre Coll. 4. b of Thessalonia tarying styll with vs. And the next daye we came to Sidon. And Iu-

Iere.39.c lius * courteously entreated Paule, and Acte.24.e gaue him libertye, to goe vnto hys frendes and to refreshe hym selfe. And when we had launched from thence, we sayled harde by Cipres, because the wyndes were contrarye. And when we hadde sayled ouer the sea of Cilicia and Phamphilia, we came to B Myra, whiche is in Licia. And there the vndercaptayne founde a shyppe of Alexandria readye, that sayled into Italy, and he put vs therin. And when we had sayled slowly manye dayes, and scarce were come ouer agaynste Guidon (because the wynde withstode vs) we sayled harde by the coast of Candy, ouer agaynste Salmo, and with muche woorke sayled beyonde it, and came vnto a place, which is called the fayre hauen. Nye whereunto was the citye of Lasea. When muche tyme was spente, and when saylynge was nowe ieoperdous, because also that they had ouerlonge fasted, Paule put them in remembraunce, & sayde vnto theym: Syrs, I perceaue that thys viage wilbe with hurte and much domage, not of the ladynge and shyppe onelye, but C also of youre lyues: Neuertheleste, the vndercaptayne beleued the gouernour and the maister of the shyppe, mooze then those thynges, whiche were spoken of Paule.
And because the hauen was not commodious to wynter in, manye tooke counsel to departe thence, yf by any meanes they myght attayne to Phenyces, and there to wynter, which is an hauen of Candy, and lieth toward the southwest and northwest wynde. When the southewynde blewe, they supposynge to obtaine theyr purpose, loosed vnto Asson, and sailed past al Candy.
D But not longe after, there arose agaynste theyr purpose, a flawe of wynde oute of the northeast. And when the shyp was caught and coulde not resiste the wynde, we let her go, and draue wyth the wether. But we were caryed into an yle whyche is named Clauda, and had muche woorke to come by a bote, whyche they toke vp, & vsed helpe, and made faste the shyppe, fearynge leste they shoulde fall into the Syrtes. And so they let downe a vessell, and were caryed.
The nexte daye (when we were tossed wyth an exceadynge tempest) they lyghtened the shyp, and the thyrde daye we caste out wyth oure owne handes the tackelynge of the shyppe. When at the laste, neither the sunne nor starres in manye dayes appeared, and no small tempest laye vpon vs, all hope that we shoulde escape, was then taken awaye. But after longe abstynence, Paule stode forthe in the myddes of them, and sayde: Syrs, ye shoulde haue harke-ned to me, and not to haue loosed from Candy, nether to haue brought vnto vs this harme and losse. And nowe I exhorte you to be of good chere. For there shalbe no losse of anye mannes lyfe amonge you, saue of the shyp onelye. For there stode by me this nyght, the aungell of God, whose I am, and whome I serue, sayinge: feare not Paule * thou muste be brought before Acte.23.c Cesar. And lo, God hathe geuen the all them that sayle wyth the. Wherefore syrs be of good chere: for I beleue God, that E it shalbe euen as it was tolde me. Howbeit Acte.28.a we muste be caste into * a certayne ylonde.
But when the fourtenth nyghte was come (as we were saylynge in Adria about midnyght) the shypmen demed, that there appeared some countre vnto them: and sounded, and founde it twentye faddoms. And when they had gone a lytle further, they sounded agayne, and founde. xv. faddoms.
Then fearynge leste they shoulde haue fallen on some rocke, they caste foure ancres out of the sterne, and wyshed for the daye. As the shypmen were aboute to flee oute of the shyp (whan they had let downe F the bote into the sea, vnder a colloure, as thoughe they would haue caste ankers out of the forshyppe) Paule sayde vnto the vndercaptayne and to the soudyers: excepte these abyde in the shyp, ye cannot be safe. Then the soudiers cut of the rope of the bote, and let it fall awaye. And whan the daye began to appeare, Paul besought them all to take meate, sayinge: this is the fourtenth daye, that ye haue tarryed and contynued fastynge, receauynge nothynge at all. Wherefore, I praye you to take meate: for this no doute is for your helth: for * there shall not an heere fall from Mat.xi.b the heade of any of you. And when he had Luc.12.a thus spoken, he tooke breade and * gaue * Mat.6.e thankes to God in presence of them al: and and.8.a whan he had broken it, he beganne to eate. i.Ti.4.a Then were they all of good chere, & they also tooke meate. We were all together in the shyppe, two hundred thre score and sixtene soules. And when they had eaten ynoughe, they lyghtened the shyp, and cast oute the wheate into the sea. When it was G daye, they knewe not the lande, but they spyed a certaine hauen wyth a banke, into the whyche they were mynded (yf it were possyble) to thruste in the shyp. And when they had taken vp the ankers, they committed them selues vnto the sea, and lowsed the rudder bondes and hoised vp the maine saple to the wynde, and drue to lande. And whan they chaunced on a place, which had the sea on bothe the sydes, they thruste in the shyp. And the fore parte stucke faste and moued not, but the hynder parte brake wythe

wyth the vyolence of the wawes. The Soudyers councell was to kyll the pryesoners, lest any of them, whō he had swōme oute, shoulde runne awaye. But the vnder captayne wyllynge to saue Paul, kept thē from their purpose, and commaunded that they whyche coulde swymme, shoulde caste them selues fyrste into the sea, and scape to lande. And the other he commaunded to go, some on bordes, and some on broken peces of the shyppe. And soo it came to passe, that they escaped al safe to lande.

¶ The. xxviii. Chapter.

A Acte.27.c AND when they wer scaped, thē they knew, that * the yle was called Melete. And the straungers shewed vs no lytle kyndnes: for they kyndled a fyre, & receaued vs euery one, because of the present rayne, and because of the colde. And when Paul had gathered a bōdel of stycks, and laide them on the fyre, there came a vyper out of the heate, and caught hym by the hande. When the straungers saw the beaste hange on his hāde, they sayd amonge them selues: no doute this man is a murtherer: whome (thoughe he haue escaped the sea) B yet vengeaunce suffereth not to lyue. And Mar.16.b he shouke of the vyper into the fyre, & felt Luk.x.c no harme. Howbeit they wayted when he shoulde haue swolne, or fallen downe deade sodenlye. But after they had looked a greate whyle, and sawe no harme come to hym, they chaunged theyr myndes, & sayde Acte.13.b * that he was a God. In the same quarters C were lādes of the chefe mā of the yle (whose name was Publius) which receaued vs, and lodged vs thre daies courteously. And it fortuned that the father of Publius laye sycke of a feuer, and of a bloudy flyxe. To whom Paule entred in and praide, & laid his handes on hym, and healed hym. So, whē this was done, other also which had diseases in the yle, came & were healed: which also did vs greate honour. And when we departed, they laded vs with such thinges as were necessarie. After thre monethes we departed in a ship of Alexandry, which had wintred in the yle, whose badge was Castor and Pollux. And whē we came to Syracusa, we taryed there thre daies. And from thence we fet a compasse, and came to Regium. And after one day, the south wynde blewe, and we came the nexte daye to Puteolus: where we founde brethren, and were desyred to tary wyth them seuen dayes, and so D came we to Rome. And from thence, when the brethren hearde of vs, they came to mete vs at Appij forum, & at the thre tauernes. When Paule sawe them, he thanked God, and waxed bolde. And when we came to Rome, the vndercaptayne delyuered the pryseners to the chefe captayne of the host: but Paul was suffred to dwell by hym selfe with a soudier that kept him. And after thre dayes, Paul called the chefe of the Iewes together. And when they were come, he sayde vnto them: Men and brethrē, though * I haue commytted nothynge agaynste Acte.23.e the people or lawes of the Elders * yet f.xxv.b. was I delyuered prysener from Ierusalem * Act.23.c into the handes of the Romaynes. Whiche when they had examined me, wold haue let me go, because there was no cause of deathe in me. But whē the Iewes spake cōtrary, I was constrayned to appeale vnto Cesar: not that I had oughte to accuse my people of. For this cause thē haue I called for you, Acte.23.d euen to se you, & to speake with you: * be- 24.e.and cause that for the hope of Israell I am 26.b bounde wyth this cheyne. And they sayde vnto him: we nether receaued letters out of Iewry pertayninge vnto the, nether any of the brethren that came thewed or spake any harme of the. But we wyll heare of the what thou thinkest. For as concerning thys Luc.2.c secte, we knowe that * euerye where it is spoke against. And when they had appoynted hym a day, there came many to him into his lodgynge. To whom he expounded and E testifyed the kyngdome of God, & preached vnto them of Jesus: bothe oute of the lawe of Moses and oute of the Prophetes, euen Acte.17.a frō morning to nighte. And * some beleued the thinges which were spoken, and some beleued not. And when they agreed not amōge them selues, they departed, after that Paule had spoken one worde: wel spake the holy gost by Esay the prophet vnto our fathers, sayinge: * Go vnto this people, and Esay.6.c saye: with youre eares shall ye heare, and mat.13.b shall not vnderstande: and wyth your eyes Mar.4.a shal ye se, and not perceaue. For the hearte Luk.8.b of this people is waxed grosse, & with their Joh.xii.f eares haue they had no luste to heare, and F they? eyes haue they closed: lest they should se with their eies, & heare with their eares, and vnderstāde with their heartes, & should be conuerted, and I should heale them. Be it knowē therfore vnto you, that this saluacīō of God is sent to the Gētils, & they shal heare it. And whē he had said these wordes, the Iewes departed from him, & had great disputicōs amōg ths selues. And Paul dwelt two yeares full in hys lodgynge, and receaG ued all that came in vnto him, preachige the kyngedō of God, and teachinge those thinges why the concerne the Lord Jesus, with all confydence, no man forbyddynge hym.

shal we say? Is God vnrighteous, whiche taketh vengeaunce? I speake after the maner of men: God forbid. For howe then shal God iudge the world? For if the trueth of god appeare more excellent throwe my lye, vnto his prayse, why am I hēce forth iudged as a sinner? & not rather (as men speake euyll of vs, and as some affirme that we saye) let vs do euyll, that good maye come thereof. Whose damnacion is iuste. What then? Are we better then they? Noe, in no of God before their eyes. ✠ We knowe that what thynges soeuer the lawe sayeth, it sayeth it to the which are vnder the law.

That all mouthes maye be stopped, and that all the world may be subdued to God, because that * by the dedes of the lawe, Gala.2.a there shall no flesh be iustified in his sight.
For by the lawe commeth the knowledge of

of lynne. But nowe is the righteousnesse of God declared without the law, for as muche as it is alowed by the testimony of the law and of the Prophetes. The righteousnesse of God, cōmeth by the faith of Jesus Christ, vnto all, and vpon all them that beleue on him.] There is no difference: for all haue synned, & are destitute of the glorye of God:

Where is then thy reioysyng? It is excluded. By what lawe? of workes? Naye: but by the lawe of faith. Therfore we holde, Gala. 2. c that * a man is iustified by faith without the dedes of the lawe. Is he the God of the Jewes onely? Is he not also the God of the Gentils? Yes, euen of the Gentils also. For it is God onely which iustifieth the circumcision that is of faith, and vncircumcision throwe faith. Do we then destroye the lawe throwe faith? God forbyd: But we rather maintayne the lawe.

A Esay. li. a What shal we say then, that * Abrahā our father (as pertaynig to the flesh) did find? If Abraham were iustified by the dedes, then hathe he wherein to reioyce: but not with God. For what saith the Jaco. ii. d that worketh, is the rewarde not reckened of fauoure, but of dutye. To him that worketh not, but beleueth on hi that iustifieth the vngodly, is his faith counted for righteousnes [accordynge to the purpose of the grace of God.] Euen as Dauid describeth the blessednesse of that man, vnto whom God imputeth righteousnes without wes:

Psal. 32. a * Blessed are they, whose vnrighteousnesse are forgeuen, & whose synnes are couered. Blessed is that man, to whom the Lord will not impute sinne. Came this blessednes thē vpon the vncircumcision, or vpon the circumcision also? For we say, that faith was reckened to Abraham for rightwisnes.

How was it then reckened? whan he was in the circumcision: or whan he was in the

Gen. xv. b vncircumcision? * Not in the time of circumcision: but when he was yet vncircum-

Gen. 17. b cised. And he receaued the * signe of circumcision, as a seale of the rychtewysnesse of faith, whyche he had yet beynge vncircumcised, that he shoulde be the father of all them that beleue, thoughe they be not circumcised, that rightcousnesse myght be imputed to them also: and that he myght be the father of circumcision; not vnto them onelye whiche came of the circumcised, but vnto them also that walcke in the steppes of the faith, that was in our father Abraham, before the tyme of circumcision. For the promyse (that he shoulde be the heyre of the worlde) happened not to Abraham, C or to his sede throwe the lawe: but throwe the rychteousnesse of faith. * For yf they gala. iii. c whiche are of the lawe, be heyres, then is faith but vaine, and the promise of none effecte. Because the lawe causeth wrath. For + where no lawe is, there is no transgression. Therfore by faith is the enheritaunce geuen, that it myght come of fauoure: that the promyse myght be sure to all the sede. Not to them onely whiche are of the lawe: but to them also which are of the faythe of Abraham, * whiche is the father of vs all. Esay. li. a (As it is written: * I haue made the a father of manye nacyons) euen before God, + gen. 17. a whome he beleued, which restoreth the dead vnto life: and calleth those thynges whiche be not, as though they were. Whiche Abraham, cōtrary to hope, beleued in hope, that he should be the * father of many nacyons, gen. 17. a according to that whyche was spoken: * euen so shall thy sede be, [as the starres gen. xv. b of heauen, and the sande of the sea.] And he kaynted not in the faith, nor yet cōsidered his owne body whiche was now dead, euen when he was almost an hundred yere olde: nether yet that Sara was past childe bearynge. He stackered not at the promyse of God throwe vnbeleefe: but became stronge in faith, and gaue God the prayse, beynge full certified, that he which had promysed, D the same was able also to make it good. And therefore was it reckened to him for Rom. 15. a rychteousnesse. * Neuertheless, it is not written for him onely, that it was reckened to him [for righteousnes,] but also for vs, to whome it shalbe counted: for rychteousnes,] so that we beleue on him, that raysed vp Jesus our Lord frō the dead: which was deliuered for our sinnes, and was rayseda gayne for our iustificacion.

Because therfore that we are iustified A by faith, we are at * peace with God, Joh. 16. g throwe our Lorde Jesus Christ: by whō also it chaūsed vnto vs, to be brought in throwe faith, vnto this grace, wherein we stande, & + reioyce in hope of the glory of Heb. 3. a. the childre of God. Not that only: but also we reioyce in tribulacions: knowing * that Jaco. i. a tribulaciō bringeth pacience, pacience bringeth experience, experience bringeth hope. And hope maketh

B out hys loue towarde vs, seynge that while we were yet sinners (accordyng to the time) Christ died for vs. Much more then nowe (we that are iustified by hys bloud) shalbe saued frome wrathe thorowe hym. For yf when we were enemyes, we were reconciled to God by the death of hys sonne: Much more seynge we are reconciled, we shall be preserued by hys lyfe. Not onely thys, but we also ioye in GOD, by the meanes of oure Lorde Jesus Christe, by whome we haue nowe optayned the attonemente.

Wherefore, as by one man, sinne entred into Gene.2.c the worlde, and * deathe by the meanes of Rom.5.d sinne. Euen so death also went oner al me, C in so muche as all we haue synned. For euē vnto the lawe was synne in the world: but sinners not imputed, when ther is no law: neuertheles death raigned from Adam to Moses, euen ouer them also that had not sinned with like transgression as did Adā: whyche beareth the similitude of him that was to come. But the gifte is not lyke as the sinne. For if thorowe the sinne of one, many be dead: much more plenteous vpon John.1.b many was the grace of God, and gifte by D grace: * (Whyche was of one man Jesus Christ.) And the gifte is not ouer one sinne: as death came thorowe one sinne of one that synned. For dampnation came of one synne vnto condēpnatiō: but the gift came to iustifie from many sinnes. For yf by the sinne of one, death raygned by the meanes of one: muche more they (whyche receaue aboundaunce of grace and of the gyfte of ryghteousnes) shall raygne in lyfe by the meanes of one (that is to saye, Jesu Chryst).
✠Likewise then as by the syn of one there sprange vp euel on al men to condēpnatiō: euē so by the righteousnes of one, springeth good vpō al men to the ryghteousnes of life: For as by one mannes disobedience many Gala.3.c becam sinners: so by the obedience of one, shal many be made ryghteous. But * the lawe in the meane tyme entred in, that synne shulde encrease. Neuertheles, wher aboūndaunce of synne was, there was more plen-teousnes of grace. That as synne had raygned vnto death, euen so might grace raygne thorowe ryghteousnes, vnto eternall lyfe, by the helpe of Jesus Christ. ✠ takers of the resurrecciō: knowig this: that our old mā is crucified with him also, that the bodye of synne myght vtterlye be destroyed, that hence forth we shoulde not be seruātes vnto synne. For he that is dead, Apoc.1.d Death hath no more power ouer him. For as touchynge that he dyed, he dyed concernynge synne once. And as touchynge that he liueth, he liueth vnto God. Likewise cōsidre ye also, that ye are deade as touchyng synne, but are alyue vnto God thorowe Jesus Christ our Lord. ✠ Let not sinne raygne therefore in youre mortal bodye, that ye should there vnto obeye by the lustes of it. Neither geue ye your mēbres as instrumentes of vnryghteousnes vnto synne: but geue ouer youre selues vnto God, as they that of deade are alyue. And geue ouer C youre membres as instrumentes of righteteousnes vnto God: For syn shall not haue power ouer you. Because ye are not vnder uauntes vnto righteousnes, that ye may be sanctified. For whē ye were the seruāutes of synne, ye were boyde of ryghteousnes.

What fruite had ye then in those thynges, wherof ye are nowe ashamed? For the ende of those thynges is deathe. But nowe are a KNow ye not brethre (I speake to thē that knowe the lawe) howe that the lawe hath power ouer a mā as longe 1.cor.7.g as it endureth? For * the woman whiche is in subiection to a man, is bounde by the law to the man as longe as he lyueth. But yf the mā be dead: she is loosed from the law of the lyueth.vi.e man. So then * yf while the mā lyueth she couple her selfe with another mā, she shal-be counted a wedlocke breaker. But yf the man be deade, she is free frō the lawe of the husbande, so that she is no wedlocke breaker, thoughe she couple her selfe with another man. Euen so ye also (my brethre) are deade cōcernynge the law by the body of Christ, that ye shoulde be coupled to another (I meane to him that is risen again frō death) that we shoulde bringe forthe frute vnto God. For whan we were in the fleshe, the lustes of synne which were stered vp by the lawe, raygned in oure membres to bringe forthe frute vnto deathe. But nowe are we b delyuered from the lawe, and deade vnto it, where vnto we were in bondage, that we shoulo serue in a newe conuersacion of the spirite, and not in the olde conuersacion of the letter. What shall we saye then? is the Rom.b.e Gala.iii.b law synne? God forbide (neuertheles * I knew not synne, but by the lawe. For I had not knowen what luste had meante, Exo.xx.c Deu.v.b except the lawe had sayde: * thou shalte not lust. But synne toke an occasyon by the meanes of the commaundemēt, & wrought in me al maner of concupyscence. For vere-ly without the law, sinne was dead. I once lyued wythoute lawe: But when the com-maundemente came, synne reuiued, & I was deade. And the very same commaundemēt, whyche was ordeyned vnto life, was foūde c to be vnto me an occasyon of deathe. For 1.tim.i.b Gala.3.c. synne toke occasion by the meanes of the cō maundement, and so disceaued me, & by the same slewe me. Wherefore * the law is holy, & the commaundement holy and iust, & good. d Was that thē which was good, made death vnto me? God forbyd. Saye it was synne: that sinne might apeare (by it whiche was good) to worke death in me: that synne by the commaundemēt might be out of measure synneful. For we know, that the law is spiritual: but I am carnal * solde vnder sinne, Esay.52a e because I alowe not that whiche I do. For what I would, that do I not: but what I hate, that do I. If I do nowe that which I woulde not, I cōsent vnto the law that it is good: So thē now, it is not I that do it, but sinne that dwelleth in me. For I know, that W in me (that is to saye in my * flesh) dwelleth Gen.vi,5 no good thynge. For to wil is present wyth me: but I fide no meanes to performe that whiche is good. For the good that I would, do I not: but the euyl which I woulde not, that do I. If I do that I would not, then is it not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth in me. I fynde then by the lawe, that when I would do good, euel is present with me.

For I delyte in the lawe of God, after the + inwarde man: But I se another law in my members, rebelling agaynst the lawe of my mynde, and subduynge me vnto the law of synne, whyche is in my members. O wretched mā that I am: who shal deliuer me frō this body subdued vnto death? I thancke God thorowe Jesus Christ oure Lorde. So then, with the mynde I serue the lawe of God, but with the flesh the law of synne.

¶ The.viii. Chapter. ✠

THere is then no damnacion to them which are in Christ Jesu, which walke A not after the fleshe, but after the spirit.
For the law of the spirite of lyfe thorow Jesus Christe, hathe made me * free from the John.8.d Rom.vi.d lawe of synne and deathe. * For what * Heb.7.c *luc.xx.b the lawe coulde not do (in as muche as it was weake because of the flesh) that performed God, and * sente hys sonne in the John.3.b similitude of synfull flesche, & by synne damned synne in the flesh, that the ryghteousnes of the lawe, might be fulfylled in vs, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spirite. For they that are carnal, are carnally mynded. But they that are spyrytuall are goostly mynded. To be carnally re B mynded, is death. But to be spyrytually mynded, is lyfe and peace. ✠ Because that the fleshly mynde is enmytie against God: for it is not obedyente to the lawe of God, neither can be. So then they that are in the flesh, cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the spyrite: yf so be that the spyrite of God dwel in you. If anye man haue not the spirite of Christe, the same is none of hys. If Christ be in you, the bodye is deade because of synne: but the spyrite is lyfe for yghteousnes sake. Wherefore, yf d the spirette of hym that raysed vp Jesus from death, dwell in you: euen he that rayse sed vp Christe from deathe, shall quycken your mortal bodyes, because of his spirit that dwelleth in you. ✠ Therefore brethren, C we are detters, not to the flesche, to lyue after the flesh. For yf ye lyue after the flesche, ye shall dye. But yf ye (thorowe the spyrite) do mortifye the dedes of the body, ye ye shall lyue. For as many as are led by the spirite of God, they are the sonnes of God. For ye haue not receaued the spirite Gala. 4.a of bondage to feare any more, but ✶ ye haue ture shalbe delyuered from the bondage of corruptiō, into the glorious lybertie of the sonnes of God. For we knowe, that euerye we are saued by hope. But hope that is sen, is no hope. For how can a man hope for that which he seith? But & if we hope for that

Let hym that teacheth, take hede to his doctrine. Let hym that exhorteth, gene attendaunce to his exhortacion. If any mā geue, let hym do it with singlenesse. Let him that ruleth, do it with dylygence. If any man shewe mercy, let hym do it with cherefulnes. Let loue be without dyssimulacion.

Hate that whyche is euyll, and cleaue vnto that whiche is good. Be kynde one to another with brotherly loue. * In geuinge honoure, go one before another. * Be not slouthfull in the busines whiche ye haue in hande. Be feruēt in the spirye. ¶ The. xiii. Chapter. ✠

Let euery soule submyt hym selfe vnto the auctorite of the hier powers. For * there is no power but of god. The powers that be, are ordeyned of God. Whosoeuer therfore resisteth power, resisteth the ordynaunce of God. But they that resiste, shal receaue to thē selfe damnacion. For rulers are not fearful to the that do good, but to them that do euel. Wilt thou be without feare of the power? do wel then: & so shalt thou be praysed of the same. For he is the minister of god, ordeyned for thy wealth. But and yf thou do that which is euel, then feare: for he beareth not the swearde for nought: for he is the minister of God, to take vengeaunce on him that doth euel. Wherfore, ye must nedes obey, not onely for feare of vengeaunce: but also because of conscience. And euen for this cause paye ye trybute. For they are Goddes ministers, seruynge for the same purpose. ✠ Gene to euery mā therfore hys duetie: * tribut, to whom tribute belōgeth: custome, to whome custome is due. feare, to whome feare belongeth: honoure, to whome honoure pertayneth. ✠ Owe nothynge to any mā: but this, that you loue one another. For he that loueth another, hath fulfylled the lawe. For these commaundementes. * Thou shalt not commyt aduoutry: thou shalt not kyll: thou shalte not steale: thou shalte not beare false witnes: thou shalt not lust, and so forthe (yf there be anye other commaundemente) it is all compehended in this sayinge. Namely: * Loue thy neighboure as thy selfe. Loue hurteth not hys neighboure. Therfore is loue the fulfilling of the lawe. ✠ This also, we knowe the season howe that it is tyme that we should nowe awake out of slepe. For nowe is our saluacion nearer then when we beleued. The nyght is passe, the daye is come nye. Let vs therefore caste awaye the dedes of darckenes, and let vs put on the Armoure of light. Let vs walke honestly, as it were in the daye lyghte: * not in eatynge and dryncknynge, neither in chambrynge and wantonnes, neither in stryfe and envyinge: but put ye on the Lorde Iesus Christe. ✠ And make not prouision for the flesh, to fulfyl the lustes of it.

For God is able to make him stāde. This mā putteth difference betwene daye & day. Another man counteth al daies alyke. Let euery mans mynde stablyshe him selfe. ¶ The first Chapter.

Paule called an Apostle of Jesus Christ, thorow the will of God, & brother Sostenes. Vnto the cõgregatiõ of God, whiche is at Corinthi. To thẽ that are sanctified by Christ Jesu, called saintes, with al that call on the name of the Lord Jesus Christe in euery place, ether of theirs or of oures. ✶ Grace be vnto you, & peace frõ God oure father, & from the Lord Jesus Christe. ✠ I thãke my God alwaies on your behalfe, for the grace of God, whiche is geuen you by Jesus Christ, that in al thinges ye are made rich by him, in al vtterance, & in all knowledge, by the which thinges the testimonie of Jesus Christe was confirmed in you, so that ye are behinde in no gifte, wayting for the appearyng of our Lord Jesus Christe, whyche shall also strengthe you vnto the ende, that ye maye be blameles in the daye [of the commynge] of oure Lorde Jesus Christe. ✠ ✶ God is faythfull, by whom ye are called vnto the felowshyp of hys sonne Jesus Christe oure Lorde, I beseche you brethren brethren by the name of oure Lorde Jesus Christe, that ye all speake one thynge, and that there be no dissencion among you: but that ye maye be a whole body: of one mynde and of one meanynge. For it is shewed vnto me (my brethren) of you, by them whiche are of the house of Cloe, that there is strife among you. I speake of the same that euery one of you sayeth: I holde of Paule: I Act. 18. b 1. Cor. 3. a and. 16. c holde of * Apollo: I holde of Cephas: I holde of Christ. Is Christ deuyded? Was Paule crucified for you? either were ye baptysed in the name of Paul? I thancke God, that I baptised none of you, but Crispus & Gaius: lest any should saye, that I had baptised in mine own name. I baptised also the house of Stephana. Furthermore knowe I not, whether I baptised any mā (of you) or no. For Christ sent me not to baptise, but to preache the Gospel, not with wisdō of wordes, lest the crosse of Christ should haue bene made of none effecte. For the preachynge of the crosse, is to them that perysh, folishnes: but vnto vs which are saued * it is the

For the folish nesse of God, is wyser then men: and the weakenes of God is stronger then men. Brethrē, ye se youre callynge, howe that not many wise mē after the flesche, not many mighty, not many of hie degree, are called: But God hathe chosen the foolyshe thynges of the worlde, to confounde the wyse.
And God hath chosen the weake thynges of the world, to confounde thynges, which are mightie. And vile thinges of the worlde, and thynges which are despised, hath God chosen: yea, and thynges of no reputacion, for to bringe to noughte thynges of reputacyon, that no flesche shoulde reioyce in his presence. And of hym are ye in Christe Jesu, whiche of God is made vnto vs wysedome, and righteousnes, & sanctifyng, and redempcion. That accordyng as it is writen: he whiche reioyseth, shoulde reioyce in the Lorde.

¶ The. ii. Chapter.

AND I brethrē (when I came to you) came not in glorioulnes of wordes, or of wisedō, shewynge vnto you the testimonye of God. Neyther shewed I my selfe that I knewe any thing amonge you, saue Jesus Christ, euen the same that was crucified. And I was among you in weaknes, and in feare, & in much trembling. And my wordes & my preachyng was not wyth entising wordes of mannes wysedō: but in shewynge of the spirite and of power, that youre fayth should not stande in the wisdom of mē, but in the power of God. We speake
B of wisedome amonge them that are perfect: not the wysedome of this worlde, nether of the rulers of thys worlde (whyche goe to nought) but we speake the wisedom of god, whiche is in secrete and vyet hyd, whyche God ordeyned before the worlde, vnto oure glorye: whiche wysedome * none of the ru-

And we haue not receaued the spirite of the worlde: but the spirite whiche commeth of God, for to knowe the thynges that are geuen to vs of God: whyche thynges also we speake (not with wordes that mans wisdome teacheth, but with wordes whiche the holy goste doth

A IAboure for loue, and couet ſpiritual gifts: but moſt chefely that ye maye prophecie. For he that ſpeaketh wyth the tong, ſpeaketh not vnto men, but vnto god. For no man heareth him. Howbeit in the ſpirite he ſpeaketh miſteries. But he that prophecieth, ſpeaketh vnto men for their edifying, for their exhortacion, and for their comforte. He that ſpeaketh with the tonge, Rom.12.b profiteth him ſelfe: ✱he that prophecieth, 1.cor.14.g. edifieth the congregacion. ✱ I woulde that ye all ſpake with tonges: but rather that ye prophecied. For greater is he that B prophecieth, then he that ſpeaketh with tonges, except he expounde it: that the congregacion may haue edifying. Nowe bretheren, yf I come vnto you ſpeakynge with tonges: what ſhall I profyte you, excepte I ſpeake to you, either by reuelacyon, or by knowledge, or by prophecyinge, or by doctryne? Moreouer, when thynges wythoute lyfe geue ſounde (whether it be a pype or an harpe) excepte they make a diſtinction in the ſoundes, howe ſhall it be knowen what is piped or harped? For if the trompe geue an vncertaine voice, who ſhal prepare hym ſelfe to the warre? Euen ſo likewiſe when ye ſpeake wyth tonges, excepte ye ſpeake wordes that haue ſignification, how ſhall it be vnderſtande what is ſpoken?
For ye ſhall but ſpeake in the ayer. Ma-C nye kindes of voyces are in the worlde, and none of them are without ſignification. If I knowe not what the voyce meaneth, I ſhall be vnto him that ſpeaketh, an alient, and he that ſpeaketh, ſhalbe an alient vnto me. Euen ſo ye (for as muche as ye couet ſpirituall gifces) ſeke, that ye maye excell, vnto the edifyinge of the congregacyon.

Wherefore, let hym that ſpeaketh wyth tonge, praye, that he maye interprete alſo. For yf I praye with tonge, my ſpirite praieth, but my vnderſtandynge doth no good. What is it then? I wyll praye wyth the ſpirite, and wyll praye with the vnderſtandynge. I wyll ſynge wyth the ſpirite, & wyll ſynge wyth the vnderſtandynge. For elſe, when thou bleſſeſt wyth the ſpirite, howe ſhall he that occupyeth the rowme of the vnlearned, ſaye, Amen, at thy geuynge of thankes, ſeyng he vnderſtandeth not what thou ſayeſt. Thou verely geueſt thankes well, but the other is not edified. I thanke my God that I ſpeake wyth tonges more then ye all. Yet had I leuer in the congregacion, to ſpeake fiue wordes wyth my vnderſtandyng, to the informacion of other, rather then ten thouſande wordes with the D tonge. Bretheren, be not ye childzen in wyt. Howbeit, as concerning malicioulnes, be childzen: but in wit, be perfect. In the lawe it is wꝛytten ✱ with ſondꝛye tonges, & with Eſai.28.c ſondꝛy lippes will I ſpeake vnto this people, and yet for all that, will they not heare me, ſaieth the Lorde. Wherefore tonges are for a ſygne, not to them that beleue: but to them that beleue not. Contrarywyſe, prophecyinge ſerueth not for them that beleue not: but for them whiche beleue. If therfore, when all the congregacion is come together, and all ſpeake wyth tonges, there come in they that are vnlearned, or they whiche beleue not: wyll they not ſay, that E ye are oute of your wyttes? But and yf all prophcye, and there come in one that beleueth not, or one vnlearned, he is rebuked of all men, and is iudged of euery man, and ſo are the ſecretes of his herte opened, and ſo falleth he downe on hys face, and worſhippeth God, and ſayeth: that God is in you of a trueth. Howe is it then bretheren? As ofte as ye come together, euerye one of you hath a ſonge, hathe a doctrine, hathe a tong, hath a reuelacion, hath an interpretacion. Let al thinges be done vnto edifyng:
If any man ſpeake with tonge, let it be by two, or at the moſt by thre, & that by courſe, and let another interprete it. But if there be no interpreter, let him kepe ſtille in the congregacio, and let him ſpeake to him ſelf and to God. Let the prophetes ſpeake two F or three, and ✱ let the other iudge. If any 1.Joh.4.a reuelacon be made to another that ſytteth by, let the fyrſt holde his peace. For ye may all prophecy one by one, that al may learne, ſaye: howe aryſe the deade? with what body ſhall they come? Thou foole, * that which Joh.12.f thou ſoweſt, is not quickened, except it die.

And what ſoweſt thou? Thou ſoweſt not the bodye that ſhalbe, but bare cорne as of wheat, or of ſome other, but GOD geueth it a body at hys pleaſure, to euery ſede hys owne bodye. ✠ All fleſche is not one maner of fleſche: but there is one maner of fleſh of men, another maner of fleſche of beaſtes, another of fyſches, and another of byrdes.
There are alſo celeſtiall bodyes, and there are bodies terreſtrial. But the glorye of the F celeſtyall is one, and the glorye of the terre-ſtrial is another. There is one maner glorye

rie of the sunne, and another glorye of the moone, and another glory of the sterres. For one starre dyffereth frome another in glorye. So is the resurrection of the dead. It is sowen in corruption, it ryseth agayne in incorruption. It is sowen in dishonour, it ryseth agayne in honoure. It is sowen in weakenesse, it riseth againe in power. It is sowen a naturall bodye, it ryseth agayne a spirituall body. There is a naturall bodye, and there is a spirituall bodye: as it is also wrytten: the first man. * Adam was made a lyuing soule, and the last Adam was made a quickenyng spirite. Howbeit, that is not firste whiche is spirituall: but that whiche is naturall, & thē that which is spirituall. ℣ The first man is of the earth, earthy: the seconde man is the Lorde from heauen [heauenly.] As is the erthy, such are they that are erthy. And as is the heauenly, such are they that are heuēly. And as we haue borne the ymage of the earthy, so shall we beare the ymage of the heauenlye. This saye I brethren, that fleshe and bloude cannot inherite the kyngdome of God. Neither doeth corruption inherit vncorruption. Beholde, I shewe you a misterye. * We shall not all slepe: but we shal all be chaunged, and that in a moment, in the twynclynge of an eye by the last trompe. For the trompe shal blow, and the dead shal rise incorruptible, and we shalbe chaunged. For this corrupcyble must put on incorrupcyon: and thys mortall must put on immortalitye. When this corruptible hath put on incorrupciō, & this mortall hathe put on immortalitie: thē shall be brought to passe the sayinge, that is wrytten: * Death is swalowed vp in victorye: * Death where is thy stynge? Hell where is thy victorye? The stynge of death is sinne: and the strengthe of synne is the lawe: But thanckes be vnto God, whiche hathe geuen vs * victory, throwe our Lorde Jesus Christ. Therfore my deare brethren, be ye stedfast & vnmouable, alwayes riche in the worcke of the Lorde, for as much as ye knowe, howe that youre laboure is not in vayne in the Lorde.

Concernynge the * gatherynge for the sayntes, as I haue ordeyned in the cōgregaciōs of Galacia, euē so do ye. Vpon some Sabboth day, let euerye one of you put a side at home, & lay vp whatsoeuer is mete, that there be no gatherynges whē I come. Whē I am come, whōsoeuer ye shal alowe, by youre letters, thē wil I sende, to bringe your liberalitie vnto Jerusalē. And if it be meete that I go also, they shall goe with me, I wil come vnto you whē I go ouer to Macedonia. For I wyll go throwe out * Macedonia. With you peraduenture I will abyde a while: or els tarye all wynter, that ye maye bringe me on my waye, whither soeuer I go. I will not se you nowe in my passage: but I truste to abyde a whyle with you, if God shal suffre me. I wil tary at Ephes, vntil the fiftieth day. For a great doze & fruteful is opened vnto me, * and there are many aduersaries. If Timothe come, se that he be without feare with you. For he worcketh the worke of the Lorde, as I do: let no man therefore despyse hym: but conuey him forth in peace, that he may come vnto me. For I loke for hym wyth the brethren. To speake of brother * Apollo [I certifie you that] I greatly mused him, to come vnto you with the brethren, but his minde was not at al to come at this time. Howbeit he wil come, whō he shall haue conuenient time. Watche ye, stande faste in the fayth, quite you lyke men, be stronge. Let al your busines be done with loue. Brethren, ye knowe the house of * Stephana [& of Fortunatus, and Achaicus] how that they are the first frutes of Achaia, & that they haue appointed them selues to minister vnto the sainctes: I beseche you that ye be obedient vnto such, & to al that helpe and laboure. I am glad of the commyng of Stephana, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus: for that which was lackyng vnto me on your parte, they haue supplyed. For they haue conforted my spirite and youres. Loke therfore that ye knowe thē that are such. The congregacions of Asia salute you. Aquila and priscilla salute you muche in the Lord, & so doth the congregacion that is in their house [wyth whō also I am lodged.] All the brethren grete you: * Grete ye one another with an holy kysse. The salutaciō of me Paul with mine owne hande. If any man loue not the Lord Jesus Christ, the same be Anathema Maranatha. The grace of the Lorde Jesus Christ be with you: My loue be with you all in Christ Jesu. Amen.

Paule an Apostle of Jesu Christe, by the will of God, and brother Timotheus. Vnto the congregacion of God, which is at Corinth, with al the sainctes whych are in all Achaia, * Grace be with you, and peace

Gals.1.a peace from God our father, & from the lord Eph.1.a Jesus Christe. ✠ Blessed be God (the father 1.Pet.1.a of oure Lorde Jesus Christe) whiche is the 2.pet.1.a father of mercye, and the God of all con-forte, whiche conforteth vs in all oure try-bulation, in so much that we are able to cõ-forte them which are in any maner of trouble, with the same conforte, wherewith we our selues are conforted of God. For as the Collo.1.c *afflictiõs of Christ are plẽteous in vs, euẽ so is our consolacion plenteous by Christ.
B Whether we be troubled for youre consola-cion and healthe, (Or whether we be confor-ted, it is for your conforte & saluatiõ) which saluacion sheweth her power in that ye suffre the same afflictiõs, which we also suffre: or whether we be conforted for your conso-lacion, and saluacion: our hope also is sted-fast for you: in as much as we knowe, howe that as ye are partakers of the afflictiõs, so shal ye be partakers also of the consolatiõ.
Wherebẽ, I wolde not haue you ignorãte Act.xix.f of our trouble, which happened vnto vs in * Asia. For we were greued out of measure, passing strength so greatly, that we despai red euen of life. Also we receaued an answer of death in our selues, that we shulde not Deu.8.d put oure trust in oure selues: * but in God 1.reg.2.d which raiseth the deade to lyfe agayne, and which deliuered vs from so greate a death: & doth deliuer. On whom we trust, that yet hereafter he wyll deliuer, by the helpe of your prayer for vs, that by the meanes of many persones, thankes maye be geuen of testimony of our conscience, that in syngle-nes (of hearte) and godly purenes, & not in fleshly wysedom, but by the grace of God, we haue had our conuersaciõ in the world, and moste of all to you wardes. We wryte none other thinges vnto you, then that ye reade, and also know. Yea, and I truste ye shal fynde vs vnto the ende, euẽ as ye haue founde vs partelye: for we are youre reioy-2.Thes.1.c synge, euen * as ye are oures in the daye of

I minded first to haue come vnto you, that I might haue had one pleasure moze wyth you, and to passe by you into Macedonia, & to haue come againe out of Macedonia vnto you, and to be led forthe of you towarde Iewrye. Whã I thus wyse was minded: did I vse lightenes? Or thinke I carnally those thinges whiche I thincke? that with me math.5.f should be * yea, yea, and naye, naye. God is Jam.5.d faithfull: For our preachige to you, was not D yea, & nay. For Goddes sonne Jesus Christ which was preached amonge you by vs (euen by me and Siluanus, and Timotheus) was not yea & nay: but by him it was yea: For all the promyses of God, by hym are yea: and are in him. Amen, vnto the laude of God thorow vs. For it is God, whiche sta-blysheth vs with you in Christ, and stãth by vs, and hath annoynted vs, which hath also sealed vs, and * hath geuen the earneste Rom.8.d of the spirite in oure hearres. ✠ I cal God Ephe.4.c for a recorde vnto my soule, that for to sauer you with al, I came not any moze vnto i.Pet.b.g Corinthum. * Not that we be Lordes ouer youre faith: but are helpers of youre ioye.
For by fayth ye stande.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

BVt I determined this in my selfe, that I would not come again to you in heuines. For if I make you sory, who is A it that should make me glade, but the same whiche is made sory by me? And I wrote this same vnto you, lest if I came vnto you, I should take heuines (vpon heuines) of them, of whom I ought to reioyce. This confydence haue I towarde you al, that my ioye is the ioye of you al. For out of greate affliction, and anguishe of hearte, I wrote vnto you with manye teares: not that ye should be made sory, but that ye might perceane the loue, which I haue most specially vnto you. If any man hath caused sorowe, the same hath not made me sory, but partely: lest I should greue you al. * It is sufficient B vnto the same man, that he was rebuked of i.Cor.b.b many. So that now contrariwise, ye ought rather to forgeue him, and conforte himself that same persone shoulde be swalowed vp with ouer much heuines. Wherefore, I ex-horte you, that loue may haue stregth ouer him. For this cause verely did I write, that I my self might know the proofe of you, whether ye would be obedient in all thynges. To whom ye forgeue any thyng, I forgeue also. For yf I forgaue any thynge, to whom I forgaue it, for youre sakes forgaue I it, in the syght of Christe, lest Satan shoulde preuente vs. For his thoughtes are not vn knowen vnto vs. ✠ * When I was come C to Troada for Christes Gospels sake (and a greate doze was opened vnto me of the Lorde) I had no reste in my spyrit, because I founde not Titus my brother, but tooke my leaue of them, and wente awaye into Macedonia. Thankes be vnto God, whiche alwayes geueth vs the victorye in Christ, and openeth the sauer of hys knowledge by vs in euery place. For we are vnto God the swete sauoure of Christ, amonge them that are saued, and amonge them which perishe. D
* To the one parte are we the sauoure of Luk.2.a death vnto death. And vnto the other parte are we the sauoure of lyfe vnto lyfe. And who who is mete vnto these thinges? For we are not as the most parte are, which chope and chaunge with the worde of God: but euē out of purenes, and by the power of God, in the sight of God, so speake we in Christ. ✠

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

A WE begyn to prayse our selues again. Nede we as some other, of Epistles of recōmēda cō vnto you? or letters of recommendacion from you? Ye are oure Epystle wrytten in our heartes, whyche is vnderstande, & red of al men, forasmuche as ye declare that ye are the Epistle of Christ, ministred bydis, & written, not with yncke: but with the spirit of the lyuing God: * not in the tables of stone, but in * fleshly tables of the heart. ✠ Such truste haue we thorow Christ to Godwarde, not that we are sufficiēt of our selues to thincke any thig, as of oure selues: but yf we be able vnto any thig * the same commeth of God, whiche hathe made vs able to * minister the newe testament, not of the letter, but of the spirit. For the letter killeth, but the spirit geueth life. If the ministracion of deathe thorowe the letters figured in stones, was glorious, so that the childrē of Israel coulde not behold the face of Moses, for the glorye of his contenaunce (which glorye is done away) why shal not the ministracion of the spyrite be much more glorious? For if the ministracie of cōdemnacion be glorious: muche more dothe the ministracion of ryghteousnes exceade in glorie. ✠ For no doute that which was there glorified, is not once glorified in respecte of this exceadige glory. For if that which is destroied was glorio⁹, much more that which remayneth, is glorious. Seinge thē that we haue such truste, we vse greate boldnes, and do not as Moses, which * put a vayle ouer hys face, that the chyldren of Israel should not se for what purpose that serued whiche is put awaye. * But theyr myndes were blynded. For vntil this daye remayneth the same couerynge vntaken awaye in the lecture of the olde testamente, which vaile shal be put awaye in Christ. But euen vnto this daye when Moses is red, * the vayle hangeth before theyr hertes. Neuertheleſſe, * when they tourne to the Lorde, the vayle shalbe taken awaye.

* The Lorde no doute is a spyryte. And where the spirit of the Lorde is, there is libertye. But we all beholde in a myrroure the glory of the lord with his face opē, & are chaūged vnto the same symilitude, frō glory to glory, euen as of the spirit of the Lorde.

A THerfore, seynge that we haue such an office, euen as God hathe had mercye on vs, we go not oute of hynde: but haue cast from vs the clokes of vnhonestye, and walke not in craftynes, neither handle we the worde of god disceytfully, but open the trueth, and repoyze oure selues to euery mannes conscience in the syghte of God. If oure Gospel be yet hid, it is hid amonge them that are loste, in whome * the God of this world * hathe blynded the myndes of them which beleue not, lest the lyght of the Gospel of the glorye of Christe (whiche is the ymage of God) shoulde shyne vnto them. ✠✠ For we preache not oure selues, but Christe Jesus to be the Lorde, and our selues youre seruauntes, for Jesus sake. For it is God, that * commaūded the lyght to shyne oute of darcknesse, whyche hathe * shined in our hartes, for to geue the light of the knowledge of the glorye of God, in the face of Jesus Christ. But we haue this treasure in * erthen vessels, that the excellencye of the power might be Gods, & not oures. We are troubled on euery syde, yet are we not without shyft. We are in powere: but not vtterly wythout somewhat. We suffer persecucion: but are not forsaken therein. We are caste downe: neuertheleſſe we perysche not. We alwayes * beare about in the bodye, the dyinge of the Lorde Jesus, that the lyfe of Jesus myghte also appeare in oure bodye. ✠ * For we whyche lyue, are alwayes delyuered vnto death for Jesus sake, that the life also of Jesu myghte appeare in our mortall fleshe. So then, death worcketh in vs, but lyfe in you. ✠ * But seynge that we haue the same spirite of fayth (accordynge as it is wrytten: * I beleued, and therfore haue I spoken.) We also beleue, and therfore speake. For we knowe, that he whyche rayſed vp the Lord Jesus, shal rayse vp vs also vp the meanes of Jesus, and shall set vs with you. For all thynges do I for youre sakes * that the plenteous grace by thankes geuen of many, maye redounde to the prayse of GOD. Wherfore, we are not wery. But thoughe our outwarde man perisshe, yet the inward man is renewed daye by daye. * For oure tribulacion which is momētany and light, prepareth an exceadēge & an eternal waighe of glorie vnto vs, while we loke not on the thynges which are sene, but on the thiges which are not sene. For the thynges which are sene, are tempozal: but thynges whiche are not sene, are eternall. * The. b. Chap.

FOr we know that if our * erthy mancīō of this dwellig wer destroyed, we haue a buildig of God, an habitacion not made with hādes, but eternall in heuē. For * therfore syghe we, wylleinge to be clothed with oure mansions which is frō heuē: so yet, yf that we be found clothed, and not

Act.16.e Macedonia * entred, he had no rest, but we were troubled on every syde. Out ward was fightinge, inwarde was feare. Neuertheles, * God that comforteth the abiecte, comforted vs by the cõmynge of Titus. And not by hys commynge onely, but also by the consolacion, which we receyued of you: When he tolde vs youre wyll, youre feruente mynde for me: So that I reioyced the more. For thoughe I made you sorye with a letter, I repente not: though I did repent. For I perceaue, that the same epistle made you sorye, thoughe it were but for a season. But I nowe reioyce, not that ye were sorye, but that ye so sorowed that ye repented. For ye sorowed godly: so that in nothinge ye were hurte by vs. For godly sorow we causeth repentaunce vnto saluation, not to be repented of, contrarywise, * worldelye sorow causeth deathe. For beholde, what diligence this godly sorowe that ye toke, hath wroughte in you: yea, it caused you to cleare youre selues. It caused indignacion, it caused feare, it caused desyre, it caused punishment. For in all thynges ye haue shewed your selues, that ye were cleare in that matter. Wherefore, though I wrote vnto you, I did it not for hys cause that had done the hurte, neyther for hys sake that was hurte: but that your good mynde for vs might appeare amonge you in the sight of God. Therfore, we are comforted, because ye are comforted: yea, and exceadingly the more ioyed we, for the wye that Titus had: because his spirit was refreshed of you all. I am therefore not now ashamed, thoughe I boasted my selfe to him of you. For as al thinges whiche we spake vnto you are true, euē so our boastinge, that I made vnto Titus is founde true. And his inwarde affection is more aboundant towarde you, whē he remēbreth the obedience of you all: howe with feare & trēblinge ye receaued him. I reioyce that I may be bolde ouer you in al thynges.

¶ The viii. Chapter.

I Certifie you brethrē, of the grace of god, whiche was geuen in the congregations of Macedonia, how that the aboundaūce of their reioysynges, that they are tryed with muche tribulacion. And though they were exceadynge poze, yet haue they geuē exceadynge eychely, and that in singlenes. For to their powers (I beare thē recorde) yea, and beyonde their power, they were willinge of their owne accorde, and prayed vs with great instaunce, that we wolde receaue their benefite, and suffre theym to be partakers with other * in ministeynge to the sayncts. And this they dyd, not as we loked for: but gaue their owne selues fyrste to the Lorde, and after vnto vs by the wyll of God: so that we coulde not but desyre Titus to accomplish the same benevolēce amonge you also, euen as he had begonne. Now therefore, as ye are rych in al parties, in fayth, in worde, in knowledge, in all feruentnes, and in loue, which ye haue to vs: euen so, see that ye be plenteous in this benevolence also. This say I, not commaundynge: but because of feruētnes. I do alow the vnkaynednesse of youre loue towarde other men. For ye knowe the liberalitye of our Lorde Jesus Christe, that thoughe he was * ryche, yet for youre sakes he became poore, that ye thorow his powerte, might be made ryche. And I geue councel hereto. For this is expedient for you, whiche begaune, not to do onelye, but also to wyll a yeare agoe. Nowe therefore, perfourme the thynge, whiche ye begaune to doe: that as there was in you a redynes to wyl, euen so ye may perfourme the dede, * of that whiche ye haue. For * ykthere be fyrste a wyllynge mynde, it is accepted accordynge to that a man hath, and not accordynge to that he hath not. Jt is not my mynde that other be set at ease, & ye brought into combraunce: but that ther be egalnes now at this time: & that your aboundaūce may succoure their lacke: and that their aboundaūce may supplye your lacke: that ther may be equalitie, agreynge to that whiche is written: He that had muche, had not the more aboundaunce: and he that had litle had neuerthelesse. Thanckes be vnto GOD, whyche put the same good mynde for you in the heart of Titus, which accepted the request: yea, rather he was so wel willinge, that of hys owne accorde, he came vnto you. We haue sente with him the brother, whose laude is in the gospell thorowe out all the congregacions: & not that onelye, but is also chosen of the congregacions to be a felow with vs, in our iorney, concerning this benevolēce that is ministred by vs, vnto the praise of the same Lorde, and to styre vp youre prompt mynde. For thys we eschewe, that any man shoulde rebuke vs, in this plenteous distrybution, * that is ministred by vs: to the glorye of the Lorde & make prouision for honeste thynges: not onely in the sighte of the Lorde: but also in the sighte of men. We haue sente with them a brother of ours: whō we haue ofte tymes proued diligente in many thynges: but nowe much more diligent. The great confidēce whiche I haue in you, hath caused me this to doe: partely for Titus sake, which is my felow, and helper as concernynge you: partly because of other, which are our brethren, and the messengers of the congregacions, and

Let hym that is such, thynche on this wise: that as we are in wordes by letters, when we are absente, suche are we in dedes, when we are present. For we cannot fynde in our D hearttes to make oure selues of the numbre lest I should runne or had runne in vayne.

Also Titus which was with me, though he were a Greke, yet was not compelled to be circūcised: & that because of incōmers beyng false brethren, which came in priuelye to spie oute oure liberte whiche we haue in Christ Jesu, that they might bring vs into bondage. To whō we gaue no rowme, no not for the tyme (by waye of subiection) because that the trueth of the Gospell might continue with you. Of them whiche semed to be somwhat, what they wer in tyme past sed it maketh no matter to me. * God lo-keth on the outewarde appearaunce of no manne. Neuertheles, they whiche semed great, added nothyng to me. But contrary wyse, when they sawe that the Gospel ouer the vncircumcision was cōmitted vnto me, as the gospel ouer the circumcision was cō-mitted vnto peter. For he that was mighty in Peter in the Apostelshyp ouer the cyrcumcisiō, the same was mighty in me amōg the gentils. Whē they perceaued the grace that was geuen vnto me, then James, Cephas and John, which semed to be pillers, gaue to me & Barnabas the right handes of that felowshyppe, that we should be Apostles among the Heithen, and they in the circumcision: onely that we should remember the poore. * Wherin also I was dylygent to do the same. But when Peter was come to Antiochie, I withstode him openly, because he was worthy to be blamed. For yer that certayne came from James, he did eate with the gentils. But when they were come, he withdrew and separated him selfe from them, fearynge them whiche were of the circumcision. And the other Jewes dissebled as well as he: in so much that Barnabas also was brought into their simula-cion. But when I sawe that they went not the right way after the trueth of the Gos-pell, I sayde vnto Peter before them all: yf thou beynge a Jewe, lyuest after the maner of the Gentils, and not as do the Jewes: why causest thou the Gentyls to lyue as do the Jewes? For we whiche are * Jewes by nature, & not sinners of the gentils, know, that a man * is not iustified by the workes of the lawe, but by the faith of Jesus Christ.
And we haue beleued on Jesus Christ, that we might be iustified by the faythe of christ, & not by the workes of the law, because that by the deades of the lawe, no flesh shalbe iustified. If while we seke to be made ryghtewyse by Christ, we our selues are foūd sinners in Christ: the the minister of sinne? godforbid.
For if I build againe the thinges which I destroyed, the make I my selfe a trespasser.
For I (thorow the lawe) haue bene dead to the law, that I might liue vnto christ. I am crucified with Christ. Neuertheles, I liue; yet nowe not I, but Christ lyueth in me.
The lyfe whiche I nowe lyue in the flesh, I lyue by the faythe of the sonne of God
* whiche loued me, and gaue hym selfe for me. I despise not the grace of God. For & yf ryghtwisnes come of the lawe, then Christ is dead in vayne.

Euen so we also, when we were chyldren, were in bondage vnder the ordenaūces of the worlde. But whē the time was full come, God * sent luc. xx. b his sōne, made of a womā, and made bonde Johu. 3. b vnto the law, to redeme thē which were bōde Rom. 8. a vnto the lawe: that we (thorowe electyon) might receaue the inheritaunce that belongeth vnto the naturall sonnes. Because ye are sonnes, * God hathe sente the spirite of Rom. 8. a his sonne into our heartes, cryinge: Abba father. Wherefore nowe, thou arte not a seruaunte: but a sonne. If thou be a sonne, thou arte also an heyre of GOD, thorowe Christ. Notwithstandinge, when ye knewe X not God, ye did seruyce vnto them * which 1. cor. 8. d by nature are no Goddes. But now after that ye haue knowen God (yea, rather are knowen of God) howe is it that ye tourne Coll. ii. d agayne vnto the weake, and * beggerly ordenaunces, whereunto againe ye desire a-fresshe to be in bōdage? Ye obserue dayes, and monethes, and tymes, and yeares. I Z am in feare of you, lest I haue bestowed on you laboure in vayne. Brethren, I beseech you, be ye as I am: for I am as ye are. Ye haue not hurte me at all. Ye knowe howe thorowe infyrmytye of the flesshe I preached the gholpel vnto you at the first. And my temptacion whiche was in the flesh, ye despysed not, nether abhorred: but receaued me as an Aungell of God: euen as Christe Jesus. What is then your felicitie? For I beare you recorde, that yf it had bene possible ye would haue plucked out your owne copes, and haue geuen theym to me. Am I therfore become youre enemy, because I tell you the trueth? They are gelous ouer you amysse. Yea, they entend to exclude you, that ye shoulde be feruent to themwarde. It is good alwayes to be feruēt in a good thing, and not only when I am present with you. My lytle childzen, of whome I trauayle in bieth agayne, vntyll Christ be fashioned in you, I would I were with you nowe, & coulde chaunge my voyce: for I stande in a doute of you. CHildre, * obey your fathers & mothers in the the Lord: for that is righte. b Honoure thy father & mother, (the same is the first cōmaundemēt in the promise) that thou mayest prosper, & liue lōg on erth. ye fathers, moue not your children to wrath: but * bringe thē vp thorowe the doctrine & information of the Lord. Ye seruātes, obey thē that are your bodily maisters, with feare & trembling, euen with the singlenes of your hert, as vnto Christ: not doyng seruice vnto the eye, as they that goe about to please mē: but as the seruātes of Christ doyng the will of God frō the hearte with good wil, seruing the Lord, & not mē. Knowynge thys, that what so euer good thynge any man doth, the same shall he receaue agayne of God, whether he be bonde or free. And ye maysters, do euen the same thinges vnto them, putting away threatenynges. Knowing, that your master also is in heauen, * neyther is there any respect of persone wyth him. † Finally my brethrē, be stronge thorowe the Lorde, and thorowe the power of his myght. Put on al the armoure of God, that ye may stande agaynst the assautes of the wevyll. For we wrestle not agaynste bloud and flesche: but against rule, against power, against worldly rulers, euen gouernours of the darcknesse of thys worlde, agaynst spirytual craftines in heauenly thynges. Wherefore, take vnto you the whole armour of God, that ye maye be able to resist in the euyll daye, and stande perfyte in all thynges. Stande therfore, * and youre loynes gyrde with the truth, hauyng on the brest plate of righteousnes, and hauyng shoes on your fete, that ye may be prepared for the Gospel of peace. Above all, take to you the shilde of fayth, wherewith ye maye quenche all the fyrye dartes of the wycked. And take the helmet of saluacion, & the swearde of the spirite, whyche is the worde of God. † * And prayе alwayes with al maner of prayer and supplicacion, in the spirite: and watche thereunto with all instaunce and supplicacion for all sayntes and for me, * that vtterraunce maye be geuē vnto me, that I may opē my mouth freely, to vtter the secretes of my Gospell (whereof I am messenger in bondes) that therin I maye speake freely, as I oughte to speake. But that ye maye also knowe what condicion I am in, and what I do, Tichicus the deare brother and faythfull minister in the Lorde, shall shewe you of all thinges, whome I haue sent vnto you for the same purpose, that ye myghte knowe what cause we stande in, and that he myghte cōfort youre hertes. Peace be vnto the brethren and loue, with fayth, from God the father, and from the lord Jesus Christ. Grace be with all them which loue our Lorde Jesus Christ vnfaynedly, Amen.

A PAul and Timothe the seruātes of Jesu Christ. To al the sayntes in Christ Jesu, whiche are at Philippos, wyth the Bisshoppes and Deacons. Grace be vnto you, and peace frō God our father, & frō the Lorde Jesus Christe. † I thancke my GOD with all remembraunce of you * alwayes in all my prayers for you, and pray with gladnes: because ye are come into the felowshippe of the ghospel, from the fyrste daye vntyll nowe: and am surely certified of this, that he whiche hathe begon a good worcke in you, shall perfourme it vntil the daye of Jesus Christe, as it becommeth me, so iudge I of you all, because I haue you in my hearte: for asmuche as ye all are companions of grace with me, euen in my bondes, and in the defendyng and stablyshing of the gospel. For God is my recorde, howe greatly I longe after you all, from the bye hearte rote in Jesus Christe. * And this I praye, that youre loue maye encrease yet more and more in knowledge, and in al vnderstandyng: that ye maye except the thinges that are most excellent, that ye may be pure pure, and such as offende no man vntil the daye of Christ: beynge fylled with the frute of ryghteoulnes, whiche commeth by Jesus Christ, vnto the glorye & prayse of God. + I wolde ye should vnderstande (brethren) that the thinges which happened vnto me, chaunced vnto the greate furtherauance of the Gospel: So that my bandes in Christe, are manifest thorowoute al the iudgemente hall, and in all other places: In so muche that many of the brethren in the Lorde beinge encoraged thorow my bandes, dare more boldely speake the worde without feare.

Some preach Christ of enuy & strife, & some of good wil. The one parte preach Christ of strife, and not sincerely, supposynge to adde more aduersite to my bandes. Againe, the other parte preache of loue, because they know that I am set to defende the Gospell.
What then? So that Christ be preached any maner of way, whether it be by occasiō, or of true meaning, I am glade therof, yea & will be glade. For I knowe, that this shall in nothig, I shalbe ashamed: but that with al boldenesse, (as alwayes, euen so nowe also) Christ shalbe magnifyed in my body, whether it be thorow lyfe, or thorow death.

For Christ is to me lyfe, and death is to me auantage. If it chaunce me to lyue in the ther I come and se you, or els be absente, I maye yet heare of youre condicion, that ye contynue in one spirit, and in one soule, la-bouringe as we do, to maintayne the faith of the Gospell, and in nothynge fearynge your aduersaryes, which is to them a cause of perdicion, but to you of saluacion, & that 25 But I supposed it necessarye to sende vnto you Epaphroditus my cõpanion in laboure, and felowe souldier, youre Apostel, which also ministreth vnto me at nede. 26 For he longeth after you all, and was full of heuynes, because that ye had herde say, that he had bene sicke. 27 And no doute he was sicke, in so muche that he was nye vnto death. But God had mercye on him: and not on him onelye, but on me also, lest I should haue sorowe vpon sorowe. 28 I sende him therfore the more diligently: that whē ye se him, ye maye reioyce agayne, and that I maye be the lesse sorowfull. 29 Receaue him therefore in the Lorde wyth all gladnesse, and make much of suche: 30 because that for the worke of Christe he went so farre, that he was nie vnto death, & regarded not his lyfe: to fulfil that whiche was lacking on youre part towarde me.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

1 MOreouer, (brethren) reioyce ye in the Lorde. It greeueth me not to write one thinge often to you. For to you it is a sure thynge. 2 Beware of dogges, beware of euyll workers. Beware of dyssencyon. 3 For we are circumcisyon, whiche serue God in the spirite, & reioyce in Christe Iesu, and haue no confydence in the flesh: 4 though I might also reioyce in the flesh. If any other man thynketh that he hath wherof he might trust in the flesh. I haue more: 5 beynge circumcised the eight daye of the kynred of Israell, of the tribe of Ben Iamin, an Ebrue borne of the Ebrues as concernynge the lawe, a Pharisee: 6 as concernynge frewentnesse, I persecuted the congregacion: as touchyng the ryghteousnes whiche is in the lawe, I was vnrebukeable. 7 But the thynges that were dauntage vnto me, those I counted losse for Christes sake: 8 yea, I vnchche all thynges but losse for the excellencye of the knowledge of Christ Iesu my Lorde. For whome I haue counted all thynge losse, & do iudge them but dyle, that I may wynne Christ, 9 & be founde in hym, not hauyng myne owne righteousnesse of the lawe: but that whiche is thorowe the fayth of Christe: euen the righteousnes whiche commeth of God thorowe fayth: 10 that I maye knowe him & the vertue of his resurrecyon, & the felowshyp of his passyons, whyle I am conformable vnto his (death) 11 yf by any meanes I might attayne vnto the resurrection of the deade.

that ye were an ensample to al that beleue in Macedonia, and Achaia. For from you sounded oute the worde of the Lorde, not in Macedonia, & in Achaia onely: but your

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

A 1.Thes.1.b FOr ye youre selues(* brethren) knowe of our entraunce in vnto you, how that it was not in vayne: but eue after that Acte.16.c we had suffred before, and were * shamefully intreated at Philippos (as ye know) Act.17.b then were we bolde in oure God, to speake vnto you the gospel of God, in * much stryuinge. For our exhortacio was not to bring you to errour, nor yet to vnclenes, neither was it wyth gyle: but as we were alowed of God, that the Gospell shoulde be committed vnto vs: euen so we speake, not as galla.1.b they that * please men, but God, whyche B tryeth oure hertes. Neither led we our conuersacio at any time with flatteryng wordes, as ye knowe: neither by occasion of co-Phil.1.a uetousnes. * God is recorde: neither sought we prayse of men, neither of you, nor yet of any other, when we might haue bene in aucthorite, as the Apostles of Chriſte, but we were tender amonge you, euen as a nourse cherysheth her chyldren, so were we affectioned towarde you, oure good wyl was to haue dealte vnto you, not the Gospell of God onelye: but also oure owne soules, be-
C cause ye were deare vnto vs. * Ye remember Acte.17.g brethren our laboure, and trauayle. * For 2.Thes.3.b we laboured day & nyght, because we wold 1.Cor.9.c not be chargeable vnto anye of you, & preached vnto you the Gospell of God. ye are wytnesses, and so is God, howe holyly and iustly, and vnblameablye we behaued oure selues amog you that beleued, as ye know, howe that we bare suche affectyon vnto euerye one of you, as a father dothe vnto his children, exhortynge, comfortynge, and beseechynge you, that ye would walke worthye of God, whyche hathe called you vnto hys kyngedome and glorye. For this cause thanke we God also wythout ceassinge, because that whē ye receaued of vs the worde (wherewith ye learned to knowe God) ye receaued it not as the worde of man: but euen as it was in dede, the worde of God, whyche worketh also in you that beleue.

D For ye brethren became folowers of the cōgregacion of God, which in Jewrye are in Chriſte Jesu: for ye haue suffred like thynges of your kynsmen, as we our selues haue suffered of the Jewes. Whiche as they kylled the Lorde Jesus, and theyr owne Prophetes, euen so haue they persecuted vs: & God they please not, & are contrarye to all men, and hynder vs, that we shoulde not speake vnto the Gentyls, that they myght be saued, to fulfyll theyr synnes alway. For Luc.21.g * the wrath of God is come on them, euen to the vtmost. For as muche brethren as we are kept from you for a season, as cōcernig the bodyly presence (but not in the hert) we enforsed the more to se you personally with greate desyre. And therfore we would haue come vnto you. I Paule once, and agayne:

Ephe.3.c no man shoulde be moued in these afflictions. For * ye your selues knowe, that we Joh.15.c are euen appoynted there vnto. For when Act.14.b we were with you, we tolde you before, that psa l.34.b we should suffre tribulacio, euen as it came pso 24.b to passe, and as ye knowe. For this cause 2.Thes.3.c when I could no lenger forbeare, I sent, that I might haue knowledge of your faith, lest by some meanes the tempter had tempted you, and leste oure laboure had bene bestowed in vayne. But now lately, when B Timothe came from you vnto vs, and declared to vs your fayth, and your loue, and howe that ye haue good remembraunce of vs alwayes, desyringe to se vs, as we also desyre to se you: Therfore brethren we receaued consolacion by you, in all oure aduersite, and necessite, thoughe your fayth. For nowe are we alyue, yf ye stande stedfast in the Lorde. For what thankes can we recompence to God agayne for you, ouer all the ioye, that we ioye for youre sakes before oure God? prayinge nyght and day exceadyngly, that we might se you presently, and myght fulfyll the thynges whyche are lackynge vnto your fayth. God hym selfe
C oure father, and oure Lorde Jesus Chriſte, shall guyde our iorney vnto you: the Lord also shall increase you, and make you flowe ouer in loue, one towarde another, and towarde al men, euen as we do towarde you, that he maye make your hertes stable, and vnblameably in holynes before God oure father, at the commynge of oure Lorde Jesus Chriſt with al sainctes.

A Furthermore, we beseche you (brethre) and exhorte you by the Lorde Jesus, that ye increace more and more, euen as ye haue receaued of vs, howe ye ought to walke walke & to pleaſe God. For ye know, what commaundementes we gaue you by oure Lord Jeſu Chriſte. For this is the wyll of God, * euen your holynes, that ye ſhoulde abſtaine frō fornicaciō, and that euery one of you ſhould know * how to kepe his veſſel in holynes & honoure, & not in the luſte of cōcupiſcence, * as do the heithen, which know not God, that no mā oppreſſe & deſeaude his brother in bargaininge: becauſe that the Lorde is the auenger of all ſuche thinges, as we tolde you before, & teſtified. For god hath not called vs vnto vnclēnes, but vnto holynelle. ✠ * He therefore that deſpyſeth, deſpyſeth not man, but GOD, which hath lent * his holy ſpirite amonge you. ✠ ✠ But as touchynge brotherlye * loue, ye nede not, that I wryte vnto you. * For ye are taughte of God, to loue one another: Yea, and that thynge verelye ye do vnto all the brethren whiche are in al Macedonia. We beſeche you brethren, that ye encreaſe more and more, and that ye ſtudye to be quiet, and to medle wyth your owne buſines, and * to worcke with youre owne handes, as we commaunded you: that ye maye behaue your ſelues honeſtly towarde them that are without, and that nothynge be lackynge vnto you. ✠ ✠ I would not brethrē that ye ſhoulde be ignoraunt concerning thē which are fallē a ſlepe, that ye ſorowe not as other do, whiche haue * no hope. For if we beleue, that Jeſus died, and roſe againe: euē ſo thē alſo whiche ſlepe by Jeſus, wil god bryng againe with him. For this ſaye we vnto you in the worde of the Lord, that we which ſhal * liue, & ſhall remaine in the cōming of the Lord, ſhall not come yer they whiche ſlepe. For the Lorde him ſelfe ſhall deſcende from heauen with a ſhowte, and the voice of the * Archaungel & trōpe of God. And the dead in Chriſte ſhal ariſe firſt: thē we which ſhal liue (euē we which ſhal remaine) ſhalbe caughte vp with thē alſo in the cloudes, to meete the lord in the ayer. And ſo ſhall we euer be with the Lord. Wherefore cōfort your ſelues one another, with theſe wordes. ✠

¶ The. d. Chapter.

FInally, of the tymes and ſeaſons (brethren) it is no nede that I wryte vnto you. For ye your ſelues know perfectly that * the day of the Lorde ſhall come, euē as a theefe in the night. For whē they ſhal ſaye, peace, & all thynges are ſafe, then ſhall * ſodē deſtruction come vpon thē: as ſorowe cōmeth vpō a womā trauailig with child) & they ſhal not eſcape. But * ye brethrē are not in darkenes, that that day ſhuld come vnto you as a theefe. ✠ ye are al the childrē of light, & the children of the day. We are not of the night, neither of darkenes. * Therfore let vs not ſlepe as do other, but let vs watche, & be ſober. For they that ſlepe, ſlepe in the night: & they that be dronken, are dronken in the nyght. But let vs which are of the daye, be ſober, * armed wyth the breſt plate of fayth & loue, & with hope of ſaluacion for an helmet. For God hathe not appointed vs to prouoke wrath vnto our ſelues, but to obtayne ſaluacion by the meanes of our lord Jeſu Chriſt, * which died for vs: that whether we wake or ſlepe, we ſhould liue together with him. Wherefore, cōfort youre ſelues together, & edifie euery one another, euen as ye do. * We beſeche you brethrē, that ye know thē, * which laboure among you, & haue the ouerſighte of you in the Lorde, & geue you exhortacion, that ye haue thē in hye reputacīō thorow loue, for their workes ſake, & be at peace with thē. ✠ We deſire you (brethren) warne theym that are vnruly, comforte the feble minded, lyfte vp the weake, be pacyent towarde all men. * See that none recompence euell for euyll vnto anye man: but euer folowe that whiche is good, both among your ſelues, & to all men. * Reioyce euer. ✠ Praye continually. In all thynges geue thankes. For this is the wil of God thorowe Chriſte Jeſu towarde you. Quenche not the ſpirite. * Deſpyſe not prophelynges. Examin all thynges, kepe that which is good. Abſtaine from all euyll appearaunce. The very God of peace ſanctifye you thorowoute. And I praye God, that your whole ſpirit, & ſoule, and body, maye be preſerued: ſo that in nothing ye may be blamed in the comming of our Lorde Jeſus Chriſte. * Faithfull is he which called you, which wil alſo do it. Brethren, pray for vs. * Greete all the brethren with an holy kiſſe. I charge you in the lord that this Epiſtle be red vnto all the holye brethren. * The grace of the Lorde Jeſus Chriſt be with you. Amen.

Neuertheleße, we se not yet all thynges subdued vnto him: but hym that was made lesse then the Aungels, we se that it was Jesus, whiche is crowned with glorye and honoure, for the suffrynge of death: that he by the grace of GOD, shoulde taste of C deathe for all men. For it became him, for whome are all thynges, and by whome are all thynges (after that he hadde broughte manye sonnes vnto glorye) that he shoulde make the Lorde of their saluacyon perfecte thorowe afflictions. For both he that sanc-

D Aungels: but the sede of Abraham taketh he on hi. Wherfore, in al thinges it became him to be made like vnto his brethren, that he might be merciful, & a faithful hie preest in thinges concernyng God, for to pourge the peoples sinnes. For in that he hymself him selfe to be tempted, he is able to succor them also that are tempted.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

A Wherfore holy brethren, partakers of the celestial callyng, consider the am-bassadour and hie preest of our profession Christ Jesus, howe that he is faithfull vnto him that put hym in the office, euen as was Moses in al his house.
For loke howe much honoure he (that hath buylded a house) hathe more then the house it selfe, so muche honoure is he counted worthy of more then Moses. For euerye house is buylded of some man. But he that ordeyned all thynges, is God. And Moses verely was faythfull in all hys house, as a minister, to beare wytnesse of those thynges whiche were to be spoken afterwarde. But Christ as a sonne, hath rule ouer the house, whose house are we, yf we holde faste the Rom.5.a confydence, and * the reioysynge of that hope, vnto the ende. Wherefore (as the ho-lye Goost sayeth:) to day yf ye wyll heare hys voyce, harden not youre heartes, as in B the prouokinge, in the daye of temptacyon in the wildernesse, where your fathers tem-ted me, proued me, and sawe my workes ourey yere. Wherfore I was grened with that generacyon, and sayde: They do al-waye erre in theyr hertes: they verely haue not knowen my wayes, so that I sware in my wrathe: they shall not enter into my rest: Take hede brethren, lest at anye tyme there be in any of you a frowarde hert sub-iecte vnto vnbeleife, that he shoulde departe from the lyuynge God: but exhorte ye one another dayly, while it is called to day, lest any of you were harde herted thorowe the deceitfulnesse of sinne. We are made parta C kers of Christe, yf we kepe sure (vnto the ende) the begynnyng of the substaunce, so longe as it is said: to daye yf ye wyll heare his voyce, harden not your hertes, as in the prouokynge, for some when they hearde, did prouoke: howe be it, not all that came out of Egipt by Moses. But with whome was he displeased. xl. yeares? Was he not displeased with the that had sinned, whose carkases were ouerthrowē in the desert? To who sware he that they should not enter in to his rest, but vnto the that were not obedient? And we se, that they coulde not enter in, because of vnbeleife.

A LEt vs feare therfore, leſt any of you (forſaking the promiſe of entryng into hys reſt) ſhould ſeme at anye tyme to haue bene diſappointed. For vnto vs is it declared, as well as vnto them. But it profyted not them, that they hearde the worde: becauſe they whiche heard it, coupled it not with faith. For we which haue beleued, do enter into hys reſt, as he ſayde. Euen as I haue ſworne in my wrath: they ſhall not enter ito my reſt. And that ſpake he verely, longe after that the worckes were made, and the foundacyon of the worlde layde.

Gene. ii. a For he ſpake in a certayne place of the ſeuenth daye, on this wyſe. * And God dyd reſt the ſeuenth daye from all hys worckes.

B And in thys place agayne: They ſhal not enter into my reſt. Seyng therfore it foloweth, that ſome muſte enter thereinto, and they to (whom it was firſte preached) entred not therin for vnbeleefes ſake, he appoynteth a certayne daye after ſo longe a tyme ſayinge in Dauid (as it is rehearſed) this daye yf ye wyll heare his voyce, harde not your hertes. For if Ioſua had geue thē reſt, then wolde he not afterwarde haue ſpoken of another day. There remayneth therfore yet a reſt to the people of GOD. For he that is entred into hys reſt, hath ceaſed alſo from hys owne worckes, as God dyd from hys. Let vs ſtudy therfore to entre in to that reſt, leſt any man fall after the ſame enſample of vnbeleefe. For the worde of God is quicke, and mightie in operacion, & C charper then any two edged ſwearde: and entreth through, euen vnto the deuydynge a ſonder of the ſoule and the ſpirite, and of the ioyntes and the marye: and is a diſcerner of the thoughtes, and of the intentes of the hert: neyther is there any creature that is not manyfeſt in the ſight of him: But al thinges are naked and open vnto the eyes of him, of whō we ſpeake. Seing then, that we haue a great hye prieſt which is entred into heauen (euen Ieſus the ſonne of God) let vs hold the profeſſiō (of our hope.) For D we haue not an hye prieſt, whiche can not Phil. 2. a haue compaſſyon on our infirmities: but *was in al pointes tempted, like as we are: Ex. 25, b but yet without ſinne. Let vs therefore go boldely vnto the * ſeate of grace, that we may obtayne mercy, & fynde grace to helpe in time of nede.

Wherof we woulde ſpeake many thynges, but they are harde to be vttered: ſeynge ye are dull of hearynge. For when as concernyng the tyme, ye ought to be teachers, yet haue ye nede againe, that we teach you the fyrſte principles of the worde of God: and are become ſuche as haue nede of * mylcke: and not of ſtronge meate: for euerye man 1. cor. 3. a that is fed with milcke, is inexperte in the word of righteouſnes. For in rebukynge them, he sayth vnto thē: Jere.31.c + Beholde the dayes come (sayth the lorde) and I wyl finisshe vpō the house of Israell, and vpon the house of Juda, a newe testament: not lyke the testament that I made with their fathers in that daye, whē I toke C them by the handes, to leade theym out of the lande of Egipte. For they continued not in my testament, and I regarded them not, sayth the Lorde. For this is the testament that I wyll make wyth the house of Israell: after those dayes (sayeth the lorde) I wyll put my lawes in their mindes, and in their hearres I wyll wryte them, and I wyl be their God, and they shalbe my peo-

In that he sayth a new testament, he hath worne out the old: for that which is worne out ꝫ wexed olde, is ready to vanish away.

MY brethren, esteme not the fayth of our lord Iesus Christ the lord of glory, A Deu.1.c * with respecte of persons. For yf ther come into your congregacion a man wearyng a golden ringe, clothed in goodly apparel, & there cometh also in a poore man in vile rayment, & ye haue a respect to hym that weareth the gay clothyng, & saye vnto hym: Syt thou here in a good place: & saye vnto the poore: stand thou ther, or sit here vnder my foote stole: are ye not parcial in your selues, and haue iudged after cupl thoughtes? Herken my deare beloued brethren. Hath not god chosen the poore of this worlde, such as are rich in fayth, and heyres of the kyngdome, which he promysed to them that loue him?
B But ye haue despysed the poore. Doe not rich men exercise tyrannye vpon you, and drawe you before the iudgementes seates.
Do they not speake euel of that good name whiche is called vpon ouer you? If ye fulfill the royall lawe, accordynge to the scripture, * (Thou shalte loue thyne neyghboure as thy selfe) ye doe well. But yf ye smale helme whither so euer the violence of the gouerner wyll. Euen so the tongue is a lytle membre also, and boasteth great thinges. Beholde, howe great a thynge a lytle fyre kyndleth, and the tonge is fyre, euen a worlde of wyckednes. So is the tonge set amonge oure membres, that it defyleth the whole bodye, and setteth a fyre all that we haue of nature, and is it selfe set a fire, euen of hell. All the natures of beastes, and of byrdes, and of serpentes, and thynges of the sea, are meked and tamed of the nature of man. But the tongue can no man tame. It is an vnruelye enyl, full of deadlye poyson. Therewith blesse we God the father, and therewith curse we men, • whiche are made after the ymage & similitude of god. Out of one mouth proceadeth blessyng and cursinge. My brethren, these thinges ought not so to be. Doeth a fountayne sende forth at one place swete water and bytter also? Can the figge tree (my brethren) beare olyue berryes: ether a vine beare figges? so can no fountayne gene both salt water and fresh also. If any man be wise and endued with knowledge among you, let him shew his worcke out of good conuersation with meknes of wisdome. But yf ye haue bytter enuynge & stryfe in your heart, reioyce not: nether be lyars agaynste the trueth: For suche wisdome descendeth not from above: but is earthy, natural, and deuelysh. For where enuynge and stryfe is, there is vnstablenes, and all maner of cuyll worckes. But the wisdome that is from above, is fyrst pure, then peaceable, gentle, & easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good frutes, without iudging, without simulation: yea, and the frute of ryghteousnes is sowē in peace, of them that maynteyne peace.

FRom whence cometh warre, & fighting amonge you? come they not here hence? euen of your lustes, that fight in your membres? ye lust, & haue not. Ye enuy & haue indignacion, & can not obtayne. Ye fight & war. Ye haue not because ye aske not. Ye aske & receaue not, because ye aske amisse: euen to consume it vpon youre lustes. Ye aduouterers, and womē that breake matrimonye: knowe ye not howe that • the frendshyppe of the world, is enmytie wyth God? Whosoeuer therfore wyll be a frende of the worlde, is made the enemye of God. Ether do ye thynke that the scripture saith in vayne, The sprite that dwelleth in vs, lusteth euen contrary to enuye: but geueth more grace? wherfore, he saith: god resysteth the proude, but geueth grace vnto the lowly. Submit youre selues therfore to God: but • resist the deuil, & he will flye frō you. Draw nye vnto GOD, & he wyl draw nye to you. Clense your handes ye synners, and pourge your hertes ye wauerynge mynded. Suffre afflyccions: and mourne and wepe. Let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your ioye to heuinesse. • Humble your selues in the sight of the Lorde, and he shal lyfte you vp. Backbyte not one another, brethren. He that backbiteth hys brother, and he that iudgeth hys brother, backbiteth the law, and iudgeth the lawe. But & yf thou iudge the lawe, thou arte not an obseruer of the lawe, but a iudge. There is one lawe geuer (and iudge) whiche is able to saue and to destroye. • What arte thou that iudgest another? Goe to nowe ye that saye: • to daye and to morowe let vs go into such a citie, and continue there a yeare, & bye & sell, and winne: & yet can not ye tell, what shall happē on the morow. For what thing is your life? It is euen a vapour, that appeareth for a litell tyme, & then vanisheth away: For that ye ought to say: • if the lord wyll, and yf we liue, let vs do this or that. But nowe ye reioyce in your boastynges. All suche reioysynge is cuyl. Therfore • to him that knoweth how to do good, & doeth it not, to him it is sinne.

I vnto you, that ye sinne not. And if any man sinne, we haue an aduocate with the father, Jesus Christ the righteous, and he it is that obtayneth grace for oure synnes, not for oure sinnes oneliye: but also for the sinnes of all the worlde. And Job. 13. d herby we are sure that we know him, if we dement I wryte vnto you, that is true in hym, and the same is true also in you: for the darcknesse is past, & the true light now

A Behold, what loue the father hath shewed on vs, that we shoulde be called Luc.xx.f Joh.i.b (& be in dede) ✠ sonnes of god. For this cause the worlde knoweth you not, because it knoweth not him. Dearly beloued, now are we the sonnes of God, & yet it doth not appeare, what we shalbe. But we know that whē it shal apeare, we shalbe lyke hi. For we shal see him as he is. And euery mā that hath this hope in him, pourgeth hym selfe, euē as he also is pure. Whosoeuer cōmitteth sinne, committeth vnrighteousnes also, and sinne is vnrighteousnes. And ye knowe that he appeared, to take away oure sinnes, and in him is no synne. As many as byde in hym, sinne not: whosoeuer sinneth, hath not sene him, neither knowē him. Babes, let no man deceaue you. He that doeth B righteousnes, is righteous, euen as he is Gene.3.a Joh.8.f righteous. He that committeth sinne, is of the deuell: ✠ for the deuell sinneth sence the beginning. For this purpose appeared the sonne of God, to loose the workes of the deuell. Whosoeuer is borne of God, sinneth not: for his sede remayneth in hym, & he cannot sinne, because he is borne of god. In this are the children of God knowen, and the children of the deuell. Whosoeuer doeth not righteousnes, is not of God, neither he that loueth not his brother. For C this is the tydynges, that ye hearde frō the Gene.4.b begynnynge, that ye shoulde loue one another, not as ✠ Cayne which was of that wycked, and slew his brother. And wherfore slewe he hym? Because his owne workes were euel, & his brothers good. ✠ Marueyle not my brethren, though the worlde hate you. We know, that we are trāslated from death vnto lyfe, because we loue the Leu.19.d brethren. ✠ He that loueth not his brother, abydeth in deathe. Whosoeuer hateth his brother, is a mānslayer. And ye knowe, that no mānslayer hath eternall lyfe abidynge in hym. Herby perceaue we loue: Because he gaue his lyfe for vs: and we ought to gene our liues for the brethren. But whoso hath this worldes good, & ✠ seyth his brother Deu.15.b haue nede: and shutteth vp his compassion from hym: howe dwelleth the loue of God in him? My babes, let vs not loue in word, neither in tonge: but in dede & in veritie.
Herby we knowe, that we are of the veritie, and can quiet oure heartes before him. For yf our heart condēpne vs, god is greater then our hearte, and knoweth all thynges. Dearly beloued, if our heart condēpne
D vs not: then haue we trust to godward: and ✠ whatsoeuer we aske, we receaue of hym, because we kepe his cōmaundementes. and do those thinges, whiche are pleasynge in his sight. And this is his cōmaundement, that we beleue on the name of his sonne Jesus Christe, and loue one another as he gaue commaundement. And he that kepeth hys commaundementes, dwelleth in him, & he in him, hereby we knowe that he abydeth in vs, euen by the spirite whyche he hath geuen vs.

Dearlye beloued, ✠ beleue not euerye A spirit: but proue the spirites, whether they are of god or not, for ✠ many false prophetes are gone out into the worlde. Herby shal ye knowe the spirite of god. Euerye spirit that cōfesseth that Jesu Christ is come in the fleashe, is of God. And euerye spyrite which confesseth not that Jesus Christe is come in the flesh, is not of God. And this is that spirite of Antichriste, of whome ye haue heard, howe that he shulde come: and euen nowe alreadye is he in the worlde. Litle chyldren, ye are of God, and haue ouercome them: for greater is he that is in you, then he that is in the world. They are of the worlde, therefore speake they of the worlde, and the worlde heareth them. We are of God. He that knoweth god, heareth vs: he that is not of God, heareth vs not.

woylde. There is no feare in loue, but parfyte loue casteth oute feare, for feare hathe paynfulnes. He that feareth, is not parfite in loue. We loue him, for he loued vs firste. If a man say, I loue God, and yet hate his brother, he is a lyar. For howe can he that loued not hys brother whom he hathe sene, loue God whom he hath not sene? And this commaundement haue we of hym: that he whiche loueth God, shoulde loue hys brother also.

Who so euer beleueth that Jesus is Christ, is borne of God. And euery one that loueth him whiche begat, loueth him also whiche was begotte of hi. By this we know, that we loue the chyldren of God, when we loue God, & kepe his cõmaundementes. For this is the loue of God, that we kepe his cõmaundementes, & his commaundementes are not greuous. For al that is borne of God, ouercõmeth the woylde. And this is the victory that ouercõmeth the woylde, euen our faith. Who is it that ouercommeth the woylde: but he which beleueth, that Jesus is the sonne of God? This Jesus Christe is he that came by water and bloude, not by water onelye but by water and bloude. And it is the spirite that beareth wytnesse, because the spirite is trueth. (For there are three whiche beare recorde in heuẽ, the father, the worde, and the holy goste. And these three are one.) And there are three whiche beare recorde (in earth) the spirite and water, & bloude, and these three are one. If we receaue the witnes of men, the witnes of God is greater. For this is the wytnesse of GOD (that is greater) which he testified of hys sonne. He that beleueth on the sõne of God, hathe the witnes in him selfe. He that beleueth not God, hath made him a lyar, because he beleued not the recorde that GOD gaue of his sonne. And this is that recorde, howe that God hath geuen vnto vs eternal lyfe, and this lyfe is in hys sonne. He that hath the sonne, hath lyfe, and he that hathe not the sonne of God, hathe not lyfe. These thynges haue I wrytten vnto you, that beleue on the name of the sonne of GOD, that ye maye knowe, howe that ye haue eternall lyfe, and that ye maye beleue on the name of the sonne of GOD. And thys is the truste that we haue in hym: that yf we aske anye thynge accordyng to his wil, he heareth vs. And yf we knowe that he heare vs, what soeuer we aske, we knowe, that we haue the petitions, that we desire of him. If anye man se hys brother synne a synne not vnto deathe, let him aske, & he shall geue him life for thẽ that synne not vnto death. Ther is a synne vnto death, for which saye I not that a man should praye. All vnrighteousnes is synne, & there is synne not vnto death. We know, that whosoeuer is borne of God, synneth not: but he that is begotten of God, kepeth him selfe, and that wicked toucheth him not. We knowe that we are of God, and the woyld is altogether set on wickednes. We know, that the sonne of God is come, & hath geuen vs a minde to know him which is true: and we are in him that is true, thyough his sonne Jesu Christ. This same is very God, & eternal lyfe. Babes kepe your selues from ymages. Amen.

The Elder to the elect lady and her chyldren, whome I loue in the truth. and not I onely, but also al that haue knowen the trueth, for the truethes sake whiche dwelleth in vs, and shall be in vs for euer. With vs shall be grace, mercy, and peace from God the father, and from the lord Jesus Christe the sonne of the father, in trueth and loue. I reioyced greatelye, that I founde of thy children walking in trueth, as we haue receaued a commaundement of the father. And now beseech I the lady, not as thoughe I wrote a newe commaundement vnto the, but that same which we haue had from the begynnyng, that we shoulde loue one another. And this is the loue, that we should walcke after his commaundemente. This commaundement is (that as ye haue hearde from the begynnyng) ye shoulde walcke in it. For manye deceauers are entred into the woylde, whiche confesse not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesche. Thys is a deceaner & an antichrist. Loke on your selues that we lose not that we haue wroughte: but that we may haue a ful reward. Whosoeuer transgresseth and bydeth not in the doctrine of Christe, hathe not God. He that endureth in the doctrine of Christ, hath both the father & the sonne If there come anye vn to you, & bring not this learynge, him receaue not to house, neyther bydde him God spede. For he that biddeth him God spede, is partaker of his euill workes. Beholde, I haue tolde you before, that ye should not be ashamed in the day of the lord. I had many thynges to wryte vnto, neuertheleſſe I would not wrote with paper & ynkebut I trust to come vnto you, & speake with you mouth to mouth, that our ioye may be full: the sonnes of thy elect sister greete the. ¶ The first Chapter.

A THe reuelaciō of Jesu christ, which god gaue vnto him, for to shew vnto his seruātes thinges whiche must shortly com to passe. And whē he had sent, he shewed by his angel vnto his seruaūt John, which bare recorde of the word of god, & of the testimony of Jesus Christ, and of all thynges that he sawe. Happye is he that readeth, and they that heare the wordes of the prophesye, & kepe those thinges which are writtē therin. For the time is at hande. John to the .vii. congregatiōs in Asia. Grace be vnto you, and peace from him, whiche is, & whiche was, & whyche is to come, and from the seuen spirites, which are before his trone, & from Jesus Christe, which is a faythfull witnes, and first begotten of the dead: & Lorde ouer the kynges of the earth. Vnto him that * loued vs, B Heb. xi. d and washed vs from our sinnes in his owne bloud, & and made vs kynges and prestes vnto God hys father, be glorye, & dominion for euermore. Amen. * Beholde, he cometh with cloudes, and al eyes shal see hym, and they also which pearsed hym. And all kynredes of the earth shal wayle, (ouer him) euen so: Amen. I am Alpha, and Omega, the begynnyng and the endyng, sayeth the Lord almighty, whyth is and which was, & whych is to come. I John your brother, and companion in tribulaciō, & in the kingdome and patience in Jesu Christe, was in the yle that is called Pathemos, for the worde of God, and for the witnessynge of Jesu Christe: I was in the spirite on a sondaye, and heard behinde me a great voyce, as it had bene of a trompe, sayinge: I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the laste. That thou seyst, wryte in a boke, and sende it vnto the seuen congregacions which are in Asia, vnto Ephesus, and vnto Smirna, & vnto Pergamos, and vnto Thiatira, & vnto Sardis, and vnto Philadelphia, & vnto Laodicia. And I tourned backe to se the voyce that spake to me. And when I was turned: I sawe seuen golden candlestickes, and in the myddest of the candlestickes, one lyke vnto the sonne of man, clothed wyth a lynnen garmente downe to the fete, and gyrde about the pappes wyth a golden gyrdle. Hys heade, and hys heeres were white as white wolle, and as snowe: & his eyes were as a flame of fyre: and hys fete lyke vnto brasse, as though they brent in a fornace, and his voyce, as the sounde of many waters. And he had in his ryghte hande .vii. starres. And out of hys mouthe went a sharpe two edged swearde. * And hys face shone, euen as the Sōne in hys strength. And whē I sawe hym, I fel at hys fete, as dead. And he layd hys ryght hand vpon me, sayinge vnto me: feare not. * I am the fyrste and the laste, and am alyue, and was dead. And beholde, * I am alyue for euermore and haue the keyes of hell and of deathe. Wryte therefore the thynges whiche thou hast sene, and the thynges whiche are, & the thinges which must be fulfilled hereafter: the misterye of the .vii. starres whiche thou sawest in my ryght hand, and the .vii. golden candlestickes. The .vii. starres are the messengers of the seuen cōgregacions. And the seuen candlestickes whiche thou sawest, are the seuen congregacions. w mat.17.b Esa.44.B Rom.6.b

VNto the messenger of the congregaciō of Ephesus wryte these thinges, sayth he that holdeth the seuē starres in his right hād, & that walketh in the midst of the seuen golden candlestickes. I know thy workes, & thy labour, & thy pacience, & how thou canst not forbeare them which are cuel: & hast examined the, which say they are apostles, & are not: & hast founde them lyars, and hast suffred. And hast pacience: and for my names sake, hast laboured, and hast not fainted. Neuertheles I haue somewhat agaynste the, because thou hast lefte thy fyrste loue. Remembre therefore from whence thou arte fallen, and repent, and doe the firste workes, Or els I wil come vnto the shortly, and wyl remoue thy candlestycke out of his place, except thou repent. But this thou hast, because thou hatest the deedes of the * Nicolaitās, whiche dedes I also hate. Let him that hath eares, heare what the spirite sayeth vnto the congregaciōs. To him that ouercometh, wyll I geue to eate of the * tree of lyfe, whyche is in the myddest of the Paradyse of God. And vnto the aungell of the congregacion of Smirna wryte: These thynges sayeth he that is first, & the last, which was dead, and C Act. vi. B Gene. 2. B C and is ryche. I know thy wozkes, and tri-bulacyon, and powertie, but thou art riche.

And I knowe the blaspheme of thē which call them selues Jewes, and are not: but are the congregacion of Sathan. Feare none of those thynges, which thou shalte suffre. Beholde, the Deuyll shall cast some of you into pryson, to tempte you, and ye shal haue tribulacion ten dayes. Be faythfull vnto the death, & I will giue the a crowne of lyfe. Let hym that hathe eares, heare, what the spirite saith to the congregacions.
He that ouercommeth, shall not be hurt of the seconde death. And to the messenger of the congregacyon in Pergamos, write: Thus sayeth he, whyche hathe the sharpe swearde with two edges: I know thy wo-zkes, and where thou dwellest, euen where Sathans seate is, & thou kepest thy name, and haste not denyed my fayth. And in my dayes Antipas was a faythfull witnesse of myne, whyche was slayne amonge you, where Sathan dwelleth. But I haue a fewe thynges agaynste thee: because thou haste there, them that mayntayne the doctryne of Balaam, which taught in Balache, to put occasion of sinne before the chil dren of Israell, that they shoulde eate of meate dedicate vnto Idols, and commytte fornicacion. Euen so haste thou them that maintaine the doctryne of the Nicolaitans, whiche thinge I hate. But be conuerted, or els I will come vnto the shortlye, and will fight agaynst them with the swearde of my mouthe. Let hym that hathe eares, heare what the spirite saieth vnto the congregations. To hym that ouercommeth, will I geue to eate Manna that is hydde, and will geue hym a white stone, and in the stone a newe name wrytten, which no man knoweth, saueing he that receaueth it. And vnto the messenger of the congregacion of Thiatira write. Thys sayeth the sonne of God, which hath eyes lyke vnto a flamme of fire, and his fete are lyke brasse: I knowe thy wozkes, & thy loue, seruyce, and fayth, and thy pacyence, and thy wdes, which are mo at the last then at the fyrste. Notwithstandynge I haue a fewe thynges agaynst thee, because thou sufferest that * woman Jesabell, whiche called her selfe a Prophe-tisse, to teache, and to deceaue my seruaūtes, to make them commytte fornicacion, and to eate meates offered vp vnto ydoles. And I gaue her space to repente of her fornicacy-on, and she repented not. Beholde, I will caste her into a bed, and them that commite fornicacyon with her, into great auersite, excepte they turne from their wdes. And I will kyll her children wyth death. And al the congregacions shall knowe, that I am he which searcheth the reynes and herstes. And I will geue vnto euery one of you accordynge vnto his wozkes. Vnto you I saye, and vnto other of them of Thiatira, as manye as haue not thys learnynge, and whiche haue not knowen the depnes of Sa than (as they say) I wil put vpon you none other burthen, but that whiche ye haue already. Holde faste till I come, & wholsoeuer ouercōmeth and kepeth my wozkes vnto the ende, to him will I geue power ouer nations, and he shal rule them with a rodde of yron: & as the vessels of a potter, shall they be broken to shiuers. Euen as I receaued of my father, so will I geue him the morning starre. Lette hym that hathe eares, heare, what the spirite sayeth to the congregacyons.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

AND write vnto the messenger of the congregacīō that is at Sardis: thus sayth he that hath the. vii. spirites of god, & the seuē starres. I know thy wozkes, thou hast a name that thou liuest, and thou art dead. Be awake, & strength the thinges which remaine, that are ready to die. For I haue not founde thy wozckes parfite before [my] god. Remēbre therfore, how thou hast receaued and herde, and hold fast, & repent.
* If thou shalt not watche, I will come on the as a theefe, & thou shalt not know what houre I will come vpon thee. Thou haste a fewe names in Sardis, which haue not defiled their garmentes, and they shal walck with me in white, for they are worthye. He that ouercommeth, shall be thus clothed in white araye, and I wil not put out his name out of the booke of lyfe, and I will con-fesse hys name before my father, and before his angels. Let him that hath eares, heare, what the spirite sayeth vnto the congrega-cions. And write vnto the angel of the con-gregacion of Philadelphia: this sayeth he, them selues Jewes, and are not, but do lye: Beholde, I will make them that they shall

AFter this I loked, and beholde a doze was open in heauen, and the fyrst voyce which I heard, was as it were of a trõpet talkinge with me, which said: come vp hither, & I will shewe the thinges, whyche must be fulfylled hereafter. And immediatly I was in the spirit: & behold, a seate was set in heauen, and one sat on the seate. And he that sat, was to looke vpon, lyke vnto a Jasper stone, & a Sardine stone. And there was a rayne bowe about the seat, in syght lyke to an Emeralde. And about the seate were. xxiiii. seates. And vpon the seates: xxiiii. elders syttige, clothed in whyte rayment, and had on their heades, crownes of golde. And out of the seate proceded lyghtnynges, and voyces, and thonderinges: and there were seuen lampes of fyre, burnynge before the seate, which are the seuen spirites of God. And before the seate there was a sea of glasse, lyke vnto Christal, and in the myddes of the seat, & rounde about the seat were foure beastes full of eyes before & behynde. And the fyrst beast was like a lion, & the seconde beaste lyke a calfe, & the thyrde beast had a face as a mã, & the fourth beaste was lyke a flynge Egle. And the foure beastes had eche one of them. vi. winges about hym, & they were full of eyes within. And they had no rest day nether nyght, saying:
* Holy, holy, holy, Lorde God almyghtye, Esay.6.a whiche was, and is, and is to come. And when those beastes gaue glory, & honour, & thãkes to him that sat on the seat, (whiche liueth for euer, & euer) the. xxiiii. elders fell downe before hym that sat on the trone, & worshipped him that liueth for euer, and cast their crownes before the trone, saying: thou arte worthy, O Lorde our God, to receaue glory, and honour, & power, for thou hast created all thinges, and for thy willes sake they are, and were created.

AND I saw in the right hande of him that sat in the trone, a boke written within, & on the backesyde, sealed with seuen seales. And I sawe a stroge Angel, which preached with a loude voyce: who is worthy to open the booke, and to lose the seales therof. And no man in heauẽ, nor in earth, nether vnder the earth, was able to open the boke, nether to loke therein. And I wept much because no mã was found worthy to open, and to reade the boke, nether to loke therein. And one of the elders sayde vnto me: wepe not. Behold a Lyon of the tryde of Juda, the rote of Dauid, hath obtained to open the booke, and to lose the seuen seales therof. And I beheld, and lo in the myddes of the seate, and of the foure beastes, and in the myddes of the elders, stode a lambe as thoughe he had bene kylled, hauynge seuen hornes, and seuen eyes, whiche are the seuen spirites of God, sente into all the worlde. And he came and toke the boke oute of the righte hande of hym that sat vpon the seate. And when he had taken the booke, the foure beastes & xxiiii. elders fell downe before the lambe, hauynge (euery one of them) harpes, & golden bials full of odours, whyche are the prayers of sainctes, and they songe a newe songe, saying: thou arte worthy to take the boke, and to open the seales therof: for thou waste kylled, and haste redemed vs vnto God by thy bloude out of all kynredes, and tonges, and people, and nacions, and hast made vs vnto our God, kynges and prestes, and we shall raygne on the earthe. And I beheld, and I herde the voyce of manye angels about the trone, and about the beastes, and the elders, and I herde thousandes thousandes,

thousandes, sayinge with a loude voyce: Worthye is the lambe that was kylled to receyue power and ryches, and wysedome, and strength, and honoure, and glorye, and blessynge. And all the creatures which are in heauen, and on the earthe, and vnder the erth, and in the sea, and all that are in them, hearde I, sayinge: blessynge, honour, glory, and power, be vpon hym that sytteth vpon the seate, and vnto the lambe for euermore. And the foure beastes sayde: Amen. And the xxiiii. elders fell vpon their faces, and worshipped hym that lyueth for euermore.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

A Nd I sawe, when the lambe opened one of the seales, & I herde one of the foure beastes say, as it were the noise of thonder: come and se: & I sawe. And beholde there was a whyte horse, and he that sat on him, had a bowe, & a crown was geuē vnto him, & he went forth conqueringe, and for to ouercome. And when he had opened the seconde seale, I herde the seconde beaste saye: come and se. And there wente out another horse that was redde, and power was geuen to hym that sat theron, to take peace from the earthe, and that they shulde kyll one another. & And there was geuen vnto hym a greate swearde. Esa. 27. 8 And when he had opened the thyrde seale, I herde the thyrde beaste saye: come and se. And I behelde, and lo, a blacke horse: and he that sat on hym, had a payre of balaunces in his hande. And I herde a voyce in the myddes of the foure beastes, saye: a measure of wheate for a penye, and three measures of barlye for a penye: and oyle, and wyne, se thou hurte not. And when he had opened the fourthe seale, I herde the voyce of the fourthe beaste say, come, and se: and I loked. And beholde a pale horse, and his name that satte on hym was death, and hel folowed after him, and power was geuen vnto them ouer the fourthe parte of the earthe, to kyll with swearde and with honger, and with deathe, that commeth of bermen of the earth. And when he had opened the fyfte seale, I sawe vnder the auter Iob. 22. b the soules of them that were kylled for the worde of God, and for the testimonye whiche they had, & they cryed with a loude voyce, sayinge: Howe longe tarye yet thou Lorde, holy & true, to iudge and to auenge our bloude on them that dwell on the erth? And longe white garmentes were geuen vnto euerye one of the. And it was sayd vnto the, that they shulde rest yet for a lytle season, vntyll the nūbre of their felowes, & their brethren, & of the that shulde be kylled as they were, were fulfylled. And I behelde, when he had opened the syxte seale: and lo, ther was a great erthquake, & the sōne was as blacke as sacke cloth made of heere. And the moone were al, rud as bloud, and the starres of heauen fel vnto the earth, euē as a fygge tree casteth from her vnripe fygges, when she is shaken of a myghtye wynde. And heauen vanyshed awaye, as a scrol when it is rolled together. And all mountaynes & yles were moued out of their places. And the kynges of the earthe, & the greate men, & the ryche men, and the chefe captaynes, and the myghty men, and euery bondemā, and euery fre man, hid the selues in dennes, & in rockes of the hylles: & sayd Ozee. x. Luk. 23 to the hylles and rockes: fal on vs, & hid vs from the presence of him that sytteth on the seate, and from the wrath of the lambe: for the great day of hys wrath is come, & who is able to endure?

A Nd after that I sawe foure Angels A stāde on the. iiii. corners of the earth holdinge the foure windes of the erth that the winde shuld not blow on the erth, nether on the sea, nether on any tre. ✝ And I saw another Angel ascende frō the rising of the sunne, whiche had the seale of the lyuynge God, & he cryed with a loude voyce to the foure Aungels (to whome power was geuen to hurte the earth, and the sea) sayinge: hurte not the earth nether the sea, nether the trees, tyll we haue sealed the seruauntes of our God in their foreheades. B And I herde the nūbre of thē which were sealed, & there were sealed an. C. & xliiii. M. Of all the trybes of the childzen of Israell. Of the tryde of Juda were sealed. xii. M. Of the tryde of Ruben were sealed. xii. M. Of the tryde of Gad were sealed. xii. M. Of the tryde of Aser were sealed. xii. M. Of the tryde of Nephtali were sealed. xii. M Of the tryde of Manasses were sealed. xii. M Of the tryde of Symeon were sealed. xii. M Of the tryde of Leuy were sealed. xii. M. Of the tryde of Jsacar were sealed. xii. M. Of the tryde of Zabulō were sealed. xii. M. Of the tryde of Joseph were sealed. xii. M. Of the tryde of Bē Jamin were sealed xii. M C After this I behelde, and lo, a greate multytude (whiche no man coulde numbre) of all nations, and people, and tonges, stode before the seate, and before the lambe, clothed with longe white garmentes, and palmes in their hādes, and cried with a loude voyce, sayinge: saluacīō be ascrybed to hym that sytteth vpon the seate of our God, and vnto the lambe. And all the Aungels stode in the compase of the seat, and of the elders, and of the foure beastes, and fell before the seat on their faces, and worshypped God, sayinge: Amen. Blessynge, and glory, & wis-

bowe & thandes, and honoure, and power, and might be vnto oure God for euermore. Amen. ¶ And one of the elders answered, sayinge vnto me: what are these which are araped in longe white garmentes, & whēce came they? And I sayde vnto hym: Lorde, thou woteste. And he sayde to me: these are they, whiche came out of great tribulacīō, and made their garmentes large, & made them whyte by the blonde of the lābe: therfore are they in the presence of the seate of God, and serue him day and nyght in hys temple, and he that sytteth in the seat wil dwell amonge them. They shall honger nomore, nether thyrste nether shal the Son light on them, nether anye heate. For the lambe which is in the myddes of the seate shal fede thē & shal leade them vnto fountaynes of lyuynge water, & God shal wype awaye all teares from their eyes.

A ND when he had opened the seuenth seale, ther was stīlnesse in heauē, about the space of halfe an houre. And I saw (viii.) angels standinge before God, and to thē wer geuē seuē trompettes. And another angel came & stode before the aulter, hauynge a golden senser, & much of odoures was geuē vnto him, that he should offer of the prayers of all saynctes vpon the golden aulter which was before the seate. And the smoke of the odoures whyche came of the prayers of all saynctes, ascended vp before God out of the angels hande. And the aungel toke the senser, & filled it wyth fyre of the aulter, & caste it into the earthe, & voyces were made, & thondrynges, & lyghtninges, & earthquakes. And the seuen angels whyche had the seuen trompettes, prepared them selues to blowe. The fyrste aungel blewe, and there was made hayle, and fyre, which were mingled with bloude, and they were caste into the earth: & the thirde parte [of the erth was set on fire, & the third part] of trees was burnte, & all grene grasse was brent. And the seconde angel blewe: and as it were a great mountayne burnynge with fyre was cast into the sea, & the thyrde part of the sea turned to bloude, and the thyrde part of the creatures which had lyfe, dyed, & the thirde part of shyppes were destroied. And the thyrde angel blewe, and there fell a greate starre frō heauen, burnynge as it were a lampe, & it fell into the thyrde parte of the riuers, & into fountaynes of waters, and the name of the starre is called wormwode. And the thyrde parte was turned to wormwod. And many men dyed of the waters, because they wer made byttter. And the fourth aungel blewe, & the thyrde parte of the sunne was smytten, & the thirde parte of the moone, & the thyrde parte of starres: so that the thirde parte of thē was darkened. And the daye was smytten, that the thyrde part of it should not shyne, & lykewyse the nyght. And I behelde, & heard an aungel flyinge thorow the myddes of heauē, sayinge with a loude voyce: Woo, woo, to the inhabiters of the earthe, because of the voyces to come of the trompe of the three angels, which were yet to blowe.

A ND the fifte angel blewe, & I sawe a starre fal frō heauē vnto the earthe. And to him was geuē the keye of the bottomeles pit: And he opened the bottomelesse pit, & the smoke of the pit arose as the smoke of a great fornaise. And the sūne, and the ayer wer darckened by the reason of the smoke of the pit. And ther came oute of the smoke locustes vpon the earth, & vnto thē was geuē power, as the scorpiōs of the erth haue power. And it was cōmāūded thē, that they should not hurt the grasse of the erth: nether any grene thing, nether any tre: but onely those men which haue not the seale in their foreheades. And to thē was cōmāūded that they should not kil thē, but that they should be vexed .v. monethes, & their payne was as the payne that commeth of a scorpiō, when he hathe stōge a mā. And in those dayes shal mē seke death, and shal not fynde it, and shal desyre to dye, and deathe shal fle frō them. And the symilitude of the locustes was like vnto horses prepared vnto battaile, & on their heades wer as it were crownes, lyke vnto golde, & their faces were as it had bene the faces of men. And they had heere as the heere of women. And their teeth was as the teeth of lyons. And they had habbergions, as it were habbergions of yron. And the sounde of their wynges, was as the sounde of charettes, when many horses runne together to battayle. And they had tayles lyke vnto scorpiōs, & there were fynges in their tayles. And their power was to hurte men, fyue monethes. And they had a king ouer thē, which is the angel of the bottomelesse pyt, whose name in the Hebrue tonge, is Abadon: but in the Greke tonge, Apollyon, that is to saye: a destroyer. One woo is paste, & beholde, two woos come yet after this. And the fyrste aungel blewe, and I heard a voyce frō the foure corners of the golden aulter, whyche is before God, sayinge to the fyrste aungel, which had the trōpe: Louse the foure aungels, which are bounde in the great riuer Euphrates. And the foure aungels were loosed: which wer prepared for an houre for a day, for a moneth, & for a yeare for to slaye the .iii. part of mē. And the nombre of hostes of warre were .xx. thousande tymes .x. M. And I heard the nũbre of them: & thus I saw the hozses in a vision, & thẽ that sat on thẽ, hauing fyre habbergions of a Jacinct colour, & bzimstone, & the heades of the hozses were as the heades of the lyons. And out of their mouthes went forthe fyre and smoke, & bzymstone. And of these thre was the thyrde part of mẽ kylled: that is to say, of fyre, smoke, & bzymstone: which proceed out of the mouthes of them: For their power was in their mouthes, & in their tailes, for their tayles were lyke vnto serpentes, and had heades, & with thẽ they dyd hurt: And the remnaunt of the men whiche were not kylled by these plages, repented not of the dedes of their handes, that they shoulde not worshyppe deuils, & ymages of gold & syluer, and bzasse, and stone, and of woode, which nether can se, nether heare, nether go. Also they repẽted not of their murther, and of their sorcery, nether of their fornication, nether of their thefte.

AND I saw another mighty aungell come down frõ heauen, clothed with a cloude, & the raine bow vpon hys head. And his face as it were the sunne, and his fete as it were pilers of fyre, & he had in his hande a litel boke open, and he put his right fote vpõ the sea, & his left fote on the erth. And cried with a loude voyce, as whẽ a lion roreth. And whẽ he had cryed, seuen thõders spake their voyces. And when the .vii. thonders spake their voyces, I was about to write. And I heard a voyce frõ heuen, saying vnto me: seale vp thole thinges which the .vii. thõders spake, and writ thẽ not. And the Aungell which I sawe stande vpon the sea, & vpon the earth, lifte vp his hande to heuen, & sware by him that liueth for euermore, which created heuen, and the thynges that therin are. ¶ And the erth and the thiges that therin are, & the sea, & the thinges which therin are: that ther should be no lenger tyme, but in the dayes of the voyce of the seuẽth aungell, when he shall beginne to blowe: euen the misterye of God shalbe finyshed, as he preached by his seruaũtes the prophetes. And the voice which I herde frõ heuen, spake vnto me agayne, & sayde: * go & take the lytle boke whiche is open in the hande of the angel whiche standeth vpon the sea, & vpon the earth. And I went vnto the angel, & said to him: gene me the litel boke. & he said vnto me: take it, & eate it vp, & it shall make thy belye bitter, but it shal be in thy mouth as swete as honye. * And I toke the lytel boke oute of his hande, and eate it vp, & it was in my mouth as swete as honye: and as soone as I had eaten it, my belly was bitter. And he sayde vnto me: thou muste prophecye agayne amonge the people, and nacyons, & tonges, and to many kynges.

AND then was geuen me a rede lyke vnto a rodde, and it was sayde vnto me. Rise & meate the temple of God, and the aulter, and them that worshyppe therin, & the quear which is within the temple, cast out and meate it not, for it is geuẽ vnto the Gentils, & the holy citie shal they tread vnder fote .xlii. monethes. And I wil geue power vnto my two wytnesses, & they shal prophecie a thousãde, two hũdred & .lx. dayes clothed in a sack cloth. These are .ii. olyue trees, & two candelsticks, standynge before the God of the earth. And yf any mã wil hurt them, fyre shal procede out of their mouthes, & consume their enemyes. And yf any man wil hurt them, this wise muste he be kylled. These haue power to shut heuen that it rayne not in the dayes of their prophesynge: and haue power ouer waters to turne them to blond, and to smyte the earth with all maner plages, as oftẽ as they wyl. And when they haue finished their testimonye, the beaste that came out of the bottõlesse pit shall make warre agaynst thẽ, and shal ouercome thẽ, & kil thẽ. And their bodyes shall lye in the stretes of the great citie, which spiritually is called Sodome & Egipt, where our Lord was crucified. And they of the people and kinredes, & tõges, & they of the nations, shall se their bodyes thre daies & an halfe, & shal not suffre their bodyes to be put in graues. And they that dwell vpon the earth, shall reioyce ouer thẽ & be glad, & shal sẽd giftes one to another, for these .ii. prophetes vexed thẽ that dwelt on the earth. And after .iii. daies & an halfe, the spirite of lyfe frõ God entred into thẽ. And they stode vp vpon their fete, & greate feare came vpon them which sawe thẽ. And they herd a great voyce frõ heauẽ, sayinge: vnto thẽ: come vp hither. And they ascẽded vp into heuen in a cloud, and their enemyes saw them. And the same houre was there a great earthquake, and the tenth part of the citie fel, and in the earthquake were slayne names of men, seuen .M. & the remnaũt were feared, & gaue the glory to the God of heuẽ. The secõde woo is paste, & behold, the .iii. woo wil come anone. And the seuẽth angel blewe, and there were made great voyces in heuen, saying: the kyngdoes of this worlde are our Lordes, & his Christes, and he shal raigne for euermore. Amẽ. And the .xxiiii. elders, whiche syt before God on their seates, fes, fel vpon their faces, & worshipped god saying: we gene the thãckes, O Lorde God almighty: which art & wast, & art to come, for thou hast receaued thy great might, and hast raigned. And the nacyons wer angery, & thy wrath is come, & the time of the dead that they should be iudged, and that thou shouldest gene reward vnto thy seruantes the prophetes & saintes, & to thẽ that feare thy name, smal & great, & shouldest destroy thẽ, which destroy the earth. And the tẽple of God was opened in heauen, & there were sene in his temple, the arke of his testamẽt, and there folowed lyghtenynges, & voyces and thonderynges, and earthquake, & much hayle.

¶ The. xii. Chapter.

AND there apeared a greate wonder in heauen: A woman clothed wyth the sunne, & the mone vnder herfete, and vpon her heade a crowne of twelue star res. And she was wyth chylde, and cryed trauayling in birth, and payned redy to be delyuered. And there appeared another wõ der in heuen, for behold, a great red dragon hauynge seuen heades, & ten hornes, and crownes vpon his heades: & hys tayle drue the third part of the starres of heuen and cast thẽ to the earth. And the dragon stode before the woman, which was redy to be deliuered: for to deuoure her child as soone as it were borne. And she brought forthe a man childe, which should rule al nacions with a rodde of yrõ. And her sonne was taken vp vnto God, & to hys seate. And the woman fled into wildernesse, wher she had a place prepared of God, that they should fede her there a. M. ii. hundred & lx. dayes.
And there was a great battayle in heuen, Michaell and his aungels fought with the dragon, & the dragon fought & his angels, and preuayled not, neither was their place fonnde any more in heauen. And the greate dragon, that olde serpent, called the deuil & Sathanas, was cast out. Which deceaueth all the world. And he was cast into the erth & his angels wer cast out also with him.
And I heard a loude voice, saying: in heuẽ is nowe made saluacion & strength, & the kyngdome of our God, & the power of hys Christ. For the accuser of our brethren is cast downe, which accused thẽ before our God, day & nyght. And they ouercame him by the blode of the Lãbe, & by the worde of their testimony, & they loued not their lynes vnto the death. Therefore reioyce hea-uens, & ye that dwell in them. Woo to the inhabiters of the earth, and of the sea: for the deuyl is come downe vnto you, which hath great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a shorte tyme. And when the dragon saw that he was cast vnto the erth, he persecuted the woman, which bronghe forth the mã child. And to the woman wer geuen two wynges of a greate Egle, that she myght flye into the wildernes into her place, where she is norished for a tyme, tymes, & halfe a tyme, frõ the presence of the serpẽt. And the dragõ cast out of his mouth water after the woman, as it had bene a ri-uer, because she should haue bene caughte of the floud. And the erth holpe the womã, & the earth opened her mouth, & swalowed vp the riuer, which the dragon caste oute of his mouth. And the dragõ was wroth with the womã, & went, & made warre with the remnaunt of her sede, which kepe the cõmandemẽtes of God, & haue the testimony of Jesus Christ. And he stode on the sea sande.

AND I saw a beast rise out of the sea, hauing. vii. heades, & x. hornes, & vpõ his hornes. x. crownes, & vpon his heade, the name of blasphemye. And the beast which I saw, was like a cat of the montayne, & his fete wer as the fete of a beare, & his mouth, as the mouth of a lyõ. And the dragõ gaue hi his power & his seat, & great authoritie: & I sawe one of his heades as it were wonded to deth, & his deadly wond was healed. And all the world wondred at the beast, & they worshipped the dragon, which gaue power vnto the beast, and they worshipped the beast, sayinge: who is lyke vnto the beast? who is able to warre wyth him. And ther was geuẽ vnto him a mouth that spake greate thynges & blasphemyes, & power was geuẽ vnto him, to do. xlii. mo nethes. And he opened his mouth vnto blas phemy against god, to blaspheme his name and his tabernacle, & thẽ that dwel in heuẽ.
And it was geuen vnto him to make warre with the saintes, & to ouercome them. And power was geuen him ouer all kynred and people, & tong, & nacion, & al that dwel vpõ the earth worshipte him: whose names are not wrytten in the boke of lyfe of the lãbe, which was kylled frõ the beginnyge of the worlde. If anye man haue an eare let hym heare. He that leadeth into captyuyte, shall go into captiuite: & he that killeth with a swearde, must be killed with a swerde. Here is the pacience, & the fayth of the saynctes.
And I behelde another beast commynge vp out of the earth, & he had two hornes lyke a lãbe, & he spake as did the dragon. And he dyd all that the fyrste beaste coulde do in his presence, & he caused the earthe, and thẽ which dwel therin, to worshyp the first beast, whose deadly wond was healed. And he did greate wonders, so that he made fyre come C downe from heauen in the sight of mē. And deceaued thē that dwelte on the earthe, by the meanes of those signes whiche he had power to do in the sight of the beast, sayinge to them that dwelt on the earth: that they should make an image vnto the beast, which hathe the wounde of a swearde, and did liue. And he had power to geue a spirit vnto the ymage of the beast, & that the ymage of the beast should speake, & should cause that as many as would not worshippe the ymage of the beaste, should be killed. And he made al, both smal & great, rich & poore, fre & bonde, to receaue a marke in their right handes or in their foreheddes. And that no man might bye or sell, saue he that had the marke, or the name of the beaste, or her D the numbre of his name. Here is wisdome.

Let him that hath wit, counte the nūbre of the beast. For it is the numbre of a mā, and his nūbre is fyue hūdred, threscore and sixe.

¶ The.xiiii.Chapter.

A AND I loked, & lo, a lābe stode on the mount Sion, and with him an.C. and xliiii. thousande hauyng his name & his fathers name written in their foreheds.
And I heard a voyce frō heauē, as the sounde of many waters. & as the voyce of a great thonder. And I herde the voyce of harpers harpynge with their harpes. And they sōg as it were a new sōg, before the seate, & before the foure beastes, & the elders, & no man coulde learne that songe, but the hundred & xliiii. M. which were redemed from the erth. These are they, which were not defyled wyth wemen, for they are virgins.
B These seke after the lābe whithersoeuer he goeth. These wer redemed frō men, beyng the first frutes vnto God, and to the lambe, and in their mouthes was founde no gyle. For they are without spot before the trone of God. And I sawe another aungel flie in the middes of heauen, hauinge the euerlastynge Gospel, to preache vnto them that syt and dwel on the earth, & to all nations, kynred des, & tonges & people, saying with a loude Ecc.14.a voice: * Feare God, & geue honour to him, for the houre of his iudgement is come: and worship him, that made heauen & earth, & the sea, and fountaynes of water. And there Esai.21.c followed another aungel sayinge: * Baby-Jer.51.a lon is fallen, is fallen, that greate citye, for she made all nations drynche of the wyne of her fornication. And the thyrde aungell followed them sayinge: with a loude voyce.
If any man worship the beast & his image, & receaue hys marcke in his forheade, or on his hande, the same shal drincke the wyne C of the wrathe of God, whiche is powred in the cup of his wrath. And he shalbe punisshed in fyre & brimstone, before the holye angels, & before the lambe. And the smoke of their tormēt ascēdeth vp euermore. And they haue no rest daye nor nyghte, whyche worship the beast & his image, & whosoeuer receaueth the pynte of hys name. Here is the pacience of saynctes. Here are they that kepe the cōmaundementes & the fayth of Jesu. And I heard a voyce frō heauē sayinge vnto me: write. Blessed are the deade, whiche here after dye in the Lorde, euē so sayth the spirite: that they rest frō their labours, but their workes folow thē. And I loked, & beholde a white cloude & vpon the cloude one sittinge like vnto the sonne of man, hauynge on his head a golden crowne, and in his hand a sharpe sikle. And another angel came out of the tēple, cryinge with a loude voyce vnto hym that sate on the cloude.
* Thrust in thy sikle, & reape, for thy tyme Joel.3.c. is come to reape, for the corne of the earth D is ripe. And he that sat on the cloude, thrust in his sikle on the earth, & the earth was reped. And another angel came out of the tēple, which is in heauē, hauinge also a sharp sikle. And another angel came out from the aultre, whiche hadde power ouer fyre, and cried with a loude voyce to hi that had the sharpe sikle, and sayd: thrust in thy sharpe sikle and gather the clusters of the earthe, for her grapes are ripe. And the Aungell thrust in his sharpe sikle on the earth, and cut downe the grapes of the vineparde of the earth: And caste them into the greate wyne fatte of the wrathe of God, and the winefat was troden without the citye, and bloude came out of the fate, euen vnto the horse bridels, by the space of a thousand, and.bi.C furlonges.

AND I sawe another signe i heauen great & meruelous, seuē angels, ha- A uing the seuē laste plagues, for in thē is fulfilled the wrath of god. And I saw as it wer a glasse sea, mingled with fire and thē that had gotten victorye of the beast, & his ymage, & of the nūbre of his name, stāde on the glasse sea, hauinge the harpes of God, & they sange the songe of Moses the seruaunt of God, & the songe of the lambe, saying: great, & marueilous are thy workes:
* Lorde god almyghtye, iust & true are thy Esa.2.d wayes, thou kynge of saynctes. Who shall Jer.51.a not feare, o lorde, & glorifye thy name? For thou only art holy, & al gentyls shall come & worship before thee, for thy iudgemētes are made manifest. And after that, I loked, & beholde thē tēple of the tabernacle of resimony was open in heauen, & the seuē an- B gels came out of the temple, which had the vii plagues, clothed in pure & bright linnē,

and

& hauyng theyr breastes gyrded with goldē girdels. And one of the foure beastes gaue vnto the seuen aungels seuen golden vials ful of the wrath of God, whiche lyueth for euermore. And the temple was full of the smoke of the glory of god & of his power, & no mā was able to entre into the tēple, to the seuē plages of the. vii. angels wer fulfilled.

a AND I heard a great voyce out of the tēple, saying to the seuen angels: go your waies, powre out your vials of wrath vpō the erth. And the first angel wēt, & powred out his vial vpō the earth, & ther fel a noysom, & a sore botch vpō the mē which the had the marke of the beast, & vpō them which worshipped his ymage. And the. ii. angell shed out hys vial vpon the sea, and it turned as it wer into the blouw of a dead man: & euery lyuyng thyng died in the sea. And the thyrde angell shed oute hys vyall b vpon the riuers & fountaynes of waters, & they turned to blonde. And I hearde an angell say: Lord, whiche art & wast, thou arte righteous and holy, because thou hast geuē suche iudgementes, for they shed oute the blonde of sayncres, & prophetes, & therefore hast thou geuē thē blond to drink: for they are worthy. And I heard another out of the aulter say: euē solorde god almighty: true & righteous are thy iudgemētes. And the. iiii angel powred out hys vyal on the sunne, & power was geuen vnto hi to vexe men with heate of fire. And the men raged in greate heate: & spake euyl of the name of god, which hathe power ouer those plagues, and they repented not of their euyll dedes, to geue him glory. And the fifte angel powred c out hys vyall vpon the seate of the beaste, & his kingdome waxed darcke, & they gnewe their tonges for sorowe, & blasphemed the god of heauen for sorowe & payne of theyr sores, & repented not of their dedes. And the. vi. angel powred oute hys vyal vpon the great ryuer Euphrates, and the water dryed vp, that the wayes of the kynges of the east shuld be prepared. And I sawe thre vncleane spirites lyke frogges, come out of the mouthe of the dragon, and oute of the mouthe of the beast, and out of the mouthe of the false prophete. For they are the spyrytes of deuils, worchynge miracles, to go out vnto the kynges of the erthe, and of the c whole worlde, to gather them to the battel of that great day of God almyghtye. * Be- Mat. 24 b holde, I come as a theefe. And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrue tōge, Armagedō. And the seuenth angell powred oute hys vyall into the ayre. And ther came a great voyce out of the temple frō the seat, saying: it is done. And ther folowed voyces, thōdrynges, and lightenīges, & ther was a great earthquake, such as was not sence men were vpon the earth, so mighty an earthquake & so great. And the great citye was deuyded into thre partes, and the cityes of all nations fell. And greate Babilō came in remembraunce before God, to geue vnto her the cuppe of the wyne of the fearcenes of hys wrathe. Euerye yle also fled awaye and the mountaynes wer not foūde. And ther fell a great hayle (as it had bene talentes) oute of heauen vpō the men, and the men blasphemed God: because of the plage of the hayle, for it was great, and the plage of it sore.

AND there came one of the seuen angels, which had the seuen vials: and talked with me, sayīg vnto me: come b I wyl shewe vnto the, the iudgement of the great whore that sytteth vpon manye waters, wyth whome haue committed fornicacion the kynges of the earthe: and the inhabiters of the earth are dronken with the wyne of her fornication. And the spirite caried me awaye into the wyldernes. And I sawe a woman sit vpon a rose colored beast, ful of names of blasphemye, whyche had seuen heades, and ten hornes. And the woman was arayed in purple and rose coloure, and decked with golde, precious stone, and pearles, and had a cup of golde in her hāde, ful of abhominacions and filthines of her fornicatiō. And in her forehead was a name written, a misterye, great Babilon the mother of whoredome and abhominacions of the earthe. And I sawe the wyfe dronckē with the blonde of sayncres, and with the blonde of the witnesses of Jesu. And when I saw her: I wōdred with great mervayle. And the angel sayde vnto me: Wherefore b marvaylest thou? I wil shew the the misterye of the womā, and of the beaste that beareth her, whyche had seuen heades and ten hornes. The beast that thou sest, was and is not, and shall ascende out of the bottomlesse pyt, and shall goe into perdition: and they that dwell on the earthe shall wonder (whose names are not wrytten in the boke of life frō the beginning of the world) when they beholde the beaste that was and is not. And here is a minde that hathe wisdō. c The seuen heades are seuen mountaynes, on which the womā sytteth: they are also. vii. kynges. Fyue are fallen, and one is, and an other is not yet come. And when he commeth, he muste cōtinue a shorte space. And the beaste that was, and is not, is euen the eyght, and is one of the seuen, and shall go mist destruccion. And the ten hornes which thou sawest, are ten kynges which haue receaued no kyngdō as yet, but shall receaue power as kinges at one houre with the beast. These haue on: mynde, & shall geue theyr power and strength vnto the beaste. These shal fyghte with the lābe, & the lambe shall 1.6.c overcome them. * For he is lorde of lordes, and king of kinges, and they that are on D his syde, are called, & chosen, & faythfull. And he sayde vnto me: the waters whiche thou sawest, wher the whore sytteth, are people, & folke, and nations, & tōges. And the ten hornes, which thou sawest vpon the beast, are they that shal hate the whore, and shal make her desolate and naked, and shal eate her flesh, and burne her with fire. For god hath put in their hearttes, to fulfill his wil, & to do with one consente, for to geue their kyngdome vnto the beast, vntil the wordes of God be fulfilled. And the womā whyche thou sawest, is that greate cittye, whyche raygneth ouer the kynges of the earthe.

AND after that I heard a great voice of muche people in heauen, saying: Alleluia. Saluacio & glorye & honour & power, be ascribed to the lord our god, for true, & righteous are his iudgemētes, for he hath iudged the greate whore whyche did corrupte the earth with her fornicacio, & hath auenged the blode of hys seruauntes of her hād. And againe they sayde: Alleluia. And smoke rose vp for euermore. And the .xxiiii. elders and the .iiii. beestes fell downe, & worshipped God that sate on the seat, saynge: Amē, Alleluia. And a voyce came out of the seat, saying: prayse our Lord God all ye that are his seruauntes, & ye that feare hym both small & greate. And I hearde the voyce of muche people, euen as the voyce of many waters, and as the voyce of stronge thondringes, saying: Alleluya, for the Lord oure God omnipotente raygneth. Let vs be glade, and reioyce, and gene honour to him, for the mariage of the lābe is come, and his wyfe made her selfe ready. And to her was graunted, that she shoulde be arayed wyth pure and goodly raynes. For the raines is the righteousnes of sayncters. And he said vnto me, wryte: * happye are they whyche are called vnto the supper of the lābes mariage: And he sayde vnto me: these are the true sayinges of God. And I fell at hys fete, to worshyp him. And he sayde vnto me: se thou do it not. For I am thy felowe seruaunte, and one of thy brethren, euē of thē that haue the testimony of Jesus. Worship God. For the testimony of Jesus is the spirite of prophecie. And I sawe heauen open, and behold, a white horse: & he that sat vpō him was called faithful & true, & in righteousnes he doth iudge, & make battaile. His eyes were as a flamme of fyre: & on his hede were many crownes, & he had a name writ ten, that no man knew but he himselfe. * And he was clothed with a vesture dypte in bloude, & his name is called the worde of God. And the warriars which were in heauen, followed hym vpō white horses, clothed with white, & pure raignes: and out of hys mouth wēt a sharpe two edged swerd that with it he should smyte the heathē. And he shal rule them with a rod of yron, and he rode the wynefat of fearnes, & wrathe of almighty God. And hathe on his vesture & on his thigh a name writen: King of kynges, & Lorde of Lordes. And I saw an Angel stāde in the sunne, & he cried with a loude voyce, sayinge to all the foules that flye by the myddes of heauen: come and gather youre selues together vnto the supper of the great God, that ye may eat the flesh of kynges, and the flesche of hye captaynes, & the flesche of myghty men, and the flesche of horses, & of them that syt on them, and the flesche of all free mē, and bonde men, and of smal and great. And I sawe the beast, & the kynges of the earthe, and their warriers gathered together to make battayle against hym that sat on the horse, & against his soudiers. And the beaste was taken, and wyth hym that false prophet that wrought miracles before hym, with whyche he deceaued thē that receaued the beastes marke, & thō that worshypped his ymage. These bothe were cast quicke into a ponde of fyre burnynge with brymstone: & the remnāt were slaine with the swearde of him that sat vpon the horse, which swearde proceaded out of hys mouth, and al the foules were fulfylled wyth their flesche.

¶ The. xx. Chapter.

AND I saw an Angel come downe frō heauē, hauinge the keye of the bottōles pit, & a great chaine in his hād. And he toke the dragon that olde serpente, which is the deuel & Satanas, & he bounde him a thousāde yeres: and cast him into the bottomlesse pit, & he shute him vp, & set a seale on him, that he shoulde decaue the people no more til the thousand yeres were fulfilled. And after that he must be losed for a litle season. And I sawe seates, & they sat vpō thē, & iudgement was geuen vnto thē: and I sawe the soules of them that were beheaded for the witnes of Jesu, and for the worde of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his ymage, neither had taken his marke vpon their fore heades, or in their handes: & they lyued, and raygned with christ a .M. yere: but the other of the deade mē lyued not againe, vntyll the thousande yere were fynyshed. This is that fyrst resurrection. Blessed and holye is he, that hath part in the fyrste resurrection. For on such thal the seconde death haue no power, but they shalbe the priestes of God and of Christ, & shal raigne with him a thousād yere. * And when the thousande yeres are expired, Satā shalbe loused out of his prison, and shal go oute to deceaue the people, which are in the foure quarters of the erth, Gog and Magog, to gather thē together to battayle, whose nūbre is as the sande of the sea: & they went vp in the playne of the erth: and cōpalled the rentes of the saintes about, and the beloued cytye. And fire came down frō God oute of heauē, and deuoured thē: & the deuil that deceaued thē, was caste into a lake of fyre and brimstone, wher the beast & the false prophetes shalbe tormēted day and night for euermore. And I sawe a great white seate, & him that sat on it, from whose face fled awaye both the earthe and heauen, lake of fyre. This is the seconde death. And whosoeuer was not founde wrytten in the boke of lyfe, was cast into the lake of fire.

length and the bredth, & the heith of it, were equall. And he measured the wall thereof:
an. cxliii. cubytes: the measure that the of it was of Jasper. And the cytye was pure golde lyke vnto cleare glasse, and the
